England Hangs a Woman
The Absolute Ruler
New York's Power Plant

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1934, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.

AT BALTIMORE, a giant airplane, labelled "Clipper No. 7," has been launched, and soon will make regular flights across the Pacific. More planes of the same kind will be built presently.

The world grows smaller. Once the narrow English Channel kept out invasion. Now the Atlantic and Pacific no longer mean protection for us, unless we have enough airplanes and submarines. The new ocean is the air.

The world moves slowly, keeps moving. England has just hanged a woman, no improvement there. But instead of yelling crowds expressing their delight, as used to happen at executions, two hundred and fifty men and women, on their knees, prayed for the woman about to die.

And this is the first woman hanged in England in eight years. England used to hang them by the hundred, chop off their heads, torture and burn them.

England could not quite make up her mind NOT to hang a woman. We hang or electrocute one occasionally here.

British Labor members attacked Premier MacDonald because he did not interfere. The King, appealed to, would not meddle with his courts. But the crowd knelt and prayed for the miserable woman, instead of getting drunk, hooting and yelling, as it would have done 100 years ago. There IS progress.

It must be ugly work putting a rope around a woman's neck and choking her to death or strapping her in our electric chair. But men are ready to do it for pay and governments permit it, and call themselves civilized.

Irenee Du Pont, munitions manufacturer, who knows about war, since he produces "the goods," tells the munitions committee "the only way to wage a war is to have an absolute monarch at the head of the government," also, "we shall have a hell of a time in case of war."

No question about the last statement, if war comes to this country, and finds us without air protection. Hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of non-combatants would be killed by gas, in the first week.

The suggestion that only an "absolute ruler" could win a war is debatable. Germany had a ruler, absolute in war. Austria had one. England and France had none. England had Lloyd George, France had Clemenceau, two old men, neither a ruler or a soldier. Those two won the war. Russia had an absolute ruler, Russia collapsed.

France had no absolute ruler when, after the Revolution, she made absolute rulers in Europe eat out of her hand.

There was no absolute ruler in Athens when Themistocles made Persia's absolute ruler, with his vast hosts, feel silly.

If the absolute ruler of any country should attack the Winter's Debut Due Tomorrow

Winter makes its official bow at 7:50 a. m. tomorrow.

Take your flannels and furs from their moth balls and prepare for the cold, for Dame Winter promises no immunity.

Although the weather man promises rain and snow for tonight and Saturday, followed by clearing and colder weather, he is unable to say at this early writing whether it will be a "white" or a "green" Christmas.

Boston American Plane Pierces Smoke to Shoot Ship Fire

5 NEAR DEATH, 50 FELLED; PIER, SHIPS MENACED

Captains Story of Fire, Other Picture on Page 15.

Afire since 9 o'clock last night, first at sea and later at her Northern avenue pier, the freight liner Ontario was towed across the harbor and beached on the East Boston flats today after she became a flaming menace to the entire Boston waterfront.

She still burned furiously and was in danger of capsizing when finally grounded 100 feet off Governors Island. There the battle to subdue the flames continued and late today they were placed under control.

Her master, Captain Kauserud, of Wollaston, and a volunteer crew of 20 men in lifeboats rode the flaming hulk, scrambling over Ontario's hot, slanting decks.

A tug and two fireboats were the convoy in as strange and awesome a procession as the Boston waterfront ever witnessed.

Smoke, shot through with flame, hung over the vessels.

Fire on the Ontario, a Merchants and Miners' ship that sailed from Boston for Norfolk and Baltimore last night, was epic of the sea that threatened every minute to include a heavy toll of human life.

ENTIRE CREW OVERCOME

Her captain and every member of her crew of 40 were overcome at least twice as they brought her back from a point off Sandwich, Cape Cod, where the fire was discovered.

The 35-mile slow-motion race to keep the flames under control and make port required six hours.

During the seven and one half hours she burned at Northern avenue pier, two firemen were injured and nine were overcome.

Five of the latter nearly lost their lives in a terrific hot air explosion at 10 o'clock this morning.

A third alarm was sounded then as the flames reached the superstructure for the first time.

The Ontario had taken on a 45-degree list and was rolling with the water inside her, sometimes nearly on her beam ends at a 65-degree slant.

ABANDON FIGHT

Captain Kauserud notified Fire Chief Fox that any more water would capsize his ship and after a conference between them and Arthur J. Doyle, line agent, the order was given to abandon the fight

Somerville Store Rocked by Blast

An explosion in the basement of a drugstore in Highland avenue, Somerville, today, blew out three large windows and gave a terrific shaking to three customers who were in the store.

Clerk John Bennett was waiting on the trade when he received a severe jolt. Damage was estimated at $2000 by Wilfred Young, district fire chief.

Thug Kidnaps Woburn Man, Gets $1300

Elihu Lyman, Woburn civic leader and business man, was kidnaped and robbed of a $1300 payroll today at the height of a brisk morning business in Woburn square, Woburn.

With a gun pressed to his back, he was forced by a lone gunman to drive to a remote section in Mountain road, Burlington, then was forced to see the thief escape with his money and car.

Lyman drew the payroll at the Woburn National Bank. He entered the driver's seat at the same time the gunman climbed into the rear seat and thrust the gun in his back.

He was ordered to turn up his rear-view mirror so that he couldn't get a view of the gunman. A min-

HULTMAN SEEKS WHITE FUND JOB

Police Commissioner Hultman, who will not be reappointed, according to Governor-elect Curley, is entertaining hopes of becoming manager of the White Fund—a $20,000-a-year post—according to reports today.

He would give up all efforts to continue as police commissioner under the new Governor, and would even resign immediately if assured of the White Fund job, it was said.

The White Fund position is now occupied by General Edward L. Logan, whose five-year term expires next May.

General Logan was appointed in 1930 by the trustees of the $6,000,000 George Robert White Fund, who at that time were Mayor Curley, William G. Lynch, then president of the city council; Henry I.

$500,000 Fire in Armory

Toledo, O., Dec. 21 (AP)—The National Guard Armory here, housing equipment of Headquarters Co., 148th Infantry, the naval reserves and the marine Corps reserves, was destroyed by fire today, with a loss of $500,000.

CURLEY STUDIES 44-HOUR WEEK

In line with his campaign slogan for "work and wages," Governor-elect James M. Curley today moved for a 44-hour week for state employes and employment of many others.

He summoned Charles P. Howard, chairman of the state commission on administration and finance, and ordered that the cost of such a move be submitted to him before inauguration.

The governor-elect pointed out that the shorter week is planned primarily for low-salaried employes in hospitals, homes and other state institutions, many of whom work as many as 60 to 72 hours weekly.

The governor-elect announced that tomorrow he will make official announcements that will complete the appointment of his secretarial staff.

He had a conference today with Paul A. Dever, attorney-general-elect, and Thomas H. Buckley, state auditor-elect, but declined comment on its nature.

Millens Fail in Plea, Fight to Continue

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld Federal Judge Brewster's refusal to halt the Millen-Faber murder trial in Dedham last summer.

The decision of the circuit court was unanimous. Upon learning of it, Atty. George Stanley Harvey for the Millen brothers announced he would carry the fight to the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Brewster in United States district court last summer refused Harvey's application for a writ of habeas corpus for Irving and Murton Millen.

Harvey claimed their constitutional rights were being violated in the state trial in Dedham.

The Dedham trial ended with conviction of the Millen brothers and Abe Faber of machine gun murder in a Needham bank holdup.

They are in Dedham jail, where Norma Millen, bride of Murton, is serving a year as an accessory after the fact.

The Millens and Faber have an appeal pending in the Massachusetts Supreme Court. A decision is expected in January. If it is adverse, sentence of death is due to follow quickly.

Dr. C. A. Robinson Injured in Crash

Dr. Charles A. Robinson was injured today when his car struck a Copley square traffic marker and crashed against two trolley poles.

Dr. Robinson crawled from the wreckage and was taken to his office at 384 Commonwealth avenue by William Caswell, a taxi driver.

SHIP IS BEACHED AS MENACE TO WATERFRONT

at the pier and tow her away.

The 150 firemen who had been swarming over the floating furnace were withdrawn, hoses were yanked out and the tug, Betsy Ross, began pushing the Ontario away from her berth even before the gangway had been taken in.

The liner's crew cut the gangway ropes and it plunged into the water. The two fireboats that had been along side since they met the burning ship off Boston Light moved away and then joined the Ross on the starboard side. It was a slow, spectacular procession to the flats off Governors Island.

The Ontario was beached at high tide in 14 feet of water. In addition to the crews of three fireboats, Matthew J. Boyle, Angus J. McDonald and later the John P. Dowd, the firemen of three shore companies taken aboard these boats continued the fight.

The U.S.S. Nottoway, naval tug, and the police boats, Watchman and E. U .Curtis, joined the fight to save the ship in her new position.

Refusing to abandon her, Captain Kauserud, huddled in a greatcoat, remained on the bridge, half his loyal crew still with him. Just after the Ontario was beached, one of her crew, Alphonse Friss of Philadelphia, slipped and was knocked unconscious. He was overcome by smoke before his plight was noticed and the Curtis rushed him ashore to a hospital.

LOSS SET AT $100,000

Chief Fox said a tentative estimate of the damage was $100,000. He thought considerable of the $250,000 mixed cargo could be salvaged. The liner itself was valued at $200,000 but probably can be later refloated and put in service again.

Until the explosion at 10 o'clock, all the fire had been confined in the holds aft. At that time Fire Captain Franklin Sanborn and four hosemen, William Jeffers, Jerome Joyce, John Hudson and Charles Murray, were in the hold with the lines.

A back draft suddenly intensifying the heat caused the explosion. The Ontario shuddered. Sanborn and the four hosemen staggered up a companionway and collapsed on the deck.

Other firemen casualities were Dennis Driscoll of Ladder 20 who lost the index finger on his right hand when a hatch fell on it; Captain James Shea, Engine 7, who injured an eye; Thomas Gallagher, James Campbell, Edward Lynch and George Tracy, all overcome by smoke.

The battle to get the Ontario back to Boston was even more dramatic than the fight waged at the pier.

Every member in the crew was overcome at least twice, some more often As men fell, comrades dragged them out to the open decks, where they were revived. Then back into the inferno they went.

Above what might have been another maritime disaster towered the dominating intrepid figure of Captain Kauserud.

SIX FIREMEN HURT

Side by side with his seamen he battled the fire, falling victim to smoke and fumes three times, but each time going back to shout encouragement, give orders, keep the ship. The two gas masks on thes hip were passed around in turn.

CAPTAIN ASKS AID

Fire first was discovered as the Ontario was ploughing past Sandwich, with a heavy freight cargo, but no passengers aboard. Third Engineer Edward Cunningham, on watch, found it.

He notified the skipper. Then Captain Kauserud sounded the calls to fire stations and rushed to the radio shack. There he instructed Chief Radio Operator Lee Clifford to wireless Coast Guards and all ships at sea that the Ontario was afire.

All members of the crew not on watch were summoned by the fire calls. They took emergency stations assigned to them and, the captain said they "carried out their work to the letter, every man."

Meanwhile, the radio operators were told to call the Boston Fire Department and ask for fireboats to meet the Ontario.

The nose of the flaming ship was swung around and the serious business of battling for life began.

In that freight cargo of "general merchandise," there was some material that sent forth acrid fumes as it burned—fumes and heavy black smoke that nearly felled the seamen at their eight hose lines.

Live steam from the engine room was poured into the holds and hatchways. It was said that the main force of the fire was in hold 3.

But all the time, despite the heroic efforts of the crew and officers, the flames were spreading. They ate up through the planking and floor of the social hall. They raged through the dining hall.

TUSCAN STANDS BY

As this battle went on, the S.S. Tuscan, a sister ship, came rushing to the Ontario's aid. She couldn't help with the heave of the sea and the ponderous bulks of the two steamers to be considered, but still the Tuscan stood by.

All the time the Ontario was fighting her way back to port, the Tuscan trailed along, ready to pick up the Ontario's crew if they were forced to the boats.

This thing nearly came as the flaming ship was close to Boston, just after passing Scituate. At this point Captain Kauserud, fearing for the lives of his men, was just about decided to beach his ship.

FIREBOATS GIVE AID

But through the air came word that Boston's fireboats, Nos. 44 and 31, under command of Deputy Fire Chief Louis C. Stickel, were racing to the aid of the Ontario.

Captain Kauserud decided to fight on for a while, and at Castle Island the fireboats met the burning Ontario.

Limping along, listing more and more, thus the Ontario made port. Like a crippled seadog, with a fireboat on either side, trying to support her.

WORK IN RELAYS

In 20 minutes the Ontario was fast to a Northern avenue dock. There divisions of the Boston Fire Department were ready.

Gas masked firemen, warned in advance of the fumes that fouled the air of the ship's holds, clambered aboard and began a fight that lasted all through the morning.

This was not the first time that the Ontario was written down in marlime lore as a "hero ship."

Back in April, 1912, off Montauk Point, the Ontario's crew saved 32 passengers when fire burned through the entire superstructure of the ship.

Rebuilt shortly afterwards, the Ontario had minor accidents, but perilous ones, in coastal storm.

Christmas a la Simmons

Just about ready for Christmas Day. That's the way the story was told to the cameraman by Clara Cummings, a Simmons College student. He caught her on one of her last trips with bundles—the bundles meant Christmas gifts for the family—for friends. Today most of the Simmons girls will be moved out on the way to near and far points to spend the Christmas-New Year's vacation with their families. BRUNO DEFENSE TO QUESTION IDENTITY

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 21—The defense at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann will question whether the body identified at that of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., actually was that of the kidnaped infant, the Evening Journal said it has learned today.

Edward J. Reilly, chief counsel for Hauptmann, the Journal said, will demand strong evidence that the skeleton found near the Hopewell, N. J., home of the Lindbergh's was that of their child.

Identification of the body was made by Lindbergh and Betty Gow, the baby's nurse.

Reilly's plan, the JJournal said, is "somehow affected by a witness who is on his way from Chicago."

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21—Preparation of the state's case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, waiting trial in Flemington on a charge of murdering the Lindbergh baby, was resumed today by Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

The attorney-general said that two state tropers were in Maine seeking John Lister of Bingham, Me., said to have been Hauptmann's guide on a huntingtrip subsequent to the kidnaping.

Deer Killed by 'Yule Spirit'

Kane, Pa., Dec. 21—This community's Christmas spirit resulted in the death of a deer today—a block from the center of the business district.

The streets have been decorated with Christmas trees.

This morning a deer wandered into town, apparently confused by the trees. An automobile came along the street. The deer, bewildered by a car driving through the "forest," stepped into the machine's path and was killed.

7 KILLED AS DUTCH PLANE CRASHES, BURNS IN DESERT

By Associated Press

Baghdad, Iraq., Dec. 21—The giant American-built airplane "Niver," pride of the Royal Dutch Air Lines, was found wrecked and burned today, its seven occupants killed.

The plane crashed during a desert thunderstorm yesterday, ten miles south of Rutba Wells, Iraq.

Scouting planes of the British Royal Air Force, who had searched for the liner since early yesterday, found the charred wreckage. The machine had been burned to cinders.

Fresh from triumphs in the England to Melbourne air derby, the liner, popularly known as "The Flying Hotel," was seeking new laurels in a speed flight from Amsterdam to Batavia, Java, when disaster overtook it.

The victims were three passengers and four members of the crew. They were:

Professor Walch, of Batavia University; M. Beretti, director of Aneta, official news agency of the Dutch East Indies, and M. Kort, a businessman. M. Beeknan, commander and chief pilot; Second Pilot Van Steenbergen; H. A. Walewyn, engineer, and Wireless Operator C. Van Zadelhogg.

Although the exact cause of the tragedy was not known, air officials here expressed belief it had been struck by lightning.

The scene of the crash, midway between the coast of Palestine and Baghdad, is a desolate one.

By Associated Press.

Amsterdam, Dec. 21—The crash of the air liner Uiver in Iraq was considered a national catastrophe today to the Netherlands, which had been so proud of the plane's achievement in the Melbourne air derby.

Flags were at half staff and radio stations were silenced for a period as a sign of mourning.

American Writer Sees Ship Fire From Air

By PAUL WHELTON

The plane banked and Robbie took another shot, half-hanging out the space the door usually closed. Down below, a dozen men were bunched on the forward deck, the only place where there was no smoke.

CAPTAIN KAUSERUD

In the occasional lifts of the swirling smoke, other figures could be glimpsed fleetingly on the deck amidships, apparently battling the flames.

Thin, feathery lobs in the swirl showed where two fireboats were pouring water into the stricken steamer as she was nudged across Boston Harbor to the flats off Governor's Island by a tug and the fireboats, with another tug puffing belligerently in the wake.

In a Skyways plane from Boston Airport, this Boston Evening American reporter and Photographed Donald Robinson convoyed the burning Merchants and Miners freighter Ontario from her Northern avenue pier to the flats.

As the big Stinso-Detroiter monoplane, piloted by Lieutenant Raymond Todd of Skyways, wheeled above, smoke from the fire then raging 15 hours belched from ventilators, ports, hatches and companionways of the steamer.

SETTLES AT STERN

The flames, starting in a center hold, had worked into the afterhold and as the freighter was moved over to her beaching point, 100 feet of the inland, she appeared to have settled deeply at the stern, either through leakage or because of the hundreds of gallons of water flooding into her from the fireboats.

From the sun side the rolling smoke made photography difficult and at times totally obscured the fireboats, hooked on amidships and aft on the starboard side of the freighter.

Lieutenant Todd brought the monoplane down to 200 feet and Robbie made a shot. Over Governor's Island, with its abandoned fortress, its humped gun-mounts and its underground tunnels, the plane then shot and the pilot came round in a great circle and throttled down at 100 feet.

Half out of the door again, Robbie once more snapped the camera as the smoke lifted momentarily and the monoplane coasted at 65 miles an hour, air speed.

FACES OF MEN CLEAR

Six shots were taken on this trip, with the last shot made at only 50 feet above the water and the faces of the men on the freighter's deck clearly discernable.

A half hour later, when the steamer had been run into the mud, another flight was taken and six more shots were taken by the cameramen from a height so short that the name "Angus J. McDonald" could be read easily on the stern of the fireboat moored aft.

On this flight, the volume of smoke appeared to have lessened, but the fireboats were still pumping water into the freighter.

HULTMAN SEEKS WHITE FUND JOB

Harriman, then president of the Chamber of Commerce; Rupert S. Carven, then city auditor, and Herbert Parker, then president of the Boston Bar Association.

Each trustee held his place by virtue of the public office he then held. Frederick W. Mansfield, as mayor, is ex-officio the chairman, as Curley was when eGn. Logan was appointed.

The possibilities of Hultman as manager have been discussed at the three recent conferences of the police commissioner and mayor, it is reported.

As soon as he was appointed police commissioner, Hultman unsuccessfully sought a $4,000 raise in pay and has ever since desired a higher salaried position. Recent reports mentioned him for chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission. That position, however, pays only a little more than $8,000 the police commissioner is paid.

The White Fund managership, because of the large salary, is the biggest appointive plum in Boston. The fund is used for health units and other public enterprises for the citizens of the city.

Hultman's term as police commissioner also expires next May. Governor-elect Curley has said, however, that he might try to replace him befort that time.

STRINGS TO $1,000,000 SNIPPING ASKED

Salem, Dec. 21—Asking that the strings attached to her husband's $1,000,000 estate be snipped in her favor, Mrs. Helen S. Bliss, widow of Charles A. Bliss, of Newburyport, appeared in probate court today.

She jointed out that in addition to giving each of their six children $5000 on his or her 21st birthday, the will provided that she was to have an income of $10,000 a year until 1922. Executors were instructed care for educational expenses.

Mrs. Bliss today told Judge Harry R. Gow that all of her children are now over 21 and that the youngest of them, Helen, has graduated from Vassar. Therefore, she asks that their education be considered completed and the trust dissolved.

'I'LL STAY—FOREVER—FOR LOVE'

DORA MILLICENT MILES

BEAUTY True to CONVICT

TELLS WHY SHE CROSSED U. S.

WOULD BRAVE HELL'S FIRE FOR HIM

By JAMES F. McENANEY

"I'd go through hell's fire for him and I'm not going back to California until he is free to go with me—no matter how long I have to wait."

Take that from a girl whose love for George E. Gilbert has withstood three shocks sufficient to scuttle any ordinary romance:

(1) Discovery he was married.

(2) Discovery that he was an escaped convict.

(3) His arrest and imprisonment for ten more years.

Dora Millicent Miles, titian-haired, 21-year-old sweetheart of the kidnaper-robber, talked today for the first time about their love that came into bloom under the California sun between Gilbert's escape from Norfolk and his recapture in Los Angeles.

"Love at First Sight"

He's now back in Norfolk at hard labor, facing 10 more years, but he has asked for a pardon, and this girl has crossed the continent to help him get it, or to wait near him whether he gets it or not. She said:

"I first met George three years ago in Los Angeles. He had a room there in the home of some of my relations and I was introduced to him while visiting them.

"I guess it was love at first sight. I admired him, and I have never had reason to do otherwise.

"He told me he had a wife and four children in Boston, but he did not tell me that he had been in jail and escaped.

"We knew we could not be married. So we could live together, we told my family that we had eloped and been wed.

GEORGE GILBERT

"George was working steadily for an oil company and in his spare hours evenings was studying chiropractice. He would have received his degree in another year.

"The first I knew of any record was George's arrest as a fugitive from justice. Then, of course, I had to tell my parents that we were not married. They were deeply grieved but they have been marvelously understanding.

"We did our best to prevent George being taken from California where, in his new life, he had proved himself. We failed and they took him back and returned him to prison.

We'll Marry

"Without him there was nothing left for me. My parents gave me the money to come East. I'm living with relatives in Allston. If it looks like a long wait, I'll get a job here and remain so I can visit him every Saturday.

"I have wired my parents that I went before the parole board and that I hope George will soon be free to go home with me. Is it necessary to say that I love him dearly?

"When the divorce is over and he is free, we'll be married. His old job is still waiting for him in California.

"Every night he writes to me. Every night I write to him. Waiting is hard. But whether it's 10 days or 10 years, I'm waiting."

That's Dora Millicent Miles!

Gold for Crimson

By Associated Press

Atlanta, Dec. 21—A gold strike in White County, which yielded 67 nuggets, was reported today by Richard W. Smith, state geologist.

Smith described the find of about 12 ounces in all as "the most spectacular" in recent months. The largest nugget, Smith said he was told, has been sold to the Harvard crew.

Santa Claus Gets Big Fan Mail!

The Christmas rush at the postoffice is swollen by the annual flood of letters addressed directly to Santa Claus. Among the various addresses are "2 Chimney road," "10,000 North Pole" and "Kris Kringle, North Pole."

The letters, in childish handwritings, all are opened, and if they are found to be from needy children, are turned over to welfare associations.

Tomorrow is the deadline for mail which the sender hopes to have delivered by Christmas, Postmaster William E. Hurley said. A two-cent rate in the Greater Boston district is sufficient on a letter, and one cent on cards.

HEPBURN

AID PLAYS

"JOHN ALDEN"

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 21—Whenever Katherine Hepburn appears in public with Leland Hayward, her manager, up spring rumors of a romance and a marriage in the immediate future.

Today, however, that could not hold true of their last appearance, because Hayward found himself playing a John Alden to a Miles Standish broadway columnist.

Katherine Hepburn

Ward Morehouse, of the New York Sun, had an engagement with the motion picture star to take her to the opening of Katharine Cornell in "Romeo and Juliet" last night. He became ill and sent his tickets to Hayward with a request that he accompany Miss Hepburn. Hayward did.

Three-Day Drouth Ended

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Dec. 21 (AP)—A 10-inch stream of water poured into St. Johnsbury's water system today, ending a three-day drouth caused by the accidental blasting of two water mains.

MRS. WARBURG DIVORCED IN PRIVATE HEARING

Mrs. Katherine Swift (Kay) Warburg . . . won a Reno divorce from James Paul Warburg, New York banker, on grounds of extreme cruelty. A property settlement and custody of their three children, April Carlotta, 15, Adrea Swift, 12, and Kathleen, 10, was agreed upon.

Kidnaps Baby to Be 'Mother'

Indianapolis, Dec. 21—The kidnaping of a 4-day-old baby boy, part of her confessed plan to regain her husband's affections by an assumed motherhood, led Mrs. Dorothy Marsh, 19, to a cell here today.

She was charged with kidnaping and held in $5000 after making a signed statement of her strange deception which even convinced nearby residents that she had become a mother.

In the bare two-room home of Joseph Robbins, 29-year-old relief worker, the parents of the kidnaped baby recovered from the shock of their temporary loss. The infant was snatched from his mother's arms late yesterday, to be returned by police four hours later.

The husband, Porter Marsh, from whom Mrs. Marsh said she separated last August, lies in a hospital, unable to move because of a spine fractured in an auto accident. He was not informed last night of his wife's arrest.

Mrs. Marsh told police of her visit to the Robbins home earlier in the week, when she pretended to be a social worker.

Yesterday, according to her statement, she returned, asked if she might hold the baby and, when she had it in her arms, ran outside to a waiting taxicab.

The driver, who guided police later in locating the infant and Mrs. Marsh, drove them to her rooming house. She went to bed, the baby beside her, and when officers arrived insisted the boy was her own child.

314 Years Ago Pilgrims Landed

Remember what happened 314 years ago today? Or are you one of those rare New Englanders who hadn't an ancestor aboard the Mayflower.

Anyhow, today's the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at what's now Plymouth.

Provincetown folk will remind you, of course, that their harbor on the tip of the Cape had already sheltered the anchored Mayflower since November 11.

AND HERE'S THE ROCK

But Plymouth was the first permanent settlement of the Pilgrims. They stepped ashore there Dec. 21, 1620, perhaps on Plymouth rock—or perhaps not.

Anyhow, they landed. Not, however, from the Mayflower. They had left their ship at Provincetown. Poets and artists take notice. It was in a small boat, or "shallop," that the trip from Provincetown to Plymouth was made. The party included ten Mayflower passengers, all male, and eight officers and men of the Mayflower's crew.

INSIDE STORY OF 5 'LITTLE BUMS'

Dafoe Greets His Babes

THEY'RE HAPPY, NORMAL GIRLS WITH LONG LIFE AHEAD

By MARGARET MOOERS MARSHALL
International News Service Staff Writer

Callander, Ont., Dec. 21—New York's latest idol, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, stood square and stocky and white-robed in the sun-splashed hospital-nursery here.

He looked down at the Dionne quintuplets, whom he had not seen for a week. They waved 20 arms and legs at him from the joint sun-bunk, which their devoted nurses playfully have christened the "rats' nest."

He twinkled with benign affection.

"Hello, bums!" said the doctor to the babies.

No grandiose speech of reunion for him!

Yet the playful drollery of the phrase was something more. It stood as an ironic commentary on all that the five most famous and fortunate little girls in the world were not.

Think of five priceless—and perfectly matched—pearls in the softest cotton wool of an exquisite jewel-box. Think of five little princesses like the one in the old fairy tale.

"Dear Santa: Please multiply by five."

Now think of the nicest, prettiest, brightest, cutest scamp of a baby you know, multiply by five—and there you have a picture of little Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie themselves.

The two questions which everyone asks about these youngsters will be answered at once by this eye-witness, who went back to Canada with Dr. Dafoe and is one of the few privileged persons actually to be admitted to the inner shrine of the Dionne nursery.

Will the quintuplets live? They will: at least, their life expectancy is not only as good as but considerably better than that of the average six months' old child.

Are the quintuplets normal mentally? They are—bright-eyed, alert, with intelligence quite up to the level of their age and with developing personalities already interestingly differentiated.

As for what else they are, it is almost impossible to keep a description from breaking out into a dither of admiring adjectives.

Their plump, shapely little bodies, their round, velvet-soft cheeks, their big, dark-blue eyes with surely the longest curling black eyelashes that any baby ever possessed, their comic button-noses their rosebud mouths that even now crinkle into toothless—smiles—oh, what's the use!

Here is the set-up of a day in the Dionne nursery:

Five small girls, ridiculously alike, with no more privacy than the far-famed goldfish, take long, ecstatic pulls at their bottles. They go, one by one, into a white enamel tub, where they splash water over themselves and their nurses with charming impartiality. They are dressed in tiny shirts and diapers, cotton flannel frocks, knitted pink-and-white jackets, little bootees—like sets of dolls' clothes.

The nursery itself is a baby's paradise and a baby hygienist's dream. It is awash with sunshine. Everything in it is sterilized and individualized.

There are five individual cribside tables heaped with towels. There are five sterilized waterbottles, standing on the radiator so their boiled and strained contents will not chill five little tummies. There is a complete, if simple, individual wardrobe for each infant. There are two baths a day, and two changes of clothes.

The nursery life is arranged on the strictest schedule. Yet don't think there's anything coldly inhuman about their existence. It may be hygienic to the nth degree, but it is happily filled with love as well as science.

Efficient Mme. Louise De Kirilin, young Yvone Leroux and "Pat" Mullen, the nurses—are all in love with the little Dionne girls.

Yvonne and Annette, eldest of the quintuplets by a minute or so, have increased their weight four hundred per cent in the first half-year. The other three are coming along well.

CHARGES HONEYMOON KICKS AND DUCKING

MRS. EDMONSTON

KICKED

CLAIMS BRIDE

Bridgeport, Ct., Dec. 21—The socially registered Lois Roxanna Barrett Edmonston, Junior Leaguer and wife of William Edgar Edmonston, 2d, millionaire utilities heir of Baltimore and New York, told State Referee Isaac Wolfe at a private hearing in superior court here that her husband kicked her out of bed on their honeymoon.

The incident, she said, took place at a hotel in Worcester while they were en route to Maine.

Mrs. Edmonston, however, didn't mind the kick so much but she did object to ridicule which she said Edmonston heaped upon her ancestors, particularly William Tuttle of Massachusetts Bay Colony who in 1639 settled in New Haven. ter of Tuttle.

Long Seeks More Power

'KINGFISH CONSTITUTION' LATEST AIM OF NEW 'DICTATOR'

By Associated Press

BatonRouge, La., Dec. 21—Senator Huey P. Long, having written upon the statutes every law he could conceive to make an empire of Lousiana, turned his attention today to drafting a "King-Fish constitution."

Huey Long

His colleagues said he plans to re-write the state constitution, to take further power from the local governments and to inflict further punishment on the opponents he has been unable to reach.

Administration men asserted after adjournment of the special legislative session yesterday that they expect the Legislature to be reconvened in February to call a constitutional convention.

Among Long's eleventh-hour moves with his Legislature were an order for ejection of the rival administration of the city of Alexandria and a thrust at the hostile administration of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley in New Orleans.

Long also took over control of the city of Baton Rouge, where he has been engaged in a struggle for political supremacy since the House impeached him as governor in 1929, when he tried to tax the Standard Oil Company by levying a five cents a barrel occupational tax on oil.

Only Long knows the potentialities of his nearly 350 dictatorial laws passed this year. Their authority stretches from the pinnacle of the highest executive office and state agency to the poorly-paid public school teacher.

In the general set-up, the dictator can call out an army of state police to execute his orders in the minutest local subdivision where, by his far-reaching laws, he has virtually wiped out the local government.

SCHWARZKOPF IS NEMESIS OF HAUPTMANN

This is the 11th in a series of 12 articles on the Lindbergh case, which is being projected into the spotlight next month by the approaching trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 21—"Schwarzkopf."

Ever since the Lindbergh kidnaping crime "broke," this name—referring to Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf—has recurred thousands of times, in and out of the newspapers.

Schwarzkopf was then, and still is, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, and as such assumed charge of the difficult task of solving the kidnaping and murder of little Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Colonel Schwarzkopf gave "everything he had" to the biggest job he ever tackled as a police official. He spent countless sleepless nights working on the case. He has been indefatigable in running down the thousands of clues.

CREDIT DUE

If the state of New Jersey is able to build a strong murder case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann at the latter's forthcoming trial in Flemington, a great deal of the credit will have to go to Schwarzkopf.

Schwarzkopf—a "West Point man" and a World War veteran—is a modest, self-effacing official. He is only 39 years old. He is of medium height, sturdy build, light-haired and blue-eyed. He never has ballyhooed himself during the long Lindbergh investigation.

He built the New Jersey state police, comprising more than 200 officers and troopers, to a high state of efficiency. He was named superintendent of this organization in 1921 and under his guidance it ranks with any state constabulary in the United States.

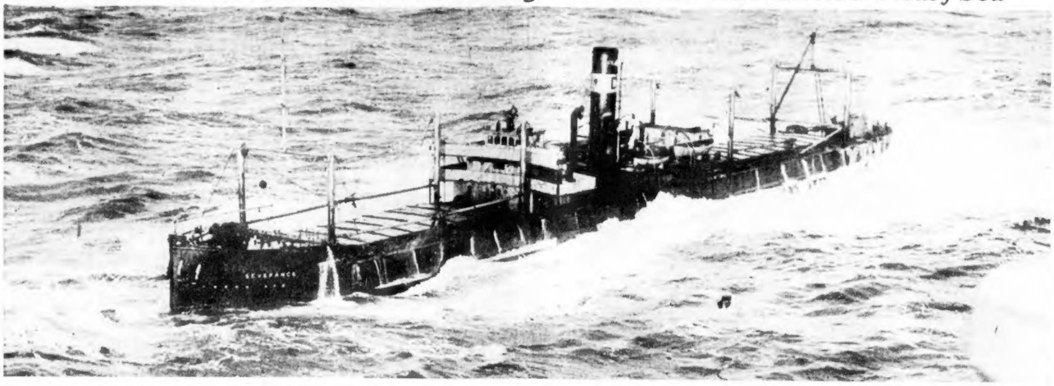
COLONEL IS WEST POINTER

Colonel Schwarzkopf was born in Newark, N. J., August 29, 1895. He was graduated from the Newark schools and from Freehold Military Academy. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy in June, 1913, and was graduated from West Point in 1917. Leaving West Point he was appointed to the Second Cavalry, Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

He served overseas and achieved a distinguished record for bravery in the World War.

Upon his return home he was engaged by L. Bamberger Company, Newark, as traffic manager. His term as superintendent of the New Jersey state police expires June 7, 1936. His home is in Princeton, N. J. He is a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Schwarzkopf is married and the father of three children.

Lives of 41 at Stake as Boston-Bound Freighter Wallows Rudderless in Heavy Sea



Gale-swept and awash, 50 miles south of Fire Island, the disabled freighter, Severance, bound from Norfolk to Boston, is at the mercy of a heavy sea as the Coast Guard cutter Champlain stands by waiting to give assistance when the weather moderates. This view, taken by airplane, shows the Severance's decks deserted as officers and crew huddle beneath battened hatches. Huge waves are breaking steadily over the helpless vessel from bow to stern. See the water pouring in torrents from the scuppers as the Severance lifts sluggishly after a plunge that seemed almost to submerge her. After attempts to take her in tow had failed, the crippled freighter was limping toward Boston today, using a "jury-rigged" steering gear. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

COURT GIVES UP FISH AS KILLER

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 21—Albert H. Fish was turned over to Westchester county authorities today in homicide court to answer an indictment charging first degree murder in the death of 10-year-old Grace Budd.

Fish had nothing to say during a brief proceeding, and kept a handkerchief over his face. In court was Detective William King, the man who brought about the arrest of Fish.

CRIPPLED SHIP DUE HERE

The collier Severance, with a crew of 41, made her way slowly to Boston today after winning a bitter battle against a gale-swept sea off Long Island coast.

Unable to proceed because of a damaged rudder, the Severance sent out a call for help to which the coast guard cutter Champlain responded.

Three times the Champlain tried to get a towing line on board the Severance but each time it snapped as the collier wallowed in the heavy seas.

Finally the Severance repaired her rudder sufficiently to proceed under her own power and early today resumed her journey to Boston with the Champlain trailing.

Expectant Mother Killed by Rifle

Trescott, Me., Dec. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Ray Wilcox, 26, an expectant mother, was killed instantly late last night by the accidental discharge of a rifle. The gun, left standing in a wood box by her husband, fell and discharged as Mrs. Wilcox reached for a stick of wood.

CURLEY INAUGURAL BASED ON 'WORK AND WAGES'

Solutions to the pressing problems of "work and wages," to the mounting costs of compulsory automobile insurance, to the menace of deaths on the highways, to appalling criminal conditions, all will be treated by Governor-elect Curley in his inaugural message, it was learned today.

Before a distinguished gathering, probably the largest in years, Governor-elect Curley will take the oath of office on January 3.

His inaugural address will be delivered before the House and Senate, in joint convention, at the State House.

Invitations to approximately 5000 persons to attend the ceremony, which will be broadcast, have already been mailed.

Loud speakers will bring the governor's message to part of the big gathering in Gardner auditorium, and to the corridors of the third floor of the State House, where seats will be provided for the first time.

The speaker's gallery will be turned over to Miss Mary Curley and her friends, in accordance with custom. The oath of office will be administered by President Erland F. Fish of the Senate.

Among the other problems that the new governor is expected to deal with in his message are new sources of revenue for the state of which the sales tax is one of the few remaining avenues not tapped, cost of public utilities to the people, abolishment of grade crossings probably with federal aid.

NEW PRISON

He is known to be considering new penal legislation, with the abolishment of the ancient State Prison at Charlestown, abolishment of the state tax appeal board, or a "new deal" on its decisions and repeal of the pre-primary convention law which had its first trial this year.

He is on record as in favor of abolishment of the Boston Finance Commission. He wants "home rule" measures for cities, state housing projects, and advertising of Massachusetts recreational resources as part of a big New England push for vacation business.

Then there are a number of other projects that call for special handling, such as the future of the Boston Elevated road, the necessity of extending the Huntington avenue subway and the pushing of the Cambridge tunnel beyond Harvard square.

Also unification of the police departments, the popular election of judges and of members of the public utilities commission, and initial steps to change the constitution to do away with the governor's council.

LORETTA BREMNER MARY CURLEY

Mary Curley, who will soon become the first lady of the Commonwealth, is busy these days doing her part to make possible grand Christmas doings for many families. Her activities in the 350 Club keep her busy at the club's headquarters in the Hotel Westmintser. She was snapped as letters of appeal were checked. Looking on is Loretta Bremner of Chicago, a friend of Miss Curley. During her stay here Miss Bremner is a volunteer in the 350 Club Christmas activities. BOLSHEVIK PAIR UNDER ARREST

By International News Service

Moscow, Dec. 21—Both Gregory Zinoviev and Lev Borisovitch Kamenev, old-guard Bolsheviks, are under arrest in connection with the recent assassination of Sergei M. Kirov, secretary of the Political Bureau.

This was the interpretation placed by political circles today upon an official communique issued by the Soviet foreign office, which, while refusing to confirm that the two "anti-party" leaders were under arrest, significantly refused to deny the reports.

Rumors circulated in Berlin that Zinoviev had been executed are thus far lacking in confirmation.

Morro Survivor Not Truck Victim

Samuel "Red" Hoffman of Chelsea, who escaped death in the Morro Castle disaster, is alive and well and not the victim of a truck accident as was reported from New York yesterday.

Because Frank Hoffman, living at the same New York address as Samuel Hoffman, was killed by a truck in New York, word was sent to the Chelsea man's parents here by New York officials. The family with aid of the Boston Evening American, established through telephone calls that the former Morro Castle seafarer was not the truck victim.

Widow of Camp Leaves $100,000

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Alice Sumner Camp, widow of Walter Camp, the father of American football, left an estate valued at approximately $100,000 to her children, Walter Camp, Jr., and Mrs. Janet Camp Buck, it was disclosed today.

A trust fund was also provided for the education of a grandson, Walter Camp, 3d.

BIGELOW HUNT ON IN WOODS

Lieutenant-Colonel Paul G. Kirk has issued orders to conduct a new search today in the woods around the Sudbury Dam, Fayville, for Dr. George H. Bigelow, missing director of Massachusetts General Hospital.

When the doctor disappeared on December 3, farmhouses and buildings were inspected for a distance of five miles in the Fayville section.

Arthur Monahan, watchman at the dam, is now believed to have been the last known person to see Dr. Bigelow. The missing man spoke to him about an hour after he left the hospital.

HOPKINS LEADS DOLE BATTLE

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 21—A proposal by business leaders that the government swing away from work relief to direct aid to the distressed ran into a growing opposition led by Harry L. Hopkins.

The relief administrator, as well as Secretary Ickes, Senator Norris of Nebraska, and others, voiced criticism indicating this portion of the platform adopted by the White Sulphur Springs gathering of 90 business men would win out only after a battle.

While Hopkins flung criticisms at the suggestion, and the White House received the entire platform without comment, leaders of the joint business conference for recovery drove ahead with attempts to win farmers and labor to their views.

Amnesia Victim Found in New York

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Police today sent out a three-state alarm through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania in an attempt to identify a 65-year-old man, an amnesia victim who has been in Bellevue Hospital since Dec. 11.

Found wandering about at Broadway and 52d street, the man could not remember his name or anything about himself. He was well dressed, and could not account for a light gray cap he wore, saying he always had a felt hat.

TUFVERSON FATE, CAN IVAN TELL?

What Became of Wife?

PODERJAY DUE BACK TO ANSWER QUESTIONS ABOUT MYSTERY

By WIN BROOKS

Much against his will, Captain Ivan Ivanovich Poderjay is at last en route from Vienna to New York to answer embarrassing questions concerning the whereabouts of Agnes Tufverson.

She vanished at 11 o'clock a year ago last night.

The case is an international mystery of suspected murder which may have a comic opera ending. It may turn out that "Tufie" is in hiding for no other reason than to cause trouble for Ivan. She had reason.

IVAN I. PODERJAY

Miss Tufverson was 43, of Norse parentage, native of Detroit. She became a successful corporation lawyer in New York and made a lot of money. She was an austere spinster who frowned on love until she met Poderjay.

Captain I. I. Poderjay is a man of ego, as his initials suggest. He is a Yugoslavian adventurer, a galloping Don Juan, who has courted, even married fascinating women here, there and all but everywhere.

Ship of Romance

They met on the London-Southampton boat train one summer evening in 1933, both on the way to New York. They arrived on the Ile de France, ship of romance.

They were married in New York at the Little Church Around the Corner on December 4, 1933. They honeymooned in the bride's East Side apartment and planned a world cruise at the bride's expense.

On December 15 Miss Tufverson drew $25,000 from her bank accounts and sent a $5000 draft addressed to her husband at a London address, little suspecting that he had another wife there to receive it.

Early on the morning of December 20 bride and bridegroom taxied to a New York pier to board the S. S. Hamburg and start their tour. They quarrelled on the pier and the Hamburg sailed without them.

Miss Tufverson returned to her apartment and was seen there at 11 o'clock that night by a maid and was never seen again.

Poderjay was seen at the apartment two days later, took two big trunks from it and that night sailed on the Olympic. He was joined at Southampton by the wife who had received the draft, one Suzanne Ferrand, blonde and English.

On January 2 Poderjay wrote a cablegram stating "India bound," signed it "Agnes" and sent it to Miss Tufverson's sister, Sally. This allayed suspicions for five months, but on June 1 Sally told police they had better start looking for her sister.

The police found Poderjay on June 14 living in Vienna with Suzanne, who was wearing Miss Tufverson's clothes. The captain said his most recent bride had given him these clothes and also 1,200,000 dinars, which is not a big banquet, but a large sum of money in Serbia, Arabia and Persia.

Told of Hoax

The captain also said that Miss Tufverson, on that December 20 when she didn't sail on her honeymoon, left New York for Montreal after enlisting his aid in an elaborate hoax to make her family believe she had gone to Europe with him. She was to have rejoined him a month later in London, he said, but never appeared.

Poderjay's story only convinced police that murder had been done and he was held in Vienna, with his current wife, on suspicion of murder.

But there can be no murder case without a body. The two trunks with which Poderjay had left New York produced no clue. A woman's body was found in a trunk in England, but it was the wrong body and also the wrong trunk.

A test of the porthole of Poderjay's outside cabin on the Olympic showed that a body could have been pushed through it, but didn't prove that a body was pushed through it.

Poderjay spent six months in jail at Vienna while still another of his wives of the past appeared, this one to say he had vanished at the same time her $10,000 vanished. She was Mme. Zhivka, a Belgrade lady, who assured authorities Poderjay wouldn't harm a flea.

Except as a pretext for getting this self-proclaimed "slave of love" into their clutches for interrogation on a more serious subject, the New York police aren't greatly concerned with the bigamy or the perjury.

Mrs. Roosevelt Not Back of Townsend Plan

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 21—Mrs. Roosevelt was said at the White House today to have indicated disfavor toward the Townsend old age pension plan in her private correspondence.

The assertion was in response to inquiries that conveyed the impression she specifically endorsed the Townsend proposal to give persons over 60 a $200-a-month pension, to be spent within 30 days.

While Mrs. Roosevelt was said at the White House to have believed always that something should be done in the way of old age pensions, she was declared to be advocating no particular method.

In press conferences recently Mrs. Roosevelt declined to be quoted on the Townsend plan.

Dr. F. E. Townsend, of Long Beach, California, author of the $200-a-month plan, has opened headquarters here and begun enlisting the support of members of Congress.

Before leaving yesterday for New York, he called on Senator Norris (R-Neb.), and within the next few weeks hopes to interview most of the congressional leaders.

PROBERS TURN TO JUMP IN COST OF WARSHIPS

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 21—A thorough investigation of naval construction contracts within the last twoyears was decided upon today by the Senate munitions committee, after its investigators found evidence of an extraordinary increase in the cost of warships.

In 1933, the committee investigators reported, destroyers, for example, were built at an average cost of $8,000,000, while within recent months the price has advanced from $13,000,000 to $16,000,000.

One committee member stated neither the NRA nor any other phase of the governments recovery program justified the tremendous increase in construction costs of warships.

This inquiry, however, will be conducted after the holidays. Thee committee decided to wind up a few loose ends during the day and then adjourn until after Congress has convened.

Catholic School Plans New Classes

The Young Men's Catholic Association has just completed the first term of its silver anniversary year with a recording of one of the largest registrations for many years. The second term opens January 7. All of the 30 courses conducted by this school in the past will be offered.

A special course in civil service will be given, preparing directly for the clerical examinations which are to be held March 2.

Rotch Asks Extra Million for ERA

Washington, Dec. 21—Massachusetts ERA Administrator Arthur G. Rotch interviewed federal ERA head, Harry Hopkins, and other officials, in an endeavor to procure for Massachusetts an additional $1,000,000 with which to meet relief emergencies in his district during the winter.

'THE FRONT PAGE HOUND'

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

Indictment by ballyhoo!

This has become a well recognized weapon in our political life.

It has become a definite tool in the hands of the FRONT page hound.

The fact is that indictment by ballyhoo is a DIRTY TRICK.

R. W. Child

A headline such as "Senator Linked to the Baby Carriage Trust" may have as its only basis that the president of the company wrote a letter to some Senator asking for action against a birth control bill.

A headline, created by some publicity seeking investigating committee, to the effect of "MILLIONS MADE BY MACHINE GUN MAGNATES" may be founded upon the fact that over a long period and at a fair profit the United States government itself has been supplied by home industry with proper and needed armament.

"NAVAL RACE ENCOURAGED BY SHIPBUILDERS" may mean that some peanut politician, seeking limelight, has again yowled abroad the undoubted fact that, if private shipyards are to be in existence to build some of our needed defenses, they must have orders.

"BANKER ADMITS SLOW LOANS TO INDUSTRY" may mean that some hearing has brought out the truth that no applications for safe loans have been made.

"X Y-ZEE QUIZZED ON POSSIBLE DEFICIENCY IN TAX" does as much harm as news of conviction and yet may mean an investigation hatched by Mr. Zee's political enemies.

Age of Indignation

WE HAVE COME TO A PERIOD WHEN ANY TEN-CENT PUBLICITY SEEKER IN PUBLIC OFFICE CAN START A HUNDRED MILLION PEOPLE TO READING A HEADLINE INDICTMENT AND TO SHOUTING "OFF WITH HIS HEAD" AT ANY INNOCENT MAN UNFORTUNATE ENOUGH TO BE PROMINENT IN BUSINESS, POLITICS, BANKING OR MANUFACTURING.

Apparently this is THE AGE OF INDIGNATION.

It is the period for:—
INDICTMENT BY BALLYHOO.
It is the time for:—
CONVICTION BY NOISE.

Even in the old muckraking days at least THE FACTS were needed.

Today unfair government officials, political enemies, bullying district attorneys, blackmailers and hot-heads and above all CONGRESSIONAL FRONT-PAGE HOUNDS AND THE BRAIN TRUSTERS WHO ARE HOLIER THAN THOU can blast the reputations of decent men with hints, phrases, speeches, and TRICKS OF HEADLINE RABBLE-ROUSING.

What's the harm?

The harm is three-fold.

First of all, it is RANK INJUSTICE. Reputations of the innocent and the honest, individually and in classes, are BLASTED in public opinion without FACTS or without more than DIRTY INNUENDO.

And there is no COME BACK.

Secondly, public opinion, which today so needs SENSE and FAIR DEAL, is GOOSE STUFFED by NONSENSE and RAW DEAL.

Thirdly—and this is of importance—UNREST is AGITATED, MORE ROTTEN FODDER IS FED TO THE COMMUNIST BELLY AND MORE NEEDLESS FUEL HEAPED UPON ANY IGNORANT REVOLT AGAINST OUR AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS.

No one wants suppression of truth. Everyone wants evil and avarice and corruption OUT—like decayed teeth.

But now we have allowed the FRONT-PAGE HOUNDS AMONG OUR WASHINGTON SERVANTS to indict and convict innocent men before the court of public opinion because of "GUILT BY INSINUATION."

Today if a politician arises to point his finger at a man in the headlines with the accusation that his business is successful, that he has brown hair and once wrote a letter to a man later convicted of passing a red light, then:

THE FOOLISH PUBLIC SAYS "GUILTY."

AND THE COMMUNISTS SAY "GORGEOUS."

WE ARE ALLOWING PUBLICITY DRUNKARDS TO NEEDLESSLY FOUL OUR AMERICAN NEST.

BORAH'S PURGE PLAN ROUTED

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 21—A movement to force Henry P. Fletcher out of the chairmanship of the Republican national committee ran into a stone wall today when it became known that a poll of the committee showed 43 of the 48 states' representatives against the reorganization move.

A concession of defeat in this movement for what Senator Borah and others call "liberalization" of the party's high command came from a leader in the attempt, Senator Nye of North Dakota. He said:

"Nothing can be done to liberalize the national committee until 1936."

The canvass was conducted by some of the committtee members and all but five states—Minnesota, Montana, Idaho and the two Dakotas—had been heard from last night.

Borah had contended that a reorganization in 1936 would be too late. Fletcher was said to have challenged his foes to force a committee meeting under the 16-state rule if they had the strength they claimed.

Asked what he would do now, Borah merely said:

"I know what I'd do if I had the power. I'd elect another national committee."

Death Over Bread

JUNIOR AIRMEN ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW

With nearly 60 Junior Birdmen listed as contestants in the New England Indoor Model Plane Derby to be held at South Armory, 18 Irvington street, near Huntington avenue, on Saturday, December 29, the time for filing official entries will expire tomorrow. No entries will be accepted after midnight Saturday.

The members who have already filed their entries include all of New England's foremost model plane fliers, as well as beginners who are entering a tournament of this kind for the first time. For days these Junior Birdmen have been building the three types of model planes which will be flown for endurance records on the day of the contest. These types are the all-Balsa glider, the baby R. O. G. tractor, and the single stick propelled model.

WINNER GETS TRIP

The chief goal of the contestants will be the title of New England's champion model plane flier, the Boston wing championship trophy and the free trip to Detroit during Easter vacation week to compete in the national Junior Birdmen tournament. In addition, gold, silver and bronze medals and handsome certificates of proficiency will be awarded to the runners-up.

The winner of the national derby will receive the William Randolph Hearst trophy and his choice of $250 in cash or a tour of the United States or a trip to Europe.

MEET AT ARMORY

Attention of all contestants in the Boston tournament is called to the fact that the meet will be held in South Armory and not in Boston Garden as was originally arranged.

During the contest the contestants will be divided into four groups, each of whom will be directed by a timer and a judge. Upon arriving at South Armory, the contestant will first report to the registrar's desk where he will receive a tag bearing the number of the timer to whom he will report.

The contestant will then unpack his models and present them to the inspection table. The models will then be checked for conformity with wing area and other specifications laid down in the rules. When the models have been approved and stamped, the contestant will report to his timer.

NRA TO TIGHTEN UP ON CODES

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 21—The Washing Post says NRA plans to create 10 or more regional administrative agencies to tighten up on code compliance by such service industries as hotels, cleaners, barbers and laundries.

The drastic reorganization to spur the enforcement of labor provisions affecting 3,000,000 workers is expected to be announced before January 1.

Price Fixing provisions, stricken out of the service codes by Presidential order last May, are not to be restored under the plan.

'Atomic Force' Is Sermon Subject

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.

The Golden Tex is: "Lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name."

Bullfighter Asks $300,000 for "Bullthrower" Tag

By Universal Service

New York, Dec. 21—Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn boy, who became one of Spain's bullfighters, took the stand in Supreme Court here in an effort to collect $300,000 from Columbia Pictures, Inc., for referring to him as a "bull-thrower" in a movie.

The case came up before Justice Carew, who sat in the Gloria Vanderbilt custody matter last month. In response to Carew's questioning, Franklin said he understood "throwing the bull" means "to lie glibly." The picture on which the suit is based was called "Throwing the Bull," and in it Franklin strode across the screen as a voice said:

"Now, folks, meet Sidney Franklin, one of the greatest bull-throwers, er-er, I mean bull-fighters, born under the sunny skies of Brooklyn."

All through the picture Sidney, more of a popular idol in Spain than Babe Ruth in the United States, took alleged jabs of the gag-man who wrote the running comment.

Julge Carew himself attempted to fashion an analogy between bull-fighting and beef stew and, as spectators tittered, asked the matador:

"Ever attend the bull fighting university in Mexico City?"

Franklin answered:

"The only bull-fighting university is being bounced around the ring."

Judge Carew will view the picture today and decide whether the "insults" are worth $300,000 to Spain's great matador.

JUROR TELLS OF REFUSING 'EASY CASH'

Over a bottle of wine at his home, two men approached a Chelsea juror on a case in which Lowell A. Mayberry was counsel. The juror testified today at the new disbarment hearing against Attorney Mayberry in Supreme Court.

The juror, Angelo Martino of 39 Beacon street, Chelsea, said he turned down an offer to make some easy money but that after the men had left, his wife found a $5 bill under the bottle of wine.

He said they offered $50 to influence his deliberations as a juror in the "Bryne vs. the Town of Barnstable," case, which was tried by Attorney Mayberry in October, 1930. Under cross-examination he said he believed the $5 might have been left to pay for wine.

He added that he could not identify either of the two men.

As the hearing drew to a close Attorney Herbert L. Barrett of Malden, associated with Attorney Mayberry in several cases, testified that he knew of no jury fixing or even approaches in the Bryne case.

Frank Oatley, who yesterday testified that two "fixers" promised him a Christmas present to influence his deliberations as a juror in 1931, today identified one of the men as John C. Nolan of Cambridge.

Testimony given by Oatley's wife at the first disbarment hearing was read into the record after Judge Henry T. Lummus was told she was in Maine.

Judge Lummus ordered a special session of court tomorrow in the hope of completing the case before the Christmas holidays.

JUDGE UPHOLDS HALL WILL

Salem, Dec. 21—Judge Edward B. O'Brien today upheld the contested will of Captain Frank H. Hall, former Gloucester skipper, in probate court. The will, which disposes of a $32,000 estate, was contested by a son, Ralph, who received $100, and a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Moore of Beverly, who got $500.

The residue was left to a second daughter, Miss Grace M. Hall, who cared for her father and his home. Her brother and sister charged that she had exerted undue influence on him and that she had staged wild parties in his home.

Judge O'Brien also denied counsel fees to Elmer Callahan, attorney for the contestants.

Envoy's Son Hurt on Liner in Gale

Le Havre, France, Dec. 21 (INS)—Tossed and pounded by Atlantic storms that sunk two ships, the United States liner Washington steamed into port today with many bruised passengers.

Robert Straus of New York, son of Jesse Isidor Straus, American ambassador to France, had eight stitches taken in one of his legs which was cut when he was hurled to the deck.

'SPY' GIRL FACED WITH HOLIDAY ON SEA

New York, Dec. 21—Homeward bound for a holiday reunion, Elizabeth Steele, American girl, who for several weeks was held in jail in Germany on charges of suspicion of espionage, today faced the prospect of celebrating Christmas on the high seas.

Elizabeth Steele

The liner President Harding, on which Miss Steele left Germany, was due to dock here today, but her master radioed that the ship has been bucking mountainous seas and may not reach here until Sunday and possibly not until Tuesday.

Other in-bound liners also reported they would be delayed.

Pay Restoration Backed

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—A bill to restore full government pay January 1 was proposed today by the American Federation of Labor wage restoration committee.

NEW PROBE OF TUNNEL LAND

Mayor Mansfield, standing pat today on a statement that he had no comment to make on the Boston Finance Commission's "blast" on land awards for the East Boston Tunnel, disclosed that Attorney George R. Farnum, was being paid $250 a week as special investigator.

The Finance Commission declared that it had found that speculators had realized profits of $707,830 on property taken in connection with construction of the tunnel.

Attorney Farnum, special counsel for the commission further stated that:

"Some very significant real estate transactions relating to the project took place between these two dates—April 4 and 16, 1930."

Governor-elect Curley was mayor of this city at that time.

The next governor, told of the commission's publication, merely remarked:

"I am not interested. I suppose the finance commissioners are trying to justify their existence before I remove them. Well, that will be extremely difficult in view of their performance before election.

As far as "removal" was concerned, Representative-elect Irving Lewis has already filed a bill providing for abolition of the Finance Commission.

$75,000 AWARD FOR STONEHAM

David Stoneham, Boston and Brookline attorney, was awarded $75,000 against the Fox Film Corporation of New York today in a sealed verdict returned by a Middlesex county jury.

Stoneham sued for $250,000 on the ground that alleged false representations by the film company prevented him from collecting $200,000 in commissions for rental of leases to a number of theaters.

After three weeks of involved testimony, the jury was given the case at 1:35 yesterday afternoon. They deliberated until 3 a. m. this morning before a verdict was reached.

Fourth Tennessee Riot Victim Dies

Shelbyville, Tenn., Dec. 21 (AP)—Floyd (Pat) Lawes, 28, a city firemen, died in a Shelbyville hospital today of wounds received Wednesday when National Guardsmen fired into a crowd around the court house while a mob was trying to storm the building for a Negro prisoner. Lawes was the fourth fatality.

Two men were killed the day of the outbreak and Gilford Freeman, a machinist, died late yesterday.

Christmas Candy Stolen at School

Practically none of the Christmas spirit lives in the thief who broke into the Blackinton School at Leyden and Blackinton streets, East Boston, for this thief stole all the candy that was to be given to the school children at a school Christmas party.

The thief also stole the cookies that were to help make up the Christmas bags—but Santa Claus has a way of fooling everybody. More candy and more cookies have been provided.

BATTLE FOR CHILD OF ANN HARDING

By International News Service

Reno, Dec. 21—The first legal gun of the battle of Ann Harding, blonde screen star, to obtain sole custody of her six-year-old daughter, Jane, was fired today.

Notice of intention to move for modification of the divorce decree obtained here from Harry Bannister, actor, was filed with Morley Griswold, now Governor of Nevada, who represented Bannister when the divorce was granted two years ago.

The notice sets January 3 as the date for the formal application, which will ask for sole custody of the child for the mother.

Under the existing divorce decree, Miss Harding has Jane for 10 months of the year and Banister is entitled to her custody for the other two months.

Bannister, now in New York, has indicated he will fight the attempted modification.

Betty Boyd Gets Cash Settlement

Los Angeles, Dec. 21—A final divorce decree here settled the tangled marital affairs of Betty Boyd, screen actress, and her wealthy stockbroker husband, Charles Henry Over, Jr.

Judge Robert W. Kenny approved a property settlement which grants Miss Boyd one-half her husband's holdings in a gas company and other property.

Martin Insull Case Up to Jury

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP)—The $344,720 embezzlement case against Martin Insull was given to a jury in criminal court at 12:50 o'clock this morning. After three hours' deliberation the jury was locked up at 3:50 a. m.

PLAN TO HALVE POWER BILLS

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 21—A cut of about 50 per cent in the electricity bill of America was described today as the ultimate goal of the Roosevelt power program.

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the federal power commission, made this declaration, emphasizing that accomplishment of the aim cannot be expected for several years.

After Secretary Ickes made known he is considering an effort to find public works funds for proposed municipal plans in other cities besides New York, McNinch declared rates to be excessive "in most of the larger cities."

Negotiations already have been started by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia looking toward a grant for the erection of a power plant for the metropolis.

Plans for public works financing of a municipal plant in Columbus, Ohio, have received approval. Others are being discussed.

Lady Forbes to Honeymoon in U.S.

Newtown Forbes, Irish Free State, Dec. 21 (AP)—A wedding trip to Palm Beach, Fla., was planned today by Comte Louis de Brantes and his bride, the former Lady Moira Forbes, whom he married yesterday.

After a Christmas in Ireland, the couple will start for the United States with the new year. The comtesse is a niece of Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the United States Treasury.

New Fight Looms on Senate Control

In a last attempt to give back to the Democrats an even distribution with the Republicans in Senate membership, James P. Meehan, of Lawrence, filed a petition in the Senate to give the seat from the first Essex district to Joseph B. Clancy, Democrat, of Lynn. The Supreme Judicial Court recently declared Albert Cole, Republican, elected.

United States he would sooner or later realize that he had played the part of an absolute idiot, although this unprotected country would have considerable difficulty, at first.

Mayor La Guardia will build a municipal power plant for New York city, to end alleged extortionate charges, and may make it big enough to supply all citizens, saving them tens of millions a year while making it possible for the city to reduce taxes.

In former times the suggestion would have been ridiculous. Utility owners would have asked, smiling:

"Mayor La Guardia, where will you get the money? Will any bank finance you, since all banks hold our securities?"

But Uncle Sam himself is in business. New York's mayor expects to get money to fight private ownership of public monopolies from the national government. One hundred and eight million dollars mean little to Uncle Sam.

With big automobile shows not far away, statistics supplied by Motor, organ of the automobile industry, interest us all.

More than a million passenger cars were scrapped in 1934 and, in spite of that, the number in use increased by 900,000. That is the first automobile gain since 1929, a most encouraging sign. It brings the total number of automobiles in operation above the 1928 figures.

The administration will be pleased to know that its "encouragement of agriculture is reflected in automobile purchases." States that lead in automobile increase are all cotton and other farming states: South Carolina, increased 25.9 per cent; Wyoming, 21.7; Arizona, 19.8; Florida, 18.2; Montana, 18.1; Oregon, 16; North Carolina, 14.8, and Georgia, 14.7.

Farmers get more money, thanks to the administration, and they have been spending it, most wisely, buying new automobiles.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Debutantes Peddle Greens Along Charity's Highway

By Betty Alden

THE USUALLY AUSTERE and dignified countenances of Beacon Hill's sombre brownstone houses were surprised and even a little shocked yesterday morning to witness the uncommon spectacle of some of the season's debutantes trudging the narrow streets and pushing doorbells to peddle their wares . . . the expressions of surprise changed to welcome when the "wares" were revealed to be artistically adorned wreathes and other Christmas greens to enliven the hallways and hang under the exquisite fan-lights of these old mansions . . .

SUSAN DALTON

As we cruised along in the wake of the Ford Beverly wending its way through the narrow streets, we watched the girls unload piles of holly, mistletoe and evergreens to add a touch of woodland Christmas to the urban byways of the Hill . . . It was the annual sale of greens held for the Little House, a settlement house in South Boston, in which many society women are interested . . .

* * *

Mary Bryant in Group

Having an abundance of Christmas spirit ourselves we couldn't resist making a purchase and interrupted Celina Robbins' dash up a pair of front steps to buy our evergreens . . . Her cheeks rosy from the fresh cool wind and the excitement of the pilgrimage, Celina was a picture in a French blue tweed coat with a little brown hat . . .

A gayly colored scarf escaped at the neckline of Mary Bryant's brown checked coat as she hurried to deliver a bunch of mistletoe to a customer at No. 27 on one of the byways and Maria Ducey chose to wear no hat as she scampered from house to house . . . Also heedless of the chilly winds and bareheaded was Sue Dalton, though she was warmly clad in black furs . . .

Dark eyed Polly Wardwell must have had an effective sales line and it would be a hard hearted person who could resist the pleadings of Barbara McKissock, a stunning blonde, whose morning costume was a rust angora sweater under a tweed coat of brownish hue and a brown felt hat . . .

Molly Bowditch was another artful saleslady and Frances Holmes, Sue Crocker, Helen Foster, Cora Peabody, Ellen Gray and Alice Spaulding were others in the door-to-door canvass . . .

* * *

Debutantes Off for Winter Sports

AT THE SHOP OF GREENS opened, under the auspices of the Little House at 30 Charles street, Mrs. Leavitt C. Parsons, presided all day, with the assistance of Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Jr., in an appropriate green dress; Mrs. Thomas N. Gray, who is planning a New Year's Day tea for her debutante daughter, and Miss Mary Curtis, 2nd . . .

Many of the debs can hardly wait to see what Santa Claus brings them before they dash off for winter sports at Lake Placid, Poland Springs and Canada . . . Eleanor Claflin has her bag almost all packed with her gay ski trousers and stocking caps for the house party which she will attend right after the holiday in Woodstock, Vermont . . . Mrs. William Bradford Robbins will chaperone this lively group, which will include her own daughter, Miss Celina Robbins; Elise Russell and Daphne Brooks . . .

* * *

Late yesterday afternoon we were in the ship's company which sailed aboard the S. S. Somerset on a cruise to the land of Christmas Cheer . . . Mr. Walter M. Pratt, the captain, had his craft, complete even to riding lights and life preservers, so crowded with passengers that the bulwarks were awash . . . A deckful of Jolly Tars in white uniforms, with "Sammy" as their leader, played for dancing, while a small bar in the stern was a vantage point from which to watch the procession of passengers . . . All of this, for the benefit of those who do not possess passports for this annual cruise, was the Christmas party given by that ingenuous host, Colonel Pratt, in his suite at the Somerset.

* * *

Mrs. Walter Atherton in Black Velvet

TO BE SEEN AMONG the rollicking pirates and their ladies were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison, the latter in a very seasonable red lame dress; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Claflin, and Mrs. Robert Cushman, who complimented Mrs. Morison's Christmasy color with her Yuletide green metal cloth . . . Bill Chamberlain is always smooth, whether as a master of ceremonies or as a dashing buccaneer and yesterday's performance was no exception . . .

Wearing a lawn green dress, Miss Elizabeth Leland paced the decks with Pirate Blake and that dashing seaman, Arthur Drinkwater . . . Mrs. Walter Atherton, in a formal afternoon gown of black velvet, assisted at the table piled high with tempting hors d'oeuvres and ices . . . Others who served in this capacity were attractive Mrs. Langdon Sullivan of Weston, Mrs. W. Elliott Pratt, a youthful matron of Boston; Mrs. Franklin Hobbs and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer . . .

Mrs. Ronald Lyman

In a stunning gray woolen outfit, a band of mink edging the hat, Mrs. Ronald Lyman was every inch a candidate for "best-dressed" lady . . . Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Jr., whose husband is in reality an ardent sailor, was there in a pale green frock, and others whose names were added to the ship's Log are Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Allen, the latter very cordial and friendly and gowned in brown lame; General and Mrs. Malvern Hill Barnum, General and Mrs. Daniel Needham, George Henderson, Mrs. Walter I. Badger, Mrs. Harry Hines, whose unusual chapeaux was fashioned on the lines of an old-fashioned poke bonnet . . .

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MISS MARTHA SEABURY, of Weston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Parson at the Parsons' winter home in Pinehurst, N. C.

College Dance

THE ANNUAL CHRISTMAS week dance of the Alpha Lambda Chapter of Emmanuel College will be held at the Andover Country Club on Thursday evening, December 27. This event rivals the Thanksgiving dance of the alumnae in brilliance and is under the direction of Miss Mary Bradley of Lawrence. Miss Bradley is assisted by Elizabeth Sullivan, president of the Lawrence Chapter and Helen Cox, Tolla Mulligan and Catherine Quinn.

This chapter is one of the pioneer clubs of Emmanuel College and its members are always generously assisted by the Boston alumnae. Among the coterie of the local alumnae who are ably working for the success of the evening and sweet charity are Miss Catherine Delaney of Medford, Miss Sue Murdock of Chelsea and Miss Muriel Lambert of Belmont.

* * *

DELTA CHAPTER, Pi Omicron National Sorority of Boston, held its annual Christmas party on Friday evening at the home of Arleen Buswell in Arlington. Gifts were distributed and varied and novel entertainment was provided. Mary Kerrigan, chairman of the committee, played the role of Santa Claus.

On Visit

AN INAUGURAL RECEPTION and ball for James M. Curley and Miss Mary Curley on January 3, will be given by the First Corps Cadets, at the Cadet Armory at 9 o'clock. Mr. Curley, as governor of the state, will then assume command as commander-in-chief of the corps.

* * *

MRS. HARVEY JONES of Paris, France, is visiting in Boston, en route to Washington and was a guest last evening of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Higgins at their home with the blue door.

POST-DEB BOOSTS PLAY

IN RADIO TALK

MISS DOROTHY LAWRENCE, past president of the Boston Junior League and co-chairman of the entertainment committee, will speak over the radio Sunday evening at 8 o'clock on Station WEEI in the interest of "Master Skylark.

In a five-minute talk she will sketch the plot of the play to be put on by the Junior League Players at the Repertory Theater on the afternoons of December 26, 27 and 28, and will explain the worthiness of the cause which it supports, "The Community Health Association."

Miss Lawrence will speak some time during the Jenney hour, at which Ruby Newman is master of ceremonies.

Society Notes

MISS OCTAVIA CHATARD'S many Boston friends will be pleased to note that she has returned home to Baltimore after the busy round of engagements which preceded and followed Ruth Edmand's party last week. On the way home Miss Chatard spent a few days in Orange, N. J., at a house party given by Mr. and Mrs. Farley Cox.

* * *

THE MISSES DOROTHY AND ALICE FRIEND of Winchester, will be the week-end guests of Rev. and Mrs. Whitemarsh of Pawtucket, R. I.

ELIZABETH DOWNS MAKES BOW

Charity Ball at Wellesley Tonight

MISS ISABELLA LEE, one of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lee of Wellesley, is expected to return home from Bennington College today in time to attend the annual Wellesley charity ball this evening.

The Wellesley Friendly Association is sponsoring the ball which is to be held in Alumnae Hall of Wellesley College. Miss Marion H. Niles is chairman of the committee. Assisting Miss Niles are Mrs. Stillman F. Kelley, 2d, in charge of tickets; Mrs. Paul Garland, decorations; Mrs. Frederick A. Stanwood, ushers, and Mrs. Kenneth McDougall, publicity.

Many parties will precede the dance, Mrs. Harold L. Niles and Miss Marion Niles will entertain at a dinner at the Wellesley Country Club, as will Mrs. Arthur Colburn, and Mrs. Arthur L. Stevenson. Others who have engaged boxes and will entertain before the dance are Mrs. John C. Lee, mother of Isabella; Mrs. Marshall G. Bolster Mrs. Carlton Simmons, Mrs. Jesse A. Drew, Mrs. Sydney M. Williams, Mrs. J. Donald McKinney, Mrs. Winthrop G. Dow and Mrs. Samuel Lamson.

Luncheon for Debutante at Somerset

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH E. DOWNS formally presented their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Downs, this afternoon at a luncheon, which proved to be one of the largest and most interesting on the social calendar for several weeks.

With her mother, Miss Downs received her many guests, and they were many, numbering almost 70.

Miss Downs was becomingly gowned in red metal cloth, with a black hat and a corsage of talisman roses and bouvardia. Mrs. Downs wore black with silver cloth trimming, a black velvet hat and a corsage of camellias.

Among the many girls who attended this luncheon, which was at the Hotel Somerset, were several of Miss Downs' classmates at Smith College; Miss Peggy Hale of Los Angeles, Calif.; Miss Katherine Brown of Plainfield, N. J.; Miss Mary Wishan, Miss Priscilla Anderson and Miss Mary Bacon, all came down from Northampton for the occasion. Miss Margaret Tyng, another Smith student, who is to be honored tomorrow at a luncheon at the Loring-Greenough house in Jamaica Plain, was also present.

Miss Barbara Allen, Miss Jane Kelly, Miss Jean Wheeler, Miss Nancy Cox and Miss Helen Hadley are all Boston debutantes who enjoyed the Downs' hospitality.

Statler Fete Aids Crippled Children

MR. AND MRS. BRADBURY F. CUSHING is arranging for a Christmas party to be held in the ballroom foyer of the Hotel Statler, at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, December 22, under the auspices of the Boston Speech School for Crippled Children.

MISS PARSONS SHARES MIKE

GALA AIR SHOW BY HOLLYWOOD FAVORITES

By THE EARCUPPER

Dramatic highlights from the new picture starring Clark Gable, come to the loudspeaker patrons this evening (WNAC) as part of the "Hollywood Hotel" presentation, there between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m. Clark Gable himself will do the leading role honors, assisted by no less than the whimsical Stuart Irwin.

In addition the 60-minute film colony 'mike' setting is to feature numerous tunes from new screen productions. Louella Parsons, distinguished movie columnist and critic of this newspaper, also occupies the program spotlight, along with Dick Powell, the Ted Fio Rito orchestra and vocal ensemble members.

Clark Gable

Those top-notch boxing bouts at Boston Garden tonight where Jack Dempsey, Max Baer and Jack Sharkey have referee duties to perform, the scrap-show being under Boston American Christmas Basket Fund auspices, are on the schedule for radio description. Facilities of WAAB and WMEX carry the doings.

* * *

Early evening listeners (WNAC) can catch an earful of the gala Plymouth Rock Anniversary celebration, to be on the air from 6.15 to 6.30 p. m. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will deliver the principal address.

* * *

RELIGIOUS REFLECTION

Yuletide atmosphere pervades the "First Nighter" half hour tonight (WBZ) when "Little Town of Bethlehem" holds forth on the stroke of 10 o'clock.

* * *

Jessica Dragonette, supported by the Rosario Bourdon orchestra, likewise lends her voice this evening to the Christmas theme. Solos by the popular soprano, include Easthope Martin's "The Holy Child" and a special arrangement of "The Night Before Xmas" during which rendition a selected male quartet group will provide the background.

* * *

GOV-ELECT CURLEY

Another airing designed to commemorate the Pilgrims Landing in New England, originates behind WMEX studio walls tonight from 8:30 until 9 o'clock. Governor-elect James M. Curley heads the list of speakers.

* * *

Fray and Braggiotti, the well known network two-piano team, choose a medley of melodies from the "Follies of 1919" with which to occupy their 8 to 8:15 turn (WAAB) this evening. Ditties such as "Tulip Time" and "Mandy" are among those due for treatment by the keyboard pair.

DOMESTIC DILEMMA

That weekly "Court of Human Relations" wafting promises an impression called "A House Divided" which has to do with the age old step-mother and step-father complications. That's available (WNAC) between 8 30 and 9 o'clock.

Radio Questions and Right Answers

How long has the team of "Amos 'n' Andy" been working together? L. J. W. of Winchester.

They have been partners in their present air act for almost six years and were "Sam and Henry" for two years before that and were doing vaudeville turns for a year or so ahead of the latter doings.

* * *

Is it true that Kate Smith is a dancer and did belong to the chorus of a musical comedy production on the stage at one time? Not Sure, of Neponset.

Kate Smith

Kate never was a professional dancer although she does dance extremely well and often demonstrates her terpsichorean talent for the sick in hospitals. Her work has been singing. She was doing a specialty with the "Flying High" footlight presentation.

* * *

Do they use real water in studios when a "scene" indicates that it is raining?

M. E. K. of Newton.

Usually, the sound effect to make the falling of rain realistic, is created by sprinkling grains of sand on a large sheet of cellophane.

* * *

Is the voice of Irene Taylor still on the air? I do not mean Estelle of the films, but Irene the songstress. If so, on what station?

Irene has been singing irregularly of late, over NBC network stations. Word comes this week that Ben Bernie has signed her to solo with his orchestra permanently. Incidentally, the "old maestro" doesn't deny it, so undoubtedly it's true.

Address your Radio Questions to The Radio Editor, Boston Evening American, and the information you seek will be set forth here.

This Ear--That Air

By N. F. T.

According to advance word in hand, the backers of broadcasting, namely the sponsors, are going to all but eliminate commercial cries from offerings that fill the four winds on Christmas Day. Many of them mention the fact in a way that would lead one to suspect that they figure on being praised in print by virtue of the decision.

At least they will find mention made of it generally, up and down the land. However, it isn't any more than they should do certainly. What's more it will be interesting to note how hard and fast the adherence to their well intended pledges throughout the morning till night schedules next Tuesday. In fact, if any excess selling exuberence whatever is evidenced that day, program planners responsible may expect caustic criticism aplenty.

"N. F. T."

Scanning the slate that bears tidings of what's in the dial deal, for tonight these eyes just fell on the name J David Stern who speaks (WBZ) come 9 o'clock. Newspaper publisher of parts and a veritable human dynamo of energy, Mr Stern chooses "The Employer in the Changing World," which, by the way, should make good listening for boss men and workers alike. Newspaper publishers have a keen conception of labor problems that is possibly a bit broader in scope than that of men in most industrial lines of endeavor. Incidentally the same gentleman also happens to be a New York and Philadelphia press proprietor and an executive with which this typewriter tapper was priveleged to serve back in 1920. He was always 100 per cent for his help in those days. It's revaluated dollars to proverbial doughnuts he hasn't since changed his humanitarian attitude one particle

Letters from loudspeaker patrons indicate that the piece "Stars Fell on Alabama Last Night" would be more enjoyable if singers would put slightly added pep into the rendition, rather than meaning the verses in funeral tones . . . Some shifting of Sunday night hours comes to pass after Jan. 1 . . . Those two classic concert hours that clash (WBZ and WNAC) as of 8 o'clock, every Sabbath evening are to be separated. The Detroit doings push up to 9 o'clock, thus making room for the new Eddie Cantor entry and likewise giving the symphony lovers an opportunity to hear the two operatic offerings mentioned . . . Kidding Graham McNamee by Ed Wynn has been ordered out henceforth, which is also likely to take a lot of life out of the show methinks, and so does Ed Wynn. More on that score another day . . . Mildred Bailey is making ready to leave that "Plantation Echoes" quarter hour, leaving Willard Robinson and his 'deep river" orchestra to just keep rollin' along.

No matter what the network announcer said about the quintuplets program not being on the air last night, it WAS heard, but over a Canadian station and not the CBS chain. Thus the last minute alibi.

Los Angeles, Dec. 21—Hurrying back to dear old Hollywood after a triumphal six months in New York and on tour, is Grace Moore. She and her husband, Valentin Parera, reach here today to spend Christmas and to talk over Grace's next picture, "On Wings of Song," by Sidney Buchman, with Harry Cohn. Of course, Victor Schertzinger will again direct her.

A Line or Two

Barbara Blair (Snooey) radio singer who was much publicized when she came to Hollywood but who hasn't, to my knowledge, made a picture, is leaving for London the day after Christmas. She is appearing in a show there. The Vienna Boys' Choir booked for a Philharmonic appearance has been grabbed by Paramount for "The Big Broadcast." Mady Christians spends Christmas in New York, returning to star in Eddie Goulding's first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Flame Within." Ernst Lubitsch is looking for a story for Marlene Dietrich with action and so far hasn't found one that he feels is suitable. Bodil Rosing, I am happy to say, will have a big part in "The King of the Ritz" for Warner Brothers.

Uptown's Bill

On the new program opening tomorrow at the Uptown is "The Pursuit of Happiness," comedy of Revolutionary days, with Francis Lederer, Joan Bennett, Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland in featured roles. The film was adapted from the stage hit of the same name and revolves around the quaint custom of "bundling."

On the same program is "Great Expectations," Dickens' masterpiece, with Henry Hull, Florence Reed and Philip Holmes in the leading roles.

Foreign Picture Epics Coming to Fine Arts in Next Month

Following the engagement of Clarence Darrow's much discussed film "The Mystery of Life," which opened at the Fine Arts yesterday, a further series of distinguished and exceptional photoplays is booked for early showing under the sponsorship of the Adult Educational Council.

On Christmas Day, "Man of Aran," the Robert Flaherty film taken on the Aran Islands off the west coast of Ireland, and winner of the Mussolini cup in competition with films from all countries, will take over the Fine Arts screen.

Among the international film hits to follow is Jeritza's first film, "Countess Alexandria." The famous prima donna appears as the star of a musical romance, with a score by Franz Lehar; Leo Slezak heads the supporting cast, and the film has been directed by William Thiele in Vienna.

Film [illegible] first English talking film made in France and based on the novel by Pierre Louys, "The Adventures of King Pausole," the merry monarch with 366 wives; Conrad Veidt in "The Wandering Jew," the first Chaplin film with an English dialogue, "Don Quixote," the Soviet film "Three Songs About Lenin," Elisabeth Bergner in "Ariane," and Lilian Harvey in a musical film entitled "Quick the Crown," are scheduled for engagements at the Fine Arts in the near future.

Handel and Haydn Society in Program Featuring Carols

The Handel and Haydn Society, in their 860th public concert, with Frieda Hempel as soloist, presented a program of Christmas Carols last evening at Symphony Hall, under the direction of Dr. Thompson Stone.

With William Zeuch at the organ and William Burbank as accompanist at the piano, a group of Yuletide carols, some new and some old, comprised the timely and often stirring program, heard by an audience that made up in friendliness what it lacked in number.

As always the group showed the results of their splendid training; choral and chorus singing needs balance and precision and Dr. Stone and the singers have been most successful in developing both.

An amazingly slim and blonde Miss Hempel sang Christmas songs in French, German and English. While her voice has not the resonance and sweetness that memories of her famous "Tales of Hoffman" bring back, it must be remembered that there is nothing more trying and difficult than these simple melodies. Hempel has the same charm and presence and handles her voice beautifully.

Among the carols was "The Holy Star," a composition by Boston's Mabel Daniels, sung for the first time here. The familiar "Holy Night" and "Adeste Fideles" brought the program to a close.

At Tremont

At the Tremont today and tomorrow, "It Happened One Night," co-starring Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert and "Best of Enemies," with Frank Morgan and Marian Nixon, are the screen attractions. Comedy features and the current news reel complete the program.

Louella O. Parsons' column of Hollywood news is a daily feature of the Boston Evening American.

LAUREL AND HARDY SCORE AT STATE -:- WAR AND MUSIC THEMES ON SCREEN

Acting Honors Go to Mady Christians

By JOYCE DANA

The screen debut of a new personality, and the return of two of the kings in the realm of comedy, combine to make up the pre-holiday bill at Loew's State.

In the finest and funniest characterizations they have had an opportunity to offer, Laurel and Hardy, the inseparable ham and eggs of movie comedy, clown their way through the new version of Victor Herbert's popular operetta, "Babes in Toyland." On the same program, Mady Christians, whose fame up until now has been in Europe and in the legitimate theater, makes her American stage debut in "A Wicked Woman."

Mady Christians

A few pleasing anachronisms bring the Herbert musical comedy up to a strictly 1934 version. The three little pigs, quite as delightful and just as busy as Walt Disney ever made them, lend their presence, and a captivating and tiny Mickie Mouse scampers busily through Toyland, along with all the old favorite Mother Goose characters. Some of the grand Herbert melodies are there, too, sung splendidly by Virginia Karns and by Felix Knight as Tom, the Piper's son, who obligingly falls in love with Bo-Peep, who in turn is the eldest daughter of the Old Lady Who Lives in the Shoe.

Through all the nursery rhymes, Laurel and Hardy wander as a couple of apprentice toy-makers. They're the ones who discover Elmer, the nice little porker who's been "pignapped" by that old meanie, Mr. Barnaby, a role incidentally played with gusto by 22-year-old Henry Kleinbach. There's just enough slapstick to make the comics feel at home; and for once a fine bit of directorial discrimination keeps them from repeating comedy stunts ad nauseam. [illegible] really a riot, and the delightfully fantastic tale, while it's [illegible] for the younger generation, [illegible] its bogey-land and its happily-ever-after conclusion, nevertheless appealed to the grown-ups [illegible] the State yesterday who seemed to find it equally intriguing and gave it a brisk round of applause.

Pretty little Charlotte Henry, who did so well by "Alice in Wonderland," adds Bo-Peep to her [illegible] of nursery favorites, [illegible] certainly seem to suit her [illegible] charms.

In "A Wicked Woman," Miss Christians reveals herself as a mature and skilled actress, in the story of a woman who was driven to murder a vicious husband to protect her babies. Looking a bit like the Ethel Barrymore of a decade ago, Miss Christians steers safely away from the dangerous shoals of sentimentalism, and in a strong drama establishes herself as a decided addition to the Hollywood ranks. It's a welcome change to encounter something more substantial among screen newcomers than so many of the vapid ingenues whose pretty faces and figures are apparently their only recommendations.

Charles Bickford as the faithful friend is unaffected and strongly masculine, and the widow's engaging family of boys and girls includes Jean Parker, Betty Furness, William Henry and George Billings. If the story is a bit ovedrawn, we may be grateful for the fact that commendable restraint has been brought to the somewhat impossible court-room scene, and that throughout Miss Christians brings poise and dignity to another of the "Ruth-Chatterton-martyr-type" of role.

Romans Fete 94 Mothers, All Champs

By Associated Press

Rome, Dec. 21—Italy's most prolific mothers, 94 of them, began their second annual celebration in Rome today as guests of Premier Benito Mussolini.

Since each represented a province, with two from Rome, the affair had some aspects of a national get-together of beauty queens in the United States. Italy however, frowns on beauty contests since the idea of the champion mothers was evolved.

The champion mothers were chosen for the number of healthy children in their families, and those with less than eight were not even in the running.

SEVENTY YEARS WED,

COUPLE FETED

By Associated Press

Northampton, Dec. 21—Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bardwell celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary here today.

The couple were married on Dec 21, 1864, in Shelburne Falls, where Mr. Bardwell was born on June 5 1842. They moved here, in 1873 where Bardwell was employed until he retired at the age of 77. Mrs. Bardwell, 90, was born in New York city.

They have two sons: Earl, of Great Falls, Mont., and Ralph of Florence.

Join the merry holiday throngs!

They are all bound for either the Central Square Theater, Cambridge, or the Embassy Theater Waltham. At these two popular M & P theaters, beginning tomorrow, you will spend many hours of entertainment viewing "The Pursuit of Happiness," featuring two of today's "About Faces" stars.

At the famous Central Square Theater the co-feature is "Gridiron Flash," featuring Eddie Quillan and Betty Furness. At the Embassy Theater, Waltham, the co-feature is "The Firebird." The usual selected short subjects complete a splendid pre-holiday bill at both houses.

To successfully become a winner in the "About Faces" series by Art. Moger, and share in the weekly $25 in weekly cash awards as given by the Boston Evening American you must follow these simple rules. After visiting the above mentioned theaters you will receive clues to the identities of the favorite Hollywood stars as they appear in the drawing. Fill in their names in the squares beneath their pictures. These squares equal the number of letters in their names. Use the letter clue as a guide and mail your ENTIRE week's solutions to: The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Remember today's Pre-view drawing!

It will bring you a real pleasant holiday, especially if it means winning a cash prize!

Watch for last week's "ABOUT FACES" winners tomorrow.

Schubert Love Is Revealed in Film

By ANN AMES

In marked contrast, two pictures inaugurated the pre-holiday bill at the [illegible] the [illegible]mount and Fenway yesterday.

"The [illegible] World War," secret films [illegible] the archives of the nations [illegible] in the great conflict [illegible] impressively and [illegible] edited to make one. And the romantic life of the [illegible] composer, Franz Schubert [illegible] more provided an [illegible] song of love, with [illegible] in one of his [illegible] and striking performances [illegible] the other.

"The First World War" has been [illegible] by Laurence Stallings who came back from France with only one leg [illegible], and [illegible] wrote "[illegible]" one of the most terrible [illegible] collaborated on "What Price [illegible]" and wrote the picture scenario for "The Big Parade."

[illegible] back in the good old pre-war [illegible] when [illegible] Germany's Kaiser, and [illegible] the queens of two great nations [illegible] for the last time, the film has been hailed as powerful [illegible] propaganda, revealing the [illegible] and horrors of war, and [illegible] a stern and gruesome warning to the coming generation. In a measure it succeeds.

Here are no rigged-up Hollywood [illegible], but actual happenings [illegible] power behind the thrones and behind the armies; the Kaiser and the Crown Prince, von Hindenburg, Kitchener, Joffre, Foch, Pershing, England's King and the boy Prince of Wales, the unhappy Franz Joseph, Diaz and Czar Nicholas with the last of the Romanoffs; Wilson and the then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, make up the album of portraits behind the scenes.

It's an awesome spectacle and yet, somehow one can't help feeling that despite the grim and terse comments of Pedro de Cordoba who supplies the narrative, and the ironic sequence of trench death and mud and horror preceding shots of heroes and widows receiving decorative bits of ribbon back home, it misses here and there.

In happy and pleasant contrast is "Love Time," the romantic and melodic story of a composer whose music has rung down the ages, and whose life and loves have provided literature and drama with a wealth of colorful material. Pat Patterson does her best work as Valerie, whom Schubert loved; Nils Asther, somewhat handsomer than the great master, nevertheless is entirely up to the heroic role, and excellent characterizations in smaller parts are given by Henry B. Walthall, Herbert Mundin, Harry Green, and Lucien Littlefield.

I. J. Fox to Fete 2000 Newsboys

More than 2000 newsboys selected by the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation and the various Boston papers, will be the guests of I. J. Fox and David Lilienthal, president and vice-president respectively, of the I. J. Fox Fur Company, at a Christmas Day party in Mechanics Hall, it was announced today.

The features of the party will be the big turkey dinner—as many helpings as the boys can eat, and the entertainment that they themselves will provide. This includes a concert by Newsboys' Harmonica Band. The boys will gather on the baseball field of Boston Common at 11 a. m. and parade to Mechanics Hall.

The party, which is expected to become an annual affair, will have the supervision of Harry Burroughs and H. B. Tapin of the Newsboys Foundation. More than a score of dignitaries, many of whom got their start in life as newsboys, also will be guests.

Giant Airplane Makes Test Flight

Middle River, Md., Dec. 21 (I. S.)—America's largest heavier-than-air craft, Pan American Airways clipper ship Number 7, today tried her wings over Chesapeake bay, and found herself highly able.

After two hours of tests of surface maneuverability, the 2[illegible]-ton flying boat which is to inaugurate trans-Pacific air service some time in the next few months, took the air without the slightest quivering.

[illegible] later he had to drive by the Woburn police station in the square without being able to summon help.

Following the directions of his captor, Laman drove through a number of Woburn streets. At one time he had returned to within 100 yards of the station again.

The gunman then gave directions to [illegible]

At a secluded spot in Mountain road the gunman tied a handkerchief [illegible] for a mask and then ordered Laman from the car. He heeded the pleadings of Laman that a brief case that contained business papers be returned.

After the gunman drove away Laman made his way to the home of John W[illegible] in Mountain road and notified police. The car number and a description of the man was flashed to surrounding police by teletype and radio.

Laman is president of the Massachusetts Gear and Tool Works of East Woburn. He is also vice-president of the Woburn Rotary Club, past president of the Y. M. C. A. [illegible] and also is a leader of the North Congregational Church.

He described the bandit as about 25 years old, 150 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches in height and clad in old clothing. Police started a check-up on old employes of his company and all others who might have been familiar with his custom of drawing the company payroll.

Laman's car was found abandoned [illegible] School street, North Woburn, by Joseph J. Farrel of 14 Merrimack street, Woburn, several hours after holdup.

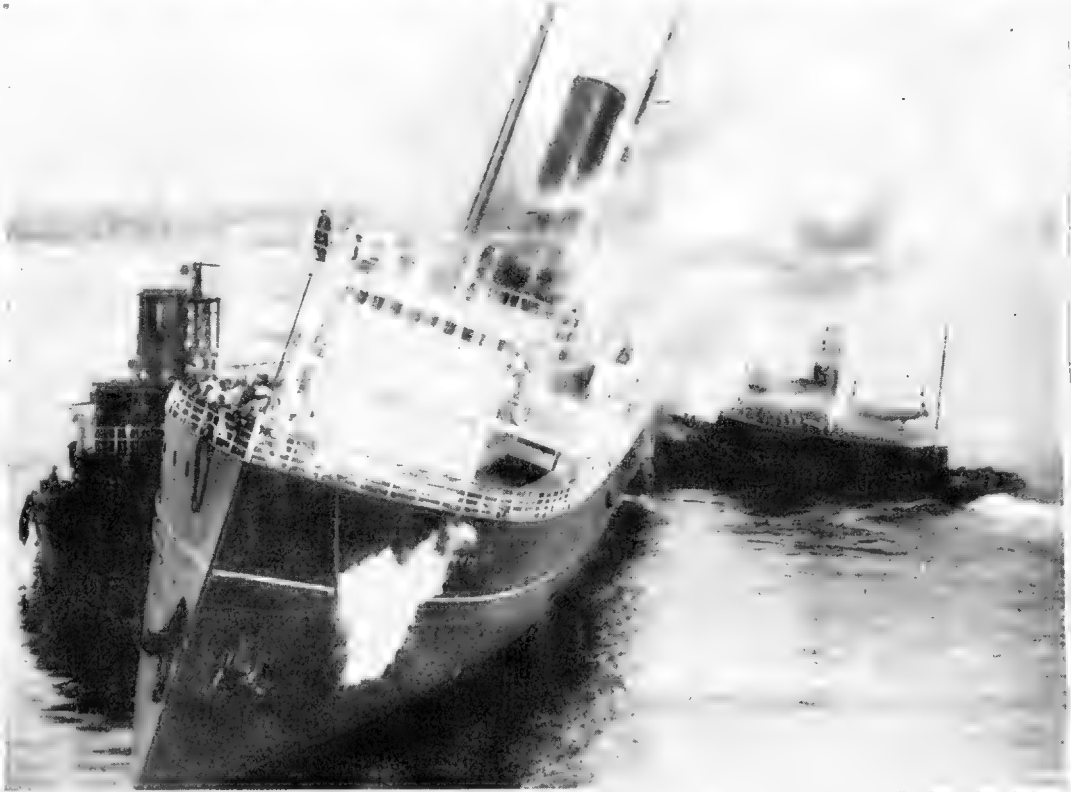
OFF FOR HER "SAFETY BERTH" ON MUD FLATS



Here is the blazing Merchants and Miners freighter, Ontario, just being towed away from her pier on Northern avenue after the Boston fire department had failed in a long battle to control flames raging in the vessel's hold. The Ontario was cut loose from the dock lest she endanger other shipping and buildings along the waterfront. The freighter's heavy list to port, caused by shifting cargo and by water in her hull, is plainly visible. As tugs get her under way, fireboats continue alongside, still pouring futile hose streams on the hot decks. Orders were to beach the Ontario on the mud flats off Governor's Island, not far from the East Boston shore. Early estimates set the damage at $100,000. It was believed that the vessel could eventually be recommissioned. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

ROGERS

This Is Life

It seems to me that every year the Shop Early and Mail Early slogans are sinking deeper and deeper into the consciousness of the public. Do not ever tell me that steady and consistent propaganda for a good cause will not bear fruit in time. It may be for years, as the old song says, but it certainly will not be forever.

R. E. Rogers

When I was a boy that grand old magazine Life began its assault on Fourth of July casualties with the picture of the silent little boy with bandaged eyes surrounded by his anxious family. Everyone will agree that that piece of propaganda has succeeded astonishingly both on the statute books and in public opinion. It took a generation but the result was worth the effort.

The Shop Early-Mail Early suggestion is not so old in point of time but its results are even more astonishing.

I know it works to this extent. I never get much chance to participate in leisurely fashion in the excitements of the week before Christmas shopping. The institute does not close a week before the Day, like some of what Raymond's would probably call "the proud colleges." Particularly those that entertain girls. Tech closes just in time for a boy to catch a train in time to reach a home that is within a strictly reasonable distance.

And so I usually do my shopping on the last day, on the eve. I find it very pleasant. Instead of the hellish maelstrom of former years nearly everybody is at home tying up gifts. The last minute shoppers like myself are not so numerous as to make progress absolutely impossible. The only drawback is that stocks have dwindled seriously. But that can't be helped.

4 MORE DAYS TO A MERRY CHRISTMAS

Another Slogan

Now I'm seriously thinking of starting another slogan. The Missus will probably not approve of it. It is an old point of controversy. In the old days when the child was a child, she held that Santa did not come until Christmas Eve, the tree must not be trimmed until nigh on to midnight nor must the window candles be lighted.

In the minority I held that the cumulative excitement of Christmas is increased if one begins to see the homes blossom out during the preceding week with the beribboned wreaths garnished with apples and cumquats, with the laurel ropes round the door ways and with the rows of white or yellow candles in the windows.

Let's Sing Early

I should like, too, to hear the Christmas songs begin unostentatiously on the radio several days ahead and swell into a steady crescendo as the night draws near. Somehow, the feeling of the coming of Christmas is so much more exciting than the memory of it when it is past. I confess I can not get up much enthusiasm over the decorations which last to the canonical Twelfth Night, drying and withering and drooping. A wreath on the feast of Saint Ischyrion is worth two on the feast of Stephen.

Well, now that the child is growing and is getting a little dubious about Santa Claus, and rather thinks it safer to help trim the tree rather than trust entirely to the good offices of the hurried and overworked old gentleman, our family, I am glad to say, has been able to push back several days the date on which the home bursts into Christmas beauty. Which, so far as I am concerned, is all to the good. And as I go through the streets at night I bless all those whose forethought and eagerness has caused the dark to bloom with lights to strengthen in us the happy feeling that there's a good time coming.

CAPTAIN'S STORY

CREW DROPS BY TWOS IN ROARING INFERNO BELOW SHIP DECKS

GRIM BATTLE AT SEA

By CAPTAIN JOHN KAUSERUD

Of the Merchants & Miners liner Ontario, afire in Boston h[illegible]

As Told to Arthur Quinn

We sailed from Boston for Norfolk last evening and at 9 o'clock we were off the entrance to the Cape Cod Canal at Sandwich when fire was discovered.

I was on the bridge. Third Assistant Engineer Edward Canningham called me and said:

"Captain, I have just found a fire burning in number 3 hold. The smoke is coming up through the ventilator and there is some smoke in the social hall and dining room."

I ordered the fire drill sounded to get out the men off watch and get the crew at stations.

Then I went to the radio shack and ordered Operator C[illegible]ford to notify Boston offices of the line and all ships to stand by.

I have a crew of 4[illegible]. I will say right here that I never expect to have a better crew than that which rose to meet the emergencies of that fire. They were men in the [illegible] and they took plenty of punishment. Before we got back to Boston at 3 o'clock this morning every one of them had been knocked out in that fight at least twice. I got it three times.

The fire was all below decks. No one could stay in the hold for more than 10 minutes. It seemed that as quickly as I sent two men down they would drop and two more would have to go after them. But every man did his job.

I ordered the men to run eight lines of hose into various hatchways and companionways to keep the fire from spreading.

I did not immediately order a change of course because I thought we might get the fire under control but a half hour after we started the battle the flames were working up through the flooring of the social hall and dining saloon and the decks began to get hotter under our feet.

They continued to get hotter every minute.

We cut three or four holes in the decks and pushed more hose through them.

SMOKE TERRIFIC

The smoke was terrific and the heat was bad. We had [illegible] masks.

With two other members of the crew I tried to get as far down [illegible] the burning area as possible. [illegible] was between decks and I [illegible] see anything but heavy [illegible] of smoke in front of me and [illegible] flames.

In addition to the hose lines I had ordered live steam [illegible] into the burning holds but [illegible] had no more effect than the water.

I felt [illegible] we would smother the fire [illegible] hold [illegible]

When the fire [illegible] the top deck I d[illegible] further chances. I [illegible] to [illegible] I [illegible] word [illegible] Boston [illegible] Tuscan [illegible]

DECIDES TO TURN BACK

[illegible] times [illegible] but we would have to beach [illegible] decided to take the chance of getting into Boston. I sent word to have a [illegible] of tugs ready and also to have the Boston fire department notified.

I felt that it would be better to get to Boston [illegible] the apparatus and men to handle such a situation.

As we [illegible] back towards Boston the men worked in [illegible] the [illegible]

I [illegible] down [illegible] I [illegible] except [illegible] water [illegible] to keep the stuff [illegible] and when there we would be ready [illegible] hawsers back to [illegible]

LISTS FROM WATER

[illegible] times I thought it was all [illegible] I would have to beach her [illegible] I kept the Tuscan along [illegible] we got to Boston [illegible]

We had [illegible] much water in her that [illegible] the lightship she had an [illegible] degree list.

The [illegible] weren't in sight but I gave the Tuscan as good[illegible] and [illegible] us. Then it got so [illegible] I [illegible] started for the [illegible] Boston [illegible]

W[illegible] and we were [illegible] we kept [illegible] the two fireboats [illegible] and helped us into the [illegible]

HARRY THAW

One of the barometers of good times is the uptake [illegible] gratuities. It is not yet in evidence.

Harry K. Thaw and the sensational Death Valley Scotty ballyhooing a gold [illegible] are credited to have bestowed the largest single tips in the memory of New York's maitres de hotel.

Thaw's was said to have been $500 for the ever[illegible] Martin's. And Scotty's was $200 to the head waiter at the old Waldorf.

An [illegible] that, while Andrew Carnegie seldom dined in [illegible] his gratuity was invariably a half dollar.

Lord Northcliffe on a visit to New York, confused temporarily by American coinage, left a $20 gold piece at his plate after breakfasting alone.

The waiter sensing a mistake, informed the publisher who not only requested him to keep it, but took him to England as part of his entourage. And when too old for service was pensioned.

Marcossen's Record

Isaac Marcossen, the roaming magazine writer, likely knows more world notables than any journalist of his time. He has interviewed seven kings, four queens, scads of lesser royalty, and every industrial ruler from the Saar to the Montana copper fields.

He has secured an autographed picture of every person interviewed, a rare collection that goes to the public library of his home town, Louisville, Ky.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser --- Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

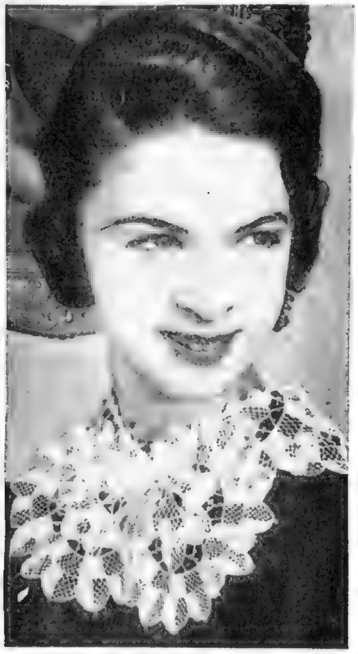
Like Rare Laces Seen in Portraits----These New Collars



LACE OF the Venise type like this is seen in portraits by the Flemish painters—portraits of serenely fair young things in black velvet with precious real lace at the throat. Today's copies require an expert's close examination to detect the difference. There's glamour and elegance—all for a couple of dollars.

If you wish to know where these new lace collars are to be seen in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Finds Joy's End as Mate Wins Acclaim

By Sheilah Graham

When I was a little girl I was taught to believe that when I grew up to be a big girl and some man made me an honest woman, I would rejoice at any stroke of luck that struck my husband.

Not even in their most nightmarish moments could my teachers foresee that by the time I had grown up to be the big girl they promised (they were more than right about the big girl part—I never diet) the emancipation of women would have been so complete that there could be wives who instead of being glad at the success of their husbands, would be jealous because the aforementioned success was not happening to themselves.

Seems absurd to all you think-you-know-everything males and females doesn't it. There are probably some of you who are even now muttering, "Pooh, she is talking out of the back of her neck. There aren't any wives jealous of their own husbands' success."

SMUG EXPRESSIONS

Take those smug expressions off your faces—there are, I know two—a doctor and a painter.

To say they were jealous of their husbands is to put it too mildly. They were sick—even unto divorce.

If the aforementioned fresh-from-the-divorce-mill ladies are reading this column I doubt whether they recognize themselves. They still do not know it was jealousy of "Miss Other-Woman-Success" that made them throw off the marriage yoke. "Self expression" was the touching title they gave to their unrest. Here are the stories. They make pathetic reading.

The lady doctor, before her marriage was doing well in a modest way. Her earnings were good, her prestige better. Ten years ago she swore to love and cherish, for better or worse, a moderately well-known lawyer.

On account of the fact that the salary of the legal man was small, but more because the lady doctor believed in female independence, she continued her career.

FAMOUS HUSBAND

Everything was fine and dandy until her husband won a big case and overnight became internationally famous. The doctor gal was glad. She patted her husband on the back and told him she was very proud. It wasn't long, however, before her gladness turned to sadness.

Someone referred to her as the wife of the famous Mr. X. You could have fried a clam in the heat that emanated from that healing lady.

Now she is free. She has kept her sanity—lost her happiness—and is still jealous, but what is worse she is now called the Ex-wife of the famous Mr. X.

The story of the painting radical will bring a sob to your throat. So determined was she to retain her individuality that when she married she commanded her acquaintances to continue to call her by her maiden name.

That was all right until she was introduced to some one as Miss B. "the famous Miss B." And when the other still remained mystified, heard her introducer add the caption: "Don't tell me you have never heard of Miss B. Why she is the wife of Mr. C., the famous author." DO NOT LAUGH. DO NOT EVEN SMILE. It was a tragedy.

New Lipstick In Jewelled Ebony Case

By the Beauty Editor

IT MAY BE QUITE TRUE THAT few lipsticks merit editorial raving, but when a jewelled one comes along in an ebony and rhinestone setting that you know will be the hit of the season, it's little wonder that our praises go eloquent.

If you have been looking for a lipstick that was made especially for the important follies of life—gay little suppers and parties after dark when your accessories must match the elegance of your mood—then this is the sensation you have been seeking.

This lipstick has the originality that smart young things have come to expect from the firm which sponsors it. It is scented with the same famous perfume for which it was named and when I tell you that its fragrance is so lovely that you can hardly believe it, perhaps you will get an idea of what it really is like.

It comes to you straight from Paris, and just as though it's gay, lovely trappings were not enough of a guarantee, let me assure you that the lipstick itself is one of the finest we have ever seen. It is indelible, of course, and to the degrees that it takes soap and water to remove it.

You are more than likely to see this very same design soon in jewellers' windows, worked out in diamonds and precious metals and encasing the very same lipstick. It's that kind of a sensation. Already I have heard that a famous Fifth avenue firm, whose name has been synonymous with pearls and diamonds for generations, featured a display along with their jewels.

If your Christmas list isn't completed—and even if it is—go buy one, either as a gift or as a present for yourself. And lest the grandeur of its description frighten you financially, let me assure you it is NOT expensive. In fact its cost is only 50 cents more than you would pay for the same lipstick in its every-day trappings.

To learn the name of this jewelled lipstick and where it is sold, telephone Liberty 4000 and ask for Juliet Shelby, or write to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

New Cream for Brittle Nails

Question: I am suffering from hangnails, and also from brittle nails. As I always manicure my own hands I am wondering if there is something you can suggest which will help me. My fingers are long and graceful but their beauty is spoiled by the nails themselves.

Betty V. B., Cambridge.

Answer: There is a decided trick in removing hangnails: Soak the hands in warm soap suds, dry, apply cuticle cream or olive oil, work the shred away from the nail surface with an orange wood stick. Point curved manicure scissors toward the nail eave and don't clip down too deep. A wound invites infection; so it is best to be cautious. There is an excellent cream nail grower on the market that is just made for brittle nails. As trade names of products are never mentioned in my column, I cannot give it to you here. However, if you will write me for this information enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope I will be glad to furnish you with the name and the store where it may be purchased.

Make Christmas Cakes Early

THOSE LITTLE Christmas Cakes, which are due to appear at so many festive occasions during the holidays, can be made in advance and stored away in a cooky jar, or in one of those pretty tin boxes which your Christmas plum pudding or fruit cake comes in.

Christmas Hermits: Cream one-third cup butter and one-half cup brown sugar; add one well-beaten egg. Add one cup of canned mincemeat and then one cup of flour which has been sifted with two teaspoons baking powder. Drop by spoonfuls onto a greased cooky sheet. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for eight to ten minutes.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE —:— By Adele Garrison

In a secret compartment of the keepsake box, Madge's father finds a message from the grave.

CHAPTER 223

I hardly dared to breathe as my father looked down into the cavity in my mother's japanned box, the existence of which I never had suspected.

It was no such elaborate arrangement as the secret compartment in the lock-box bequeathed to Marion Morton by her grandmother, and which we knew contained so important and dangerous a secret, to be disclosed upon Marion's 18th birthday. It was simply a small recess beneath the padded lining, appearing to adhere to the bottom of the box. But to my father, this cavity with its contents was evidently of supreme importance, and I saw his face brighten as he took an old-fashioned tiny jewel box from it.

"Surely she wouldn't keep the empty box," I heard him murmur. And then, as he opened the box and took out a sapphire ring in an old-style, but exquisite setting of tiny diamonds, I saw his face break up into waves of emotion; and with something very like a sob he brought the ring to his lips, bending his head so low that I could not see his face.

I lay motionless, silent, wishing myself anywhere but where I was.

But when he lifted his face to mine, wet with tears so rarely shed by a man of his caliber, I realized that those memories had not been all tragic—that from somewhere in that long distant past he had received comfort and healing.

"Forgive me, darling," he began, but I interrupted him.

"Forgive you?" I repeated. "It is I who should crave forgiveness for remaining here while you examined this box."

"Who [illegible] share this sacred hour with me?" he queried tenderly.

"Did she never tell you about this?" he asked after a long minute.

"Never," I replied. "I did not even know until this minute that there was a cavity in the box."

"You didn't?"

A MESSAGE OF FORGIVENESS

There was such surprise in his tone that I was emboldened to voice a thought which had come insistently to me during the last few seconds.

"N[illegible] father—"

I hesitated, and he looked at me sharply.

"Tell me," he said quickly.

"She told me so much else. We had no secrets from each other. And you know she told me, almost with her dying breath, that I was to hold no bitterness against you—"

"I know, the blessed saint!" he said unsteadily.

"That I am wondering," I went on, "if she did not leave the ring in this cavity as a mesage to you."

"What makes you think that?" he asked hoarsely.

"I have been working it out in my mind," I began slowly, "since I saw this cavity, the existence of which I had never suspected, although I have handled the box frequently, both before mother went away, and afterward. She knew how I prized the box, and that I never would part with it; and—" it was my turn to stare at him—"I remember now a queer request once she made of me."

"What was it?" The words were but a strained whisper.

"She made me promise that I would write out instructions that the box should be burned at my death. Don't you see? She never meant anyone else but you to see this ring? She knew that if you found me, we would be very close, and that some time I would show you this box. It is a message to you!"

With the ring clasped in his hands as if it were a sacred religious relic and he a devotee, he gazed at me wonderingly, then a look of happy belief settled in his eyes.

"I feel that you are right," he said. "It is a message—of forgiveness—from her."

But I was not yet satisfied. My feminine intuition told me that a woman would not be content to leave only a ring without a written word. I sat up among my pillows and stretched out my hand to him.

"May I see the box a second?" I asked.

Slim 'Up-and-Down' Line Frock

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9217

Here is a fashion to flatter the figure—and what woman of larger proportions isn't spending time and energy looking for just that? The raglan sleeves give a nice smooth appearance to the shoulders and the skirt, paneled back and front, achieves a slim "up-and-down" effect which seems to take inches from the hipline. It would be perfect made in that grand new shade called Malacca Brown, with the satin used to form the soft scarf. The scarf, by the way, is stitched into the seams of the sleeves and may be tied into a flattering bow or slipped through a metal ring, for an added touch of chic.

Pattern 9217 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires [illegible] yards 39-inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Turn to our Winter Fashion Book for page after page of smart, winter styles for women and grown-ups, every one of them designed by Marian Martin, our Pattern Editor. Order your copy today! Price of book, fifteen cents, but it costs only ten cents when ordered with a pattern. Pattern and book together, twenty-five cents.

Divorcee Uses Title 'Mrs.'

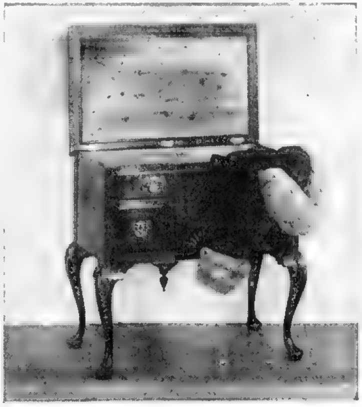
By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I divorced my husband, gaining all legal rights of an unmarried person, although I am using his surname in order to have my name correspond with the name of our two children, of whom I have full custody. Will you please tell me as to the correct way I am to use this name . . . whether I should use "Mrs." or "Miss"? G.

You would use the title of Mrs. Since you are retaining your husband's surname, an excellent form of name for you to use would be the surname of your maiden name used as the prefix to the surname of your married name: Mrs. Smith Allen.

Gift Chest of Classic Style



IT CAN BE PLACED in any room in the house—this cedar lined chest made on classic lowboy lines. It is to be had in maple or mahogany, and for the girl who is "hope-chesting" with future early American rooms in mind, there's no more perfect gift.

For details on price and where these chests may be seen in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

False-Carding in Dummy

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

I suppose everyone has seen a player false-card from a closed hand and fool his opponents. Not many, however, have seen the much rarer play of false-carding in the dummy. It seems a bit ridiculous, I know, to try to fool anybody by playing one card rather than another from a hand which is completely exposed to view. But put yourself in poor West's place, and see what you'd have done.

South, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

	North
	♠ 10 7 6 4 3 ♡ K 6 3 ◇ 10 7 6 3 ♣ 8
West ♠ A 8 ♡ J 10 7 ◇ A Q 8 2 ♣ Q J 10 5	North West East South	East ♠ 9 2 ♡ 9 4 2 ◇ K 9 ♣ 9 7 6 4 3 2
	♠ K Q J 5 ♡ A Q 8 5 ◇ J 5 4 ♣ A K
	South

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠ (1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) South was not anxious once spades had been supported, to mention the hearts. Being a crafty player he wished to give as little information as possible to the opponents, and while he saw that it might be advisable to mention no-trumps or hearts, he thought that the best play for game was in the spade suit, and let it go at that.

West opened the Queen of clubs, and when the dummy went down South was very sorry that he hadn't trotted out a no-trump contract. He consoled himself with the reflection that North would probably have put him back in spades. But at any rate, the bidding was over. His problem now was to avoid losing three diamond tricks since naturally there was no chance of hornswoggling the opponents out of their Ace of trumps. And whatever was to be done had to be done quickly—the measure of success in deceptive play is often dependent upon the speed with which it is executed.

One glance was enough, and South slaughtered the Queen of clubs with his King, led out the Ace of clubs, and innocently discarded from the dummy—a heart! That done, the King of trumps was banged down, taken by the Ace, and now, dear reader, if you were in West's place, what would you have led? Did I hear anybody say a diamond? I know I'd almost certainly have played a heart, as sure enough, West did.

South pounced upon the heart lead with dummy's King, drew another round of trumps, and proceeded to run the hearts, discarding two diamonds from the dummy (which had been his object from the very start). Then he spread his hand and conceded two diamonds to the much disgruntled opponents.

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

ASKING YOUR HELP! THE BASKET FUND

She'll Help Basket Show

Need Is Great

LET NONE OF WORTHY BE FORGOTTEN

Dad: Cigars and a leather covered chair.

Mother: Quilted robe and perfume.

Sister: Lounging pajamas.

Bill: A bottle of Scotch.

Aunt Sue: A tilt-top table.

Uncle Ned: Some books and a pipe.

Junior: A bicycle and skis.

Yes, that's a real Christmas gift list. It will produce genuine smiles of appreciation. But haven't you forgotten one important item?

How about this one?

"For Those Who Most Need to Be Remembered: A Donation to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund."

Believe us, please, when we say that no gift that you can give in this joyous season will produce greater happiness, do more good or call more blessings on your head than the heaping basket full of food and goodies that the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund sends once a year into homes where Hunger, Cold and Despair have joined the family circle.

Four More Days

You have just four more days to climb onto the Bandwagon of Joy, and we hope that you will not wait for the very last minute. Please remember that it takes time to fill the baskets and to deliver them. So do your bit—big or little—just as soon as you can.

Outstanding among the contributions received today is a $100 check from Branch 34, National Association of Letter Carriers.

"With some of our pay restored to us we are able to increase the amount of our contribution over that of last year," writes Fred D. Greehan, treasurer of the organization. "We hope it will purchase a little more happiness."

Another $100 check comes from the Rev. George S. Fiske. And there was one for $25 from our own columnist, Professor Robert E. Rogers of Technology. It came too late to be listed with the other staff contributions.

Not to be overlooked are the $5 from Branch 5 of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks or the dollar from Ernest Booth of Saugus, the man who gave up his dole rather than sacrifice his dogs.

Greatly Needed

These gifts—and all the others that have been received—are doubly welcome this year because the plain facts are that contributions are lagging behind those of last year and the requests for aid show a considerable increase.

It is needless to point out the dire circumstances in which many a Boston family is facing Christmas. We don't want to talk about misery and hopelessness. We know that you are eager to bring a bit of Christmas joy into these homes.

But we must translate that willingness into action. Good intentions and a right spirit do not fill baskets. You have to back them up with enough energy to address an envelope to the Fund and to mail it with your gift. Won't you please do that today?

Send it to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, 294 Devonshire street, Boston. And as Tiny Tim said:

"God bless us, every one."

In Minsky Park Show Tonight for Fund

SHOW TO AID FUND

Midnite Tonight at Park; Grove Benefit on Sunday

Big midnight show tonight at the Park Theater, and big Sunday night show at the Cocoanut Grove—so get ready for the fun and the needy and unfortunate will not go hungry on Christmas Day, when there should be no hunger or unhappiness.

Both big shows are for the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, and in addition to helping supply food baskets, the Park Theater show will outfit many children of school age with new shoes, sadly needed.

Maxie Rosenbloom has been added to the list of entertainers at the Park tonight for the midnight show, and "Slapsy Maxie," onetime wearer of the world light-heavyweight boxing crown, will do a skit with Ranny Weeks of the RKO-Boston.

Floor shows from Cocoanut Grove, the Mayfair, and the Cascades will also be on the bill as well as vaudeville and legitimate stage stars and the regular Minsky burlesque show. The Minsky brothers have insisted on paying all expenses.

The Cocoanut Grove show will be the biggest Boston has ever seen on a Sunday night—and not one, but seven masters of ceremony will be required to handle it.

Charlie Walke will introduce the regular Cocoanut Grove floor show including Jacques Renard's Orchestra.

Charlie Hector will present acts from Loews' Orpheum. The Boston Evening American's own Newcomb F. Thompson, the radio "N F T." will present little Billy McNamara, 7, of Roxbury, and his brother Paul, 4, song and dance prodigies, as well as a radio unit, consisting of Andy Jacobson, Russell Dorr, Billy Payne, Adrian O'Brien, Ethel Grenier and others.

Then Ranny Weeks will introduce Vicky Joyce and acts from RKO Keith's; the merry maestro Jacques Renard, will be master of ceremonies when acts from legitimate theaters arrive, and George MacKinnon will officiate in introducing acts from the Metropolitan Theater.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will be master of ceremonies during part of the program.

Also there will be the Hen-Wiener dance group, presented by Wiener; the Mary V. Corbett dancers, Bette Brooks, singer; Countess Rozanska of the American Legion Glee Club; Virginia Jordan, Gayety Theater star, and Yessmie Hadgnanolis of Cambridge, in a doll dance.

Dinner will be at 8 p. m. at the Grove, and the show will run from 9 o'clock until midnight with dancing from midnight until [illegible] a. m., and all for only $2.50 a person.

Meanwhile, tomorrow night there will be a Christmas Basket Fund party in the Cameo Room of the Hotel Avery, in Avery street, under direction of James Sallas, the Cameo Room manager, and on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock there will be a Christmas shoe party at the Park Theater, which Governor-elect James M. Curley will attend and at which Bennie Moore will play Santa Claus.

Tonight there will be a party for the Christmas Basket Fund at Notre Dame de Pietre Hall, Middlesex street, Cambridge, in charge of Henry F. Mailloux, of 91 Montgomery street, Cambridge.

Basket Appeals

APPROACH OF HOLIDAY BRINGS MANY PATHETIC LETTERS

As Christmas draws near many urgent appeals from needy are pouring in on the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

Here are a few of the latest appeals. In view of need like this can YOU put off any longer making that contribution to the Basket Fund?

CASE NO. 69

I have six children and my husband has a job, but he only works when it is good weather. We have no fire, half the time we cannot buy coal. It's terrible.

I have a two months old baby, that the doctor put on can milk. It costs $1.25, but I cannot put him on it because I cannot buy it. He was seven pounds when he was born, and hasn't gained an ounce. He's just like a little skeleton.

I will not be able to buy a Christmas dinner for them, and I trust you can send us one. My boy, 13, is in need of shoes, and they all need stockings and clothing.

Thanksgiving, we had eggs. It was just heartbreaking, but I wouldn't mind so much if Christmas was a happy day. I only hope you will not forget us, because I know we will not have anything unless you send it.

Anyone wishing to help this mother may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4800, and ask for Case No. 69.

CASE NO. 70

I would like to know if you could send us a Christmas basket, for we have not had a good Christmas dinner for the last three years. My father is a cripple and can't get a job anywhere, and my brother, Eddie, has been a cripple since he was seven years old. I, myself, have a broken ankle and the other kids go to school regularly.

We do not have much to eat or clothe ourselves with. We never asked for a Christmas basket before, so please don't disappoint us, because we have our hearts set on it. Thanks from the bottom of my heart and I wish you a merry Christmas.

Anyone wishing to help this little boy may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4800 and ask for Case No. 70.

CASE NO. 71

This [illegible] lives in Chelsea. Anyone wishing to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4800 and ask for Case No. 71.

CASE NO. 72

In all our years of needing help, we sure do this year. There are eight children in our family and counting my mother and father, that makes ten.

My father is an ERA worker and he gets $12 a week, and believe me we have to starve half the week on such a small income. He gets nothing else except $16 for our rent and we just got that lately, for we have been put out many a time.

My father is a veteran and he was once in a hospital and when he came home he told us he couldn't work for at least eight years. This is the first year he has worked since. As long as I can remember there has not been a week that we have had a full meal every day.

My mother has been under the doctor's care for at least a year, and now my sister is sick in bed and not getting the things she needs. She has become very thin.

These are the ages of my brothers and sisters.

Alfred, 15; Pearl, 13; Walter, 12; Francis, 10; Dorothy, 9; Arthur, 7; Robert, 2.

Anyone wishing to help this little girl may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4800 and ask for Case No. 72.

Candles on Tree in White House

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 21—The use of lighted candles on Christmas trees may be regarded as unsafe by fire departments, but the President of the United States will have them, anyhow.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in New York today, revealed that the President much prefers candles to electricity.

"The President always feels that a tree doesn't look right without candles and hasn't the right atmosphere unless it smells of hot evergreen," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

There will be two trees in the White House this year, one in the east room, lighted by electricity will be displayed to the public.

TEXTILES SEEN IN FAVORABLE POSITION

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The outlook for textiles is gradually becoming more and more favorable. Woolens particularly seem to be benefiting from improving trade conditions. The one fly in the ointment is that a number of mills contracted to supply cloth at the low prices prevailing a month or so ago. Consequently, what buyers are pressing for [illegible] at [illegible] prices these [illegible] themselves [illegible] locked up and unable to accept as much as they would like. The really heartening [illegible] are [illegible] other years and are predicating the spring needs on reports of Christmas clothes sales 20 to 25 per cent above 1933.

Type Photo: James F. Bell, chairman of the board of General Mills, in his Forum of Liberty program address, made a pertinent remark on the business and industrial improvement now noticeable . . . He stressed the ease with which political forces can confuse the issues . . . Pointing out that evidences of improvement could be the result of exhaustion of wealth, and not the creation of new wealth . . . In the opinion of Mr. Bell, new wealth must be created through the creation of confidence . . . The general stock list is making persistent efforts [illegible] self out. Another two or three sessions may be required, but intermediate trend traders need not be backward in taking on shares around recent lows. With a great deal of pride we reprint excerpts from the Daily Stock Analysis of December 11. National Lead was the issue under discussion, and this was said of it "Company is regarded as in a position to treat stockholders far more liberally . . . the common shares are high priced, but in view of repeated attempts to prevail on management to be more liberal . . . they seem entitled to sell where they do. In some quarters it is believed an extra or special dividend is likely SOON." It was announced yesterday. Fourteen shares of common for each 100 held.

Sentiment Still Good in Wall St. Says Spectator

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

The stock market staggered [illegible] another session the dominant feature of which was the steady dribble of liquidation in the [illegible]

Considering the steady offerings of the power and light shares with Consolidated Gas, Stone & Webster and Standard Gas down to bear market lows, the list didn't do so badly. While some of the more flighty individuals in the trading community have become glum again sentiment as a whole has not been impaired much.

Some buying for a quick turn has been coming into the list in small amounts during the reaction. In any event the sold out bulls of several weeks ago have had plenty of opportunity to reinstate their lines.

Some accumulation has been taking place in the oils.

One leading [illegible] bank [illegible] [illegible] the petroleum shares and is putting its [illegible] into them.

A good many of the lower priced oil shares are now selling around the same levels prevailing around the time of the July 1933 break.

The rise in the oil production quota was a welcome Christmas present to the smaller oil producers who haven't been able to take full advantage of the $1 crude oil price.

The oil stocks usually enjoy a fair rally in the early months of the year.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Leading issues displayed irregularity in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Price moves were narrow and trading was dull.

American Telephone lost nearly a point while New England Telephone and New Haven eased fractionally.

Edison rose more than 1. First National Stores and Pond Creek Pocahontas were up nearly 1. United Shoe advances a fraction.

Other issues showed little tendency to move in either direction.

Daily Stock Analysis

COMPANY—ELECTRIC STORAGE BATTERY COMPANY. The largest manufacturer of storage batteries in the world. Its customers include Ford, U. S. Navy and many railroads. Among its products are Exide and Willard batteries. Two-thirds of company [illegible] derived from [illegible] and [illegible] motor demand.

CAPITALIZATION—No funded debt. Preferred stock consists of 1256 shares of 1 per cent cumulative participating non-callable $25 par stock. This stock has a 25 cent per share dividend preference. After an equal amount is paid on the 906,554 shares of common both participate equally in further payments.

EARNINGS—No official report available at this writing. But it is felt company is running ahead of 1933 when full year returns showed $2.3 per share. Financial condition of company is excellent and net current asset value of common [illegible] in excess of $24 per share.

DIVIDENDS—With earnings promising to run at best rate since 1930 and no need for company to bulwark accounts there is every [illegible] the dividend rate in 1935 will be lifted above $2 per share current rate. Especially if motor industry comes anywhere near [illegible] optimistic forecasts of the present.

COMMENT—The common shares of Electric Storage Battery seem reasonably priced at current levels from both a financial and earnings standpoint, and offer investors and traders a fine medium for participating in the future of the motor business with a minimum of risk with a fair return on their invested capital.

Grains Lower in Chicago Trading

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP)—Material setbacks of grain values took place today responsive to the bearish character of the United States government's latest crop report.

Notable weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool were an additional bearish factor. Opening ¾ to [illegible] lower, May 97-97¼, Chicago wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started at ¼-⅜ off, May 85⅞-86, and subsequently declined further.

Steady Tone Marks Curb Dealings

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 21—The curb [illegible] to have regained its equilibrium today, with the run of active utility and specialty favorites showing little change from previous closings.

In the Power and Light group, Tampa Electric stood out with a gain of ½ point at 25, and American Superpower was up ⅛ at 1⅛; while unchanged levels were quoted for Electric Bond and Share American Gas and Electric and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore.

Specialties showed some irregularity. Swift and Greyhound recorded fractional gains, while losses of minor proportions were sustained in Carrier Corporation and Sherwin Williams.

Gulf Gas in supply among the oils, dropping ⅛ point to 52¾.

Alcohols, investment trusts and metals were dull and little changed.

Cities Service common was heavily sold, declining ⅛ to duplicate its previous low for the year at 1⅛.

Irregular Tone Marks Bond Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 21—While the bond market was again marked by divergent trends, there was some improvement today in the action of certain liens which met pressure in recent sessions.

For example the utility group showed signs of steadying after the nervous selling prompted by the threat of additional federal and municipal competition in the generation of power as a lever for obtaining lower rates.

Loans of Consolidated Gas Co. of New York recovered a part of yesterday's losses and most of the other light and power issues appeared to be fairly well supported.

Early trading in the general corporate list produced a rather even division of small gains and losses, while U. S. Governments worked a shade higher.

Among the gainers were Consolidated Gas 5½s, which sold at 104; American Smelting 5s at 105, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s at 114⅛, Goodyear 5s at 103⅛, Nickel Plate 4½s at 61¼, Northern Pacific 4s at 103, Southern Railway 4s at 57½, and Standard Oil of New York 4½s at 103⅜.

Loans of Armour & Co., Baltimore & Ohio, Chile Copper, Erie, Missouri Pacific, National Dairy Products, Pacific Gas & Electric and Postal Telegraph were transferred fractionally lower.

Treasury 3s of 1946-48 sold from 100.22 to 100.25, up 3-32 of a point, and over the rest of the Treasury list values were 1-32 to 4-32 improved. The guaranteed issues were unchanged to a shade lower.

Cotton Steady in Quiet Trading

New York, Dec. 21 (INS)—Quiet trading and narrow price swings were again the rule in cotton future dealings today, with the list displaying a steady tone around previous closing levels.

Midday quotations were unchanged to 2 points higher. January was unchanged at 12.47, March up 1 at 12.58, May up 2 at 12.61 and October up 2 at 12.46.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Foreign exchange steady; Great Britain in dollars, others in cents.

Great Britain demand, 4.94; cables, 4.94; 60-day bills, 4.93¼; France demand, 6.60½; cables, 6.60½; Italy demand, 8.55; cables, 8.55.

FORBES URGES SECURITIES ACT CHANGES

By B. C. FORBES

What's going to happen?

The best business brains of America heretofore have been directors of important enterprises.

B. C. Forbes

But unless the Securities Act is changed, many of the ablest men in America will withdraw from directorates. The law, as it now stands, fastens upon directors responsibilities and possible penalties—far outweighing any recompense ordinarily received.

So far, there has been no wholesale withdrawal of big men from boards of directors. This is because extremely few big companies have attempted to issue new securities and because of hopes that the securities act will be modified.

That this law has failed to achieve its objective is universally recognized. Instead of stopping the flotation of the poorest grades of securities and stimulating the issuance of gilt-edged issues, the very opposite has happened. A weird variety of securities have been sanctioned, but normal flow of worthwhile investment securities has been arrested.

* * *

Of course, it is most unpopular today to say one good word about business men, about directors of American corporations.

Yet, the indisputable fact is that America was raised to first place among the nations of the world, not by her politicians, but by her business men. The whole world frankly recognizes that the science of industrial management was raised in America to heights unapproached in any other country. American methods, American machinery, American systems were embraced by alert entrepreneurs in other countries.

This being so, is it not vitally important that politicians refrain from persisting in any course of action calculated to deprive the nation and its employment-giving enterprises of the services of the ablest, most responsible and most successful brains heretofore readily available?

* * *

In other words, the facts demand most earnest pondering by President Roosevelt, by Congress, by investors, by [illegible] depositors, by insurance policyholders, by recipients of pay envelopes, by the public.

I know definitely of one nationally known company that was prevented from raising needed capital because its most influential [illegible] directors refused to lay themselves open to the penalties prescribed by the Securities Act. The result? The company is going into bankruptcy at a time when its prospects for expending business, given adequate capital, were inspiring.

Everybody concerned is thus hurt—the company's security-owners, the company's wage-earners, the unemployed who would have been afforded work through expansion of activities, the community, even the federal government because of the loss of taxes which increasing business would have yielded.

To Congress: Amend the Securities Act, not for the sake of plutocratic directors, but for the sake of workers, savers, taxpayers, the national well-being.

SHARES MIXED NEAR CLOSE OF MARKET

New York, Dec 21—Abatement of liquidation in the utility shares combined with a moderate demand for the oils and some rails firmed the main body of stocks today.

While [illegible] persisted, the heaviness which characterized Wednesday's and yesterday's trading appeared to be absent.

Consolidated Gas stubbornly resisted [illegible] as came into the market during the forenoon and rose fractionally. At no time did the [illegible] get down to yesterday's low which also was the bear market low. Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works and Columbia Gas also were firmer. Electric Power & Light, United Corp and United Gas Improvement though continued heavy.

RAILS GAIN

Atchison, Delaware & Hudson and several other trading favorites scored fractional gains. New Haven and Baltimore & Ohio, however, touched new lows for the year before responding.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and other pivotal industrials were dull and moved narrowly around previous closing levels. American Can was in steady demand about a point higher.

Liquor shares, first hesitant, firmed substantially under leadership of National Distillers which jumped more than a point.

Railroad equipments were strong with New York Airbrake and Westinghouse Airbrake up more than a point each.

Improvement in the oil price structure and reports of Investment Trust buying brought some demand for the oils. Standard Oil of N. J., Consolidated Oil, Pure Oil and several other lower priced issues scored fractional gains.

Sears Roebuck was a weak spot in the merchandising shares losing more than a point. Case and the other [illegible] shares were dull.

Commodity markets were quiet with cotton and wheat steady.

CARLOADINGS GAIN

The rails were listless, despite an unusually good freight car loadings report for the week ended Dec. 15. The total of 579,935 cars was a more than seasonal increase of 28,924 over the previous week. It was 20,516 above the like 1933 week and 64,166 ahead of the corresponding week in 1932. The gain was about in line with expectations, in view of the brisk business which apparently is being enjoyed by most parts of the country.

The tendency of various stocks to draw away from the adverse influence of the utilities was encouraging to those technicians who still believe that the course of prices especially in the industrial groups is upward.

Administrative opposition to the proposal of business and industrial leaders that the government swing away from work relief to direct aid to the needy was generally viewed in Wall Street as "unfortunate" in that the co-operative move between finance and Washington might be retarded. Hopes were expressed, however, that the controversy would not reach the stage where it would seriously interfere with the progress of recovery.

Although sentiment toward equities appeared to be fairly bullish, most observers saw little likelihood of any agressive buying between now and the Christmas holiday. Commission houses reported many bids under the market, although the short account was said to be relatively small.

National Lead Stock Dividend

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Directors of the National Lead Company today declared a stock dividend of 14 shares of common for each 100 shares held, representing treasury stock. The dividend is payable January 15 to stock of record December 31.

A statement issued by the company said more stock had been acquired during the depression than was necessary to supply the needs of employes on the partial payment plan, and inasmuch as it would be unethical for it to both buy and sell its own stock, the directors decided to distribute the excess amount to stockholders to whom it belonged.

Stock Market Timetable

10-11—Mixed tone prevailed in first hour dealings. Sugars and tractions were lower. Rails were irregular. Trading was dull. Sales approximated 240,000 shares.

11-12—Narrow irregularity continued in the second hour. Price changes held to fractions. Trading was dull, with transactions approximately 410,000 shares.

12-1—Rails were somewhat firmer during the third hour. Other groups drifted uncertainly. Trading was extremely dull. Sales amounted to 540,000 shares.

1-2—With the exception of scattered firm spots, shares held at previous levels in lifeless fourth hour dealings. Rails displayed fractional improvement. Sales were 690,000 shares.

2-3—Traction group was the target of selling forces during the final hour. Manhattan lost more than 2 and Interboro was down more than a point. Late tone was mixed. Sales were estimated at 890,000 shares.

RING GREATS HERE FOR FIGHTS

CAPACITY CROWD AT BIG SHOW

Dempsey, Baer and Sharkey Referee

By JACK CONWAY

Ring history will be made at the great Christmas Basket Fund boxing show at the Garden tonight.

It is expected that a capacity crowd will jam the Garden to see Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey and Max Baer referee at the most stupendous boxing offering in the history of Boston and New England.

Rip Valenti announced today that the immense seating capacity of the Garden will enable all who wish to do so to see the show of shows. The box offices at the Garden, Goodwin Club and at the Arena will be open all day for those desiring reservations. Other thousands will be cared for at the Garden tonight.

The great crowd will come from all sections of New England.

Sammy Fuller, sensational North End lightweight who is ranked No. 1 by the Illinois Boxing Association is a slight favorite to win over Bobby Pacho, Pacific coast champion, in their 10-round bout.

Fuller has proved a riot in his New York bouts. He licked "Young" Jackson only to be deprived of the decision. He then took the verdict out of the hands of the officials when he stopped Johnny Jadick. Eddie Cool was his next victim.

OFFER ROSS $25,000

Rip Valenti has made Barney Ross an offer of a $25,000 guarantee to come to Boston to defend his title against Fuller. Pian has told Valenti he will give him his answer within two weeks.

Maxie Rosenbloom and Tony Shucco will be battling for the right to take on Bob Olin for the light heavyweight championship when they collide in another ten-round session.

Rosenbloom recently lost the championship to Olin after a hard contest in New York. He came back by licking Al Gainor and now says he will put the skids under Shucco.

Shucco won a decision over Rosenbloom in an overweight bout at West Springfield two years ago. Until now Maxie avoided a return meeting with Shucco.

The ten-round battle between Harry Devine of Worcester, New England welterweight champion, and Weether Arcelli of the North End should be replete with thrills. Devine's title will be at stake.

BAERS IN RING

The ten-round quarrel featuring "Buck" Tarcy and Al McCoy should be a punching duel. Neither of these boys take a backward step when under fire in the ring.

Buddy Baer, brother of Max, will toss heavy punches at Henry Surette in a special six-round contest. Buddy is six feet six inches tall and weighs 240 pounds. He is blessed with a great right hand punch and is confident he will stop Surette.

Ancil Hoffman, manager of the Baer brothers, will be in Buddy's corner. He will be assisted by Max.

Boxing Commissioner Dan Kelley and Peter Carr granted Dempsey, Sharkey and Baer special licenses as referees.

Edward C. Foster, president of the National Boxing Association, will be the guest of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission tonight.

Full Fight Program for Garden Tonight

The complete fight card for the Basket Fund at the Garden tonight, with the approximate time each will start, and the unofficial weights of the fighters, follows:

TEN ROUNDS—10 P. M.
SAMMY FULLER, 138, Boston, vs. BOBBY PACHO, 140, California.

TEN ROUNDS—9:10 P. M.
MAXIE ROSENBLOOM, 175, New York, vs. TONY SHUCCO, 178, North End.

TEN ROUNDS—11:10 P. M.
(For New England Welterweight Championship)
WERTHER ARCELLI, 143, Dorchester, vs. HARRY DEVINE, 140, Worcester.

TEN ROUNDS—8:20 P. M.
BUCK TRACEY, 174, Everett, vs. AL McCOY, 170, Dorchester.

SIX ROUNDS—10:45 P. M.
BUDDY BAER, 235, California, vs. HARRY SURETTE, 200, Leominster.

FOUR ROUNDS—8:00 P. M.
JOE RICCIOTTI, 145, North End, vs. AL VITALE, 142, North End.

REFEREES

MAX BAER — world's heavyweight champion.

JACK DEMPSEY — former world's heavyweight champion.

JACK SHARKEY — former world's heavyweight champion.

Time Supply Set

Los Angeles, Dec. 21 (INS)—Time Supply, Mrs. F. A. Carreud's winner of the recent $25,000 Bay Meadows Handicap, will attempt to repeat his victory in the opening day Christmas stakes race at Santa Anita, it was announced today.

At the same time is was announced that Head Play, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's winner of the 1933 Preakness, also will go to the post in the first stake race in southern California in 25 years.

B. U. FROSH WIN

Boston University yearling basketball five defeated the Crimson Frosh, 39 to 31, at the Terriers' Arena gym court. B. U. led at half time, 22 to 11. Russell Lawry and Horace Sternburg, teaming at forward positions for B. U., accounted for 12 points each.

Giroux Thinks Fast So Hitch's Cubs Win

UNBEATEN B. C. AND GREEN IN ARENA ICE CLASH

By Bill Grimes

There's a high class college attraction, Boston College vs. Dartmouth, scheduled for the Arena tonight . . . Neither the Eagles nor the Big Green have met with a defeat this season . . . B. C. holds decisions over Northeastern and Brown while the Indians have a verdict over St. Anselm's.

The Olympic Club will be at the Arena tonight in a body looking over Coach Herbie Gill's Dartmouth aggregation to get some first hand information on the strength and style of play of the Indians, whom they meet tomorrow at the Arena.

The Cubs came through with another victory last night, nosing out the Quebec Beavers, 2 to 1 . . . Despite the scarcity of goals, it was a thrilling game and one of the closest the "Hitch-Men" have engaged in this season . . . Bob Blake and Art Giroux did the scoring for the Cubs, while the Quebec goal was contributed by Paul Runge.

Art Giroux's winning goal was not only a beautiful piece of execution but it was the result of exceptionally fast piece of thinking . . . Manager Albert Leduc was not in the Quebec lineup . . . He dislocated his left shoulder in the second Providence game in Quebec and will be out of action for another week or 10 days . . .

John Bernardi, the popular and efficient professional, has signed a five years' contract with the Charles River Country Club.

Judging from the rare intervals he appears on the ice, Art Somers, the stocky fiery forward has lost caste with the Rangers . . . There are plenty of N. H. L. clubs which could use Somers regularly without weakening their teams . . . Can it be that Artie is a trifle too strenuous for the present day type of hockey?

One of the causes for the scarcity of hockey talent is that the big league moguls, instead of waiting for youngsters to develop by serving their apprenticeships through the three grades of amateur hockey, have been plucking kids out of the cradle . . . Now that the "simon pures" have discovered that there is a better financial return in amateur and commercial hockey than in minor leagues, they are getting a better schooling and within a few years will be ready for the big show . . .

There's no better predictor of how much a sporting event will gross than Tommy Waters, of the Boston Garden box office corps and Sir Thomas says he'd like to have a half interest in Max Kase's bet that tonight's ring show will draw a gate of $22,000 or better.

Boston College spares—Funchion, Murphy, Conlin, Wise, McDermott, O'Dowd, Sampson, Groden, Zibell.

Dartmouth spares—Wolff, Devlin, Bennett, Otis, O'Hare, Pounder.

Game starts at 8 15.

Fights on at 8 P.M.

With 50 rounds of boxing and the personal appearance of three world's champions, Max Baer, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. announced today that the classic tonight at the Boston Garden will start promptly at 8 o'clock, because of the long program.

Valenti also announced that there are many choice seats available and tickets can be obtained at the Goodwin A. C. downtown headquarters, 293 Washington st., room 33, telephone Capitol 5655; the Boston Garden, North Station, telephone Capitol 3200; the Boston Arena, St. Botolph st., Commonwealth 2040 and the Bruins season ticket office at Jordan Marsh Co.

THEY WERE GREATEST RING MAGNETS

MAX BAER   JACK DEMPSEY   JACK SHARKEY

Dempsey, Sharkey and Baer have drawn approximately $16,000,000 through the gates as leather pushers. Dempsey has been responsible for $10,000,000 alone, Sharkey $4,500,000 and Baer the balance. A lot of dough but figure it this way. If the money was placed in dollar bills end on end from the Boston State House in a straight line, it would reach to Miami. Each dollar is six inches long. Figure it out.

JONES PLANS TO STAY 2 YEARS OUT OF GAME

By Universal Service

New Orleans, La., Dec. 21—Captain "Biff" Jones, who resigned as coach of the Louisiana State University football team rather than permit Senator Huey Long to interfere, today said his plans for the future were rather indefinite.

Captain Jones stated that he planned to keep out of football for the next two years.

"I expect to be out of football for at least two years. I am trying to get an appointment from the War Department to Leavenworth."

Reluctantly, "Biff" admitted that Long's continued interference had prompted his resignation from L. S. U.

Ted Cox, head coach of the Tulane Green Wave, which meets Temple University in the inaugural Sugar Bowl game New Year's Day, has been signed for three more years, it was announced by Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, athletic director, today.

DIZ'S BROTHER A PUSHOVER FOR KID CUPID

DAFFY KEEPS BRIDE WAITING 3 HOURS AT CHURCH

[illegible], Ark., Dec. 21—Little brother "Daffy" Dean, the calm and collected bridegroom who kept his bride waiting three hours, is honeymooning today.

"A real Christmas surprise, that's me," chortled "Daffy."

Sometime yesterday, the question was settled with Miss Dorothy Sandusky, local beauty prize winner.

The wedding was arranged for five o'clock. The bride was ready. Paul suddenly discovered he needed a wedding suit—a ring—a license—a shave—a haircut.

Meanwhile, the wedding hour and three more hours passed. Was the bride nervous?

"He'll be here," she said.

Then the bridegroom drove up to the Sandusky residence. Hurriedly the wedding party gathered and the ceremony begun.

As calm as her husband, the bride ate her dinner while he explained just how this all came about.

"Aw, I'd been seeing her around ever since she was a skinny little girl going barefoot." Eventually he confessed that it was somewhat of a "whirlwind" courtship over the last two months that settled the matter.

AUSTEN LAKE on Relaxation and Nerve Control

Austen Lake

AMID THE JUMBLE OF NICKELED coffee pots and the rinds of a late breakfast Maxie Rosenbloom, the Hebrew glove fighter, sprawled on his hotel bed, nude from the waist up and displaying an upholstery of muscle that resembled a pan of home baked biscuits, brown and titillating.

Maxie was relaxing, stretching his sinuous arms and blinking in the midday sun that streamed through his windows. Tonight at the Garden he would fight Tony Shucco, the rugged North End Italian boy.

But last night, until the wee hours of the morning, he had loafed in the hurly-burly of a Boston night club, listening to the brassy music and watching the feminine twitches and wobbles of the floor show.

Contrary to athletic theory, this is a sane pre-match policy.

"They say I'm goofy," said Maxie with a sly leer. "Well, I keep my mind busy until 2 or 3 o'clock. Then I'm ready to sleep when I hit the hay. I get up, maybe at 11, fresh as a new shirt, with only a little time to worry about the fight."

* * *

Saving Pre-Match Energy

MAXIE'S SYSTEM IS NOT NEW, though rarely used. I have known Ted Meredith the once great middle-distance racer, to prowl around Philadelphia before a serious race until dawn's pale fingers streaked the sky, rising scarcely an hour before going to the starting line.

Howard Jones, the Southern California football coach, encourages his players to stay up late and sleep correspondingly before a major game, feeling that the lads will slumber better and be saved the long, nerve-sapping tension of the morning hours.

Pre-match worry, to which all athletic men are heir, uses up more energy than the match itself. Nature has an antidote for this, so that fighters, football and hockey players know the feeling of lethargy and extreme sleepiness that precedes the big moment.

A mysterious heaviness descends on the athlete. Thus, before his first match with Jack Dempsey Gene Tunney spent the early evening hours slumbering soundly as though drugged, and the newsmen commented on the singular steel nerve qualities of the challenger who could doze like a babe just before the crisis of his boxing career.

But instead of cold, calm control, it was an excess of nervousness that induced this slumber. Compensating nature was offsetting the jitters that would otherwise have spent Tunney's energies before his gloves were laced on.

A Hot Spot

But Maxie Rosenbloom, former 175-pound champion, looks composed and finds relaxation in this method.

Hockey Players Know It, Too

ON THIS LINE OF THOUGHT, Frank Patrick, the Bruins' bench boss, tells me that only one man of his team fails to sleep on the afternoon preceding a hockey game. And that loner is Eddie Shore, whose cold-rolled nerve is proof against pre-match tremors.

I recall the story told about Ruby Goldstein, the lightweight fighter, who was keyed to concert pitch and ready to walk down the aisle at Madison Square Garden some years ago. The fighting fever was in his eye as he flexed his muscles by toe-dancing and flicking his gloved hands against the dressing room walls. He was fit to lick his weight in wolves at that moment, eager to be moving.

A knock at the door. "Let's go," yelped Ruby. But no! It was Jimmy Johnston, the promoter, who announced: "Mayor Jimmy Walker just called up. He'll be half an hour late and wants the fight delayed till he gets here."

And 30 minutes later, Goldstein, his nerve drained and the flush of eagerness faded, took a sound spanking.

"That's one for Jimmy Walker," said Ruby as he lay, battered and bleeding, on his rubbing table.

Chick Is Kingfish's Ideal

IF SENATOR HUEY LONG, the Louisiana Catfish, is serious in bringing Chick Meehan, ex-N. Y. C. and present Manhattan "U" football coach to Louisiana State, he has picked a man of his own kidney.

Because Meehan, like Long, is a creative football showman who came to New York some years ago and dressed the N. Y. C. players in giddy, gayly costumes cribbed from Broadway girl shows. He designed strange dance step formations more to please the eye of the crowd than to puzzle the opposition. He spent his summers in rounding up husky schoolboy material with full consent and financial aid from the college authorities.

All this and much more was contained in a recent confession, published in a national magazine. So, if Huey Long is looking for a substitute for Biff Jones and is willing to pay Meehan's high fee, let him look no further. Chick is the ideal fit for the spot.

Collins' Hail and Farewell to Pennock

HERB PENNOCK, LEAN, PLEASANT-FACED veteran of the Red Sox pitching staff, will be retired to sedentary duties next spring. He may be added to the coaching group or to the scouting corps. But he will not be dropped.

Thus Eddie Collins is on the end of Pennock's pitching career, as he was, originally, in at the beginning. Back in 1912, when Herb walked from the Athletics' bullpen to the box to pitch his first baseball game as a major leaguer, it was Collins who came over and patted him reassuringly and said:

"It's just another ball game, kid."

They were trite, familiar words, but Pennock says they are engraved on his memory. Now in Herb's athletic old age, it is another scene, but the same Eddie who pats him on the shoulder as a valedictory to a long and useful career.

He's only a youngster, but Frank Parker may be the coming tennis emperor. Expert Johnny Tunis says Frank has the makings.

'Tennis Brains' Problem Unsolved By Coach

By John R. Tunis

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

Parker's forehand can and certainly will be improved. It is possible to teach a boy strokes but no coach can think for the player.

The great players of the game have been smart. William T. Tilden, Rene LaCoste and Jean Borotra, to name only three, were men who used their heads continually.

Whether Parker has the ability to outguess and outthink an opponent or not, whether it will come as he grows older, no one can tell. If it does there is no reason why he may not be one of the greatest champions we have ever had.

Dan O'Mahoney Signs Only One Boston Bout

Bowser Picks Rival

By Jack Conway

DAN O'MAHONEY, Ireland's greatest athlete, has consented to engage in one wrestling bout in America under the direction of Paul Bowser. The contest will be staged at the Garden on January 4. Following this tussle the sensational O'Mahoney will return to Ireland to wrestle in a bout under the auspices of the Irish Free State Hospital Fund.

Mr. Boston

Under the terms of the contract signed by O'Mahoney, his opponent must be named by Paul Bowser on or before December 26.

The young Irish heavyweight has been guaranteed $15,000 for his bout at the Garden. This is the largest amount guaranteed a wrestler or boxer in Boston during the past four years.

Bowser has offered O'Mahoney a guarantee of $100,000 for six contests, but Ireland's premier athlete didn't wish to tie himself up for a long period.

O'Mahoney says he will return to Ireland immediately after his engagement at the Garden.

Bowser declared he has not decided who he will pit against O'Mahoney.

"I consider O'Mahoney one of the greatest athletes I have ever seen," said Paul, "and I feel he can take care of himself in any company."

* * *

O'Mahoney Meets Curley

O'MAHONEY visited Governor-elect Curley at the latter's Beacon street headquarters shortly before signing with Bowser.

"You look like a great athlete," Curley said to O'Mahoney, who had on the uniform he wore when in the Irish Free State army. "You will have to keep in good condition, my boy, for in America they throw wrestlers out of the ring and let their heads bounce off concrete floors. It doesn't make any difference how big they are either."

Teddy Glynn was introduced to O'Mahoney by Paul Bowser.

"You are the first wrestler I have met who wasn't a foreigner," said Glynn.

This remark made O'Mahoney grin from ear to ear.

The Governor-elect said he would be at the ringside when O'Mahoney makes his bow in Boston.

PROTAGONIST, BROKEN UP, LONG COUNT

FIRST RACE

1	Protagonist	118	Wright	2-1
4	Broken Up	108	Wright	2-1
12	Long Count	105	Porter	10-1
3	Fan	x100	Peden	10-1
9	Scotch Tom	118	Louman	10-1
13	Baby Chard	115	Merritt	10-1
11	Kuvito	x113	Bryson	15-1
10	Rich Phil	x113	Maschek	15-1
5	Bottle	118	Malear	20-1
6	Gift Contour	105	Fallon	20-1
7	Donna Tutti	x100	G. Watson	20-1
2	Najort	108	Arcaro	20-1
8	Mira	105	Cowley	20-1

PROTAGONIST was a corking second behind the fleet Earl Porter in his debut. BROKEN UP would have beaten Doubleton in a few more jumps last out. LONG COUNT is credited with several fast morning trials.

SCOTCH GOLD, CORRYMELLA, FRED ALMY

SECOND RACE—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs:

2	Scotch Gold	117	Renick	2-1
4	Corrymeela	114	G. Watson	3-1
1	Fred Almy	117	Renick	3-1
5	Candescent	115	Smith	6-1
3	Wedding Ring	x109	Peden	10-1
7	Prince Drake	112	Hanka	10-1
6	Squeeze Out	x101	Lynch	20-1

SCOTCH GOLD, second to Jesting last time, is dropping down in this affair. CORRYMEELA shapes up as the class of the others. FRED ALMY turned in a smashing effort against weaker ones last time.

CHAUMONT, YELLOW METAL, REPRESENTATIVE

THIRD RACE—Purse $500, claiming, four-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles:

3	Chaumont	115	Hernandez	7-1
6	Mellow Metal	x107	Smith	3-1
1	Repre'ntative	x110	Parvin	3-1
8	Uncovered	110	Wall	10-1
5	Calgary Kay	x105	Lindberg	10-1
4	Happy Hopes	115	S. Renick	15-1
2	Meeting Place	x110	Landolt	15-1
7	Troford	110	Hainesworth	20-1

CHAUMONT, a corking third to Flaxen the other day, needs only to repeat that effort in order to grace the winner's circle. YELLOW METAL, a sluggish beginner, figures to be along in time to save the place from REPRESENTATIVE. The latter should improve many pounds off his last record.

LILLIAN UHL, EARL PORTER, ELWAWA

FOURTH RACE—Purse $500, allowances, two-year-olds, five and one-half furlongs.

3	Lillian Uhl	103	Haines	2-1
4	Earl Porter	106	Porter	2-1
1	Elwawa	112	Manifold	4-1
2	Flight of Gold	103	J. Renick	8-1
5	Stick Handle	106	Bagur	10-1
6	Foxy Agnes	110	Stout	10-1

LILLIAN UHL strikes me as the class of this affair. That last effort should have put her on razor edge. EARL PORTER was never fully extended when graduating from the maiden ranks a few days back. No telling how good the half-brother to Gold Step really is right now. ELWAWA, a Kentucky campaigner, for what is left.

SABULA, NOAH'S PRIDE, BAND WAGON

FIFTH RACE—Purse $1000, handicap, all ages, one mile and one-sixteenth.

5	Sabula	116	Litzenberger	2-1
2	Noahs Pride	115	Parvin	3-1
6	aBandwagon	114	Wright	3-1
4	aJesting	111	Arcaro	3-1
1	General Parth	100	Bagur	6-1
3	Garden Message	116	Louman	6-1

aC. J. Bill entry.

SABULA is picking up six pounds additional weight off that last victory, but I just can't go past her for the probable winner. NOAH'S PRIDE was beaten less than a length by the top one in that same race and had a bit of bad luck. The Creech breadwinner is strictly the one to fear. BAND WAGON may break into the picture if sent right back.

BUSHMAN, FLOWERY LADY, SLEEPY JOE

SIXTH RACE—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one and 1-16 miles:

4	Bushman	111	R. Watson	10-1
..	Flowry Lady	x108	Parvin	2-1
8	Sleepy Joe	108	Corbett	2-1
1	Sound Money	x105	Lynch	8-1
7	Flying Deere	x103	G. Watson	10-1
3	Dancing Boy	116	Pascuma	10-1
2	Barney Sexton	116	Arcaro	10-1
5	Sturdy Ark	108	Litzenberger	20-1

BUSHMAN may prove a genuine sleeper in this number. The Smallman colorbearer is loads better than that last race would indicate. FLOWERY LADY was barely nosed out by Idle Along last out while SLEEPY JOE just failed to outlast Flaxen.

TRIANGULAR, BRASS MONKEY, RESURRECTION

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $

4	Triangular	x105	Lynch	3-1
5	Brass Monkey	113	Mitchell	2-1
1	Resurrection	113	Horn	6-1
8	Idle Along	x105	Wall	3-1
2	Peedeeque	113	Landolt	6-1
3	Ukraine	110	Malear	20-1

TRIANGULAR ran a winning race after being left at the gate last time. With more alert handling at the gate, he should tie a field of this sort in knots. BRASS MONKEY will relish the distance, and is strictly the one to beat. RESURRECTION might have won his last with intelligent handling.

ANNA V. L., MEROVECH, KALOLA

EIGHTH RACE (Substitute)—Purse $500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

3	Anna V. L.	x105	Lynch	2-1
4	Merovech	x108	Lindberg	4-1
2	Kalola	116	Madeley	4-1
7	Hidden Lore	108	Porter	6-1
8	Fire Reel	113	Fallon	6-1

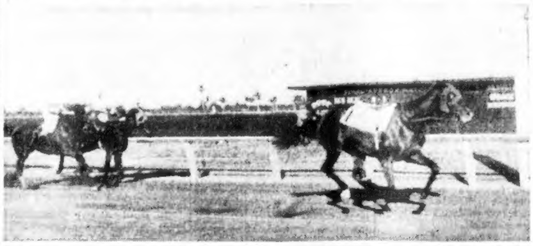
THIS HOSS NEEDED NO RIDER TO WIN



New Deal, a three-year-old, showed he had needed no jockey to show the rest the way home in a race at Tropical Park. The horse threw his jockey shortly after the barrier was raised but went on to win. He was disqualified, however, and Slapdash awarded the race. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Coaches Turn Down Grid Offers

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

New York, Dec. 21—Tacitly and by mutual understanding, the American Football Coaches' Association has declared a boycott against Louisiana State University and Mr. Huey Long, the one-man ensemble.

At least a checkup today reveals quite some few off-the-record expressions on the subject from members of the association, in and out of work, and besides we have the tangible evidence as provided by the frank statements of Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago University coach, and Bennie Bierman of Minnesota.

Shaughnessy and Bierman were publicly threatened by Senator Long, who announced in the papers, following the resignation of "Biff" Jones, that he planned to hire them. They thanked the senator for the warning and swiftly withdrew.

Hanley Declines

Dick Hanley, just recently unfrocked at Northwestern, also was mentioned by the senator, a fact that might ordinarily be expected to have a certain appeal to a man out of a job.

But, in a few, well-considered words, he said he wanted to stay out. They even got around to Chick Meehan, who may yet be replaced at little Manhattan College, which is tantamount to being kicked off the curbstone.

Mr. Meehan hadn't received any offer, but his faith no longer is as stout as it was, and he fears overconfidence.

Anyhow, he wishes to announce that he does not want any offer. He's afraid he might lose all self-control and wind up with $10,000 a year, thereby losing a lot of money. It seems that, with Mr. Long around, you use the first $9000 for aspirin.

Of course, Mr. Long will get himself a football coach before many days, the market being what it is.

"Jobless coaches clutter market," says one headline this morning."

And, after all, a boycott is a very splendid thing. But you can't eat it.

8 ICE GAMES ARENA, GARDEN

SCENES OF ACTION

By Bill Connell

Two school hockey leagues tune up today for their busiest week-end of the season, with four-game programs at the Arena and Garden tomorrow afternoon.

The Greater Boston League holds its second set of games, while the Bay State loop puts on its first four-star edition of this season.

Melrose is favored over Rindge, Arlington over Newton, Medford over Belmont, and Cambridge Latin over Stoneham at the Garden. Melrose, Arlington and the Cantabs were victors last week and are rated the teams to beat for any school seeking the league title.

At the Arena, Needham vs. Watertown, Walpole vs. Waltham, Boston College High vs. Wellesley and Quincy vs. Framingham are carded. Results of tomorrow's games will give the first real indication on the possibilities of the league's race.

The conflict of attractions probably won't hurt at all. Each league draws its own followers, who rarely attend the other circuit's sessions. The move to the Garden will help the Greater Boston attendance. The North Station site is more convenient than the Arena, where last Saturday's card went on, for many hundreds of the league fans.

Sopwith in Error Is Finding

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 21—Had the race committee been forced to disqualify either contender in the now historic fourth contest of the 1934 America's Cup series, it would have been T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour which would have suffered, not the American Defender, Rainbow.

In a long and complicated report to the New York Yacht Club, the cup race committee explained why it declined to hear Sopwith's protest over two alleged fouls by Rainbow—first, that Harold S. Vanderbilt, Rainbow's skipper, failed to give him racing room at the start, and second, that Rainbow, the overtaking yacht, failed to respond to Endeavour's luff after the yachts had turned the first buoy.

The committee explained that fault at the disputed start had lain with Sopwith and that therefore it could not consider the Briton's later protest over the luffing incident since Endeavour would have had to have been disqualified prior to the start if the protests had been heard at all.

At the time, the committee announced it had declined to hear Sopwith's protests because he had waited three hours after the first alleged foul and one and three-quarters hours after the second before raising the protest flag. The rules provide the flag must be raised "promptly" when an alleged foul is committed.

Sopwith Refuses to Discuss Issue

London, Dec. 21 (AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, owner and skipper of the British challenger for the America's Cup, Endeavour, today declined to comment on the report of the race committee, which was made public in New York, until he had received a copy by mail.

Joe Gets Ready

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C., National A. A. U. 3000-meter steeplechaser champion, has settled down to intensive training for a campaign on the boards this winter.

McCluskey will make his first start of the indoor season in the 3000-meter special of the Brooklyn K. of C. games, January 9, competing against a field that may include Paul Mundy, national 15-kilometer title-holder, and Paul de Bruyn and William Steiner, well-known marathoners.

N. U. PROBLEM

Northeastern's chances of playing through a New England championship basketball season depends a great deal on the return of Warren Cushman to the Husky lineup.

Warren, a six-foot pivot for the frosh team last year, has been ineligible this season. Coach Al McCoy hopes he will be reinstated during the second semester.

Meanwhile, McCoy has been forced to draft Mert Rice, a veteran guard, for center.

Bowl Roads Cross

New Orleans, Dec. 21 (AP)—Two Bowl foes cross paths here today—but not on a gridiron.

Alabama's Crimson Tide will stop over for several hours on its way to the West Coast, where it will meet Stanford in the annual Rose Bowl game. At the same time, Tulane's Green Wave continues its gradually accelerated practice in preparation for "Pap" Warner's Templers in the Sugar Bowl game, also on New Year's Day.

Gophers Champs

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 21 (INS)—Minnesota today had possession of the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the acknowledged national football champions.

The plaque was awarded between halves of the Minnesota-Carleton basketball game last night, which the Minnesota quintet won by a 34-to-26 score.

Fat Man's Trouble Haunting Terry

Pilot Shrewd

BILL GENEROUS WITH GIANTS PLAYERS

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 21—From his old home in Memphis, Tenn., 'way down yonder on the levee, Colonel William Harold Terry, manager of the Giants, announces that as soon as he can get a couple of inches off his waistline, he will have the best ball team he ever managed. Maybe the colonel got to thinking that nobody loves a fat man.

It is strange but true that the colonel's best pal and severest critic among the sports scriveners is another Memphis, Tenn., boy who made good in the city.

Now that it's Christmas time again, they should get together and sing "The Beale Street Blues" under the mistletoe.

Mention of the mistletoe reminds me that I haven't played postoffice for years and years. Let's get up a game some time.

Lunching with Horace Stoneham and Bob Harron during the baseball meeting, the conversation veered around to Terry. Horace probably is closer to the colonel than any other official of the Giants, and I have known him since the morning John McGraw tossed him a first baseman's mitt in Sarasota and told him: "From now on you're a first baseman."

"You hear a lot about Terry's asking, 'what's in it for me?'" said young Stoneham, "and there is no doubt but what he is a hard-fisted business man. That's one of the things we like about him.

"When everything is taken into consideration it takes six or seven hundred thousand dollars to launch a club such as ours on a new season. Which is big business, isn't it? Terry is the type of manager who doesn't have to be told that. He's a fellow who can take a team south on a spring training trip, travel first class all the way, and still come close to winding up on the right side of the ledger for the training period.

"Such things are highly important with a big league club these days. Terry is a natural money maker, but he isn't close. Right after we won the pennant in '33, the team and Terry indorsed some product for an advertising firm. Each player's share was $100. Bill got $1000.

"One day a fellow showed up in the clubhouse with the checks. Terry indorsed his, handed it to the player nearest him, said in a quiet voice, 'you fellows split that up among you' and went on out to the field to warm up.

"I could tell you several similar incidents that have cropped up since he has been with us. But say, he's a hard man to sign to a contract."

Habit is a powerful thing and sentiment, I think as a rule, a good thing. John McGraw is dead. Horace Stoneham and Eddie Brannick are grown men, holding important positions with the Giants. Yet both continue to refer to the late leader of the Giants as "Mr. McGraw." Even though it may be an unconscious mark of respect, you like them better for it.

If Madison Square Garden could get as much ballyhoo on its fighters as it gets on its officials, the old query of "What's wrong with boxing?" would be answered forthwith. The trouble is that the public won't pay to see Kilpatrick, Hammond and Johnston in action.

Johnston, a quaint little limey from Liverpool, hasn't changed in the 14 years I have known him. They say he puts Bixby's on his hair. I don't know. I know it always looks the same.

He cocks his derby over one eye, talks a great deal, and sometimes a deal of nothing, has a sharp tongue of which he is seldom at any pains to control, although it has never seemed to me that there was much venom in what he had to say. Every afternoon he presides at high tea at Child's in the Garden lobby.

And he really drinks tea. Never has tasted anything stronger. Never has smoked. Seems to be out to establish some sort of record for an American family. Already has a football team of his own. Also a Dresden doll-like little daughter, so pretty she "ougha be in pictures," and of whom he is inordinately proud. Understandably so.

Makes many opening nights and hoofs a snappy step with all the pretty ladies, including the Mrs. Knows Broadway from the Battery to the Bronx and has a story ready at all times about any of its characters you chance to mention. Has been intensively loyal to Jimmy Walker. Possibly for good cause. But so did others have good cause.

All in all, a remarkable man for a fellow who can't be so very young any more. He's been around too long. I like Johnston.

Headaches for Ryder at Heights

HE'S PUZZLED BY NEW TRACK TIME TESTS

Jack Ryder, Boston College track coach, sees new problems in the new board track at University Heights.

Jack was the expert on the old track which saw some 30 years of service. Of ancient construction, without banks on the corners, the old track served its purpose admirably, and many fast times were turned in on it.

The thing that Ryder regrets is that no matter what times his athletes registered he could determine their relative time on any other track. Now, with the new banked track, figuring must be forgotten. And a new set of calculations developed.

NEW BOSS SAVES EAGLES SIX

ICE WORM TURNS IN ONE WEEK FOR BUCK

By Bill Grimes

Until George "Buck" Boucher replaced Eddie Gerard as manager, the St. Louis Eagles were rapidly slipping out of the back door of the Canadian Division of the N. H. L.

They had won only two games in 14 starts. The Mound City fans were deserting the Eagles at an alarming rate. The few still interested in the club threw up their hands in disgust when Max Kaminsky was traded to the Bruins.

BOUCHER SAVES DAY

Just when major league hockey was about doomed in the Mound City, Eddie Gerard decided that he had had enough and quit. Then, the Ottawa owners turned to Boucher, whom they had sidetracked for Gerard. Boucher did a very creditable job with this aggregation a year ago when it was representing Ottawa.

Buck Boucher took over the St. Louis club one week ago tomorrow night in Montreal, just before the team took the ice to play Les Canadiens. Immediately, the Eagles snapped to it. After an overtime tie with the Frenchmen, the Eagles went into New York and beat the Americans, 2 to 1 in another overtime conflict. Last night, on their first appearance at home with Boucher at the helm, they played their third consecutive overtime game and were rewarded with a draw with the Maple Leafs.

Under Boucher the St. Louis Eagles have not lost a game and have won four out of a possible six points, with two of the games played on the road. If there is any hockey in that St. Louis outfit, Boucher will bring it out, for there is no manager in the N. H. L. held in higher esteem by his players.

Bags Elk, Age 40

By Associated Press

Gardiner, Mont., Dec. 21—Neil Proffer, Billings, Mont., isn't especially pleased over the fact he was one of the first hunters to bag an elk when the season opened north of the Yellowstone Park boundary. This particular animal, it developed, had been tethered to a tree by forest rangers each winter for seven years as a decoy to attract others of the park elk herd into the preserve.

And besides, a tag on the animal read: "Age, 40 years.

Bobby Shows How

By Associated Press

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 21—Little Bobby Cruickshank counted consistently the rarest of golfing virtues today as he pocketed first prize money in the $5000 British Colonial open tournament. He won with a 72-hole score of 267.

The Richmond (Va.) professional put together four cards that did not vary more than two strokes and made them return $500. Butler won $350, Mallory $250. Joe Turnesa of Hartford, Ct., amassed a 273 for sixth.

COLLAPSE OF GIANTS, VICTORY OF LIONS RATED IN REPORT

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Judging from the reaction of the country's sporting experts, 1934 is the year of the big earthquake in athletic results.

There may be sharp differences of opinion as to just what constitutes an "upset" in sports, but there appears no doubt, on the basis of the Associated Press' fourth annual poll, that the experts experienced more and bigger shocks this year than ever before.

From Pasadena on New Year's Day, when Columbia's Lions upset Stanford, until the Polo Grounds in December, when the football Giants bowled over the Chicago Bears, it was one big surprise after another in every major branch of athletic competition.

Biggest of all "upsets," apparently, was the football triumph of Yale's "Iron Men" over previously unbeaten heavily favored Princeton, but the experts had a difficult time choosing between this stunning achievement and the collapse of the New York Giants in baseball or the consequent rush of the St. Louis Cardinals to the year's major league heights.

YALE ELEVEN TOPS LIST

Arriving at a decision on "points," based upon the listing of first, second and third choice of surprise packages, Yale's victory tops the list with 126 points, one more than the combined National League and World Series conquests of the Cardinals, already proclaimed the year's outstanding team.

The downfall of the Giants ranks third, with 84 points, although it appeared much more surprising to those giving the matter first-hand attention than the rise of the St. Louis club.

Football's next biggest upset, the overthrow of the Bears by the Giants for the national professional title, was closely pressed by Columbia's Rose Bowl victory.

Michigan's gridiron collapse was viewed as more startling than the decline of Southern California's fortunes. Indiana's upset of Purdue startled Big Ten circles, while Nevada's defeat of St. Mary's was the major gridiron shock to the Far West.

BAER TURNS IN SURPRISE

The biggest upset of the fistic year, of course, was Max Baer's spectacular knockout of Primo Carnera for the world heavyweight championship. Polo contributed to the general upheaval with the triumph of the Eastern "Kids" over the All-Star Western team, at Meadow Brook, while experts also ranked the comeback of Rainbow to defend the America's Cup, after losing the first two races to Endeavour, among the outstanding surprises.

Bracketing team and individual upsets in the same list, here's the tabulation of the poll, including points (3 for first, 2 for second and 1 for third):

Upset or surprise performance.	Points
Yale's football victory over Princeton	126
Drive of Cardinals to pennant and World Series triumph	125
Collapse of N. Y. Giants in National league race	84
Defeat of Chicago Bears by N. Y. Giants (pro football)	65
Columbia's Rose Bowl football victory over Stanford	54
Michigan's footbal collapse	34
Southern California's football decline	24
Nevada's football defeat of St. Mary's	21
East's polo victory over West	[illegible]
Pennant victory of Detroit Tigers	18
Comeback of Rainbow in America's cup yacht races	15
Indiana's football victory over Purdue	11
Downfall of Washington Senators in American League	9
Navy's football victory over Army	7

Other team surprises: U. S. Davis Cup comeback against Australia; Wisconsin's football victory over Illinois; Texas Christian's football win over Rice; Brooklyn's late-season defeat of Giants in baseball.

Other individual surprises: Olin Dutra's comeback to win U. S. open golf; Lefty Grove's pitching failure; Wilmer Allison's advance to finals in U. S. tennis; Bill Bonthron's defeat of Glenn Cunningham after latter's record time; victory of Detroit's Bobby Jones over Francis Ouimet in U. S. amateur golf; comeback of Jimmy McLarnin to regain world welter boxing title from Barney Ross; sale of Joe Cronin to the Red Sox; decline of Chuck Klein from baseball batting heights, and Schoolboy Rowe's string of 16 straight pitching victories.

Thorne in Race

New York, Dec. 21 (INS)—Joel Thorne, New Rochelle (N.Y.) youngster, who is America's outboard racing champion and has won a hundred trophies on the water, today began a campaign for new laurels in another sport—automobile racing.

He sails for Europe today to compete in the $10,000 race at Monte Carlo. His car is called Blue Prelude.

Roxbury Bowling Leader

BUSINESSMEN'S LEAGUE HAS MANY STARS

By Ed Cogswell

"I believe the Roxbury Businessmen's League is the strongest amateur bowling organization in Greater Boston," declared Joe Grant to me at the Eagle alleys. "The league has been in existence for years and carries a very strong list of first-class bowlers.

"Just look at the number having season averages of 100 and over, and then just look at this list of those that are close to that figure. You won't find a poor bowler in the lot. I'm proud of this league."

Let's see what the members did at the last series of matches. Callahan's rolled 1540 against Elk's Towel and scored four points. The latter was in a tie for first place, but the defeat knocked them back, tied with Plating for second position, Publix Theaters stepping into the van by two points.

Four of the Callahan team starred. Bruce connected for 331 pins, Swan 328, Harrison 307 and Flynn 305. The high man on the Elk's Towel was Rose with 320. A notable performance was turned in by "Iron Man" Hobbs, who led the league with his first string in 143, and a total of 351.

South Station had a very smooth evening in the Greater Boston League by topping the 1500 mark by nine pins and moved alone into second place, previously occupied by three teams in a tie. The high men on the team were Sheingold's 333, Fitzgerald's 332 and Cornell with 330. In the same league Pepe got after the maples in his third string for 143, while Christie came across with a total of 325.

United Carrs, in the Bunker Hill League at the North Station, put up the fine team mark of 1504, Columbo being the star with 313 . . . Over at the Twentieth Century one named Bland did the honors in the Internal Revenue League by putting into the record three strings in 331 . .

Good Job for 1935 Waiting

By Joe Cashman

The resignation of Charlie Rigler, second oldest umpire in point of service in the National League, leaves th senior circuit needing two arbiters to fill the new quota agreed on during the recent winter meeting.

There'll be no lack of applicants for the berths. For steady employment as well as handsome salary, the umpiring job is just about the most attractive major league ball has to offer, and there are always a flock of seekers for every vacancy.

But will the two men chosen be capable arbiters? More often than not, newcomers to the ranks of the "boys in blue" are woefully inefficient.

GOOD UMPS AVAILABLE

They'll tell you that good umpires are perhaps the scarcest commodity on the baseball market today.

Charlie Rigler

Be that as it may, this envoy wants to go on record to the effect that if the National League doesn't get two first-class workmen to complete its staff, it will have no legitimate excuse for its failure.

There's a fellow named Dick Nallin available. He labored with honor to himself and baseball for 18 seasons in the American League only to be let out on some very thin technicality.

There's also a gent named "Bull" Guthrie who, too, toiled in the junior loop. Why he was let out is one of baseball's most puzzling mysteries. Pitchers said he was the best ball and strike man in the business. He's now in the Coast League.

TOM DUNN, A STANDOUT

If these two are considered too old, what's the matter with Tom Dunn of Fitchburg? He made a name for himself in the American Association before taking over his present job in the Pacific Coast League and acted as the Braves umpire in spring exhibition games several seasons.

And we might also suggest John "Shono" Collins, former Red Sox manager, or Bob Brickley, a Dorchester boy who has never risen above sandlot and college ranks but who can umpire rings around many of the big league's so-called greats.

We aren't trying to talk any friend into a job. It will be o. k. with us if the National League goes to Russia or the Nile for the new men.

But if the newcomers prove "flops," we don't want to again hear the threadbare claim that the best material available was acquired.

Comins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Comins of 407 Highland ave., Winchester. For the past two seasons, Comins has been a power in the Governors' line, playing the guard position. He is a member of the Class of '36 and is preparing for Dartmouth.

"WIFE IN CUSTODY"

By Beatrice Lubitz

CHAPTER XXXI

Helen and the baby and the nurse arrived in New York at eight o'clock. Walter met her at the apartment. He was white with anger.

"What could have got into you, Helen, to do anything so insane as this? It's madness! You might have given Gracie her death of cold, taking her out so late at night. She was thriving so beautifully on the farm. You haven't anything here—her pram or her bed! Stella called me up and she's wild."

For the first time in her married life, Helen felt equal to the occasion. "When you're right," Dirk had told her, "be firm, speak up. Don't weaken!"

Helen faced her husband levelly. "Listen, Walter, if you want to live on the farm with Stella, you may. I'm entitled to a home of my own and I'm going to have it. I invited Stella to come out to us after her illness for a week or two to recuperate. I didn't expect her to share my life and my home. I've left her with the whole house, everything; the servants, the furniture, the whole works. She's welcome to them. But I won't live with her. Do you understand?" she asked. Her eyes were steady.

Walter paled. "No, I don't understand you, Helen," he said, but the anger had died out of his face. "What did Stella do that should have excited you so?"

DESERTING STELLA?

Helen began to laugh. She controlled herself with an effort as she felt the tentacles of hysteria take hold of her. Dirk would not approve of her laughing. Between gasps she said, "She wouldn't let the Havemeyers in," and then because the bitter outrage of the situation filled her with fury, this time she really lost herself in throes of hysterical laughter.

When she was quite calm again and the baby was asleep, she faced Walter again:

"I will not go back to Bound Brook until Stella goes and that's all there's to it, Walt. If she wants the house she can have it. I'll spend th. winter here."

"It will look as if we've deserted Stella in her hour of need," Walter said desperately. "I should think for my sake you could have exercised a little fortitude. What will the others say?"

"Walter, I don't care what they say. How long does Stella's 'hour of need,' as you put it, last? Why should you carry the burden of Stella? It seems to me your mother could take care of her. Why everything hangs on you is beyond me."

"Because I owe Stella something—the immensity of which you don't seem to realize. Besides, she's my sister."

"What do I owe Stella, Walter?"

"You're my wife," he persisted doggedly. "It would cost you so little to be nice to her. You have everything—she has nothing. I never knew you to be ungenerous, Helen. Yet now when you can do something for her, you pack up and run. You know you have to live with your in-laws all your life—you might as well be gracious about it!"

"DON'T TALK TO ME"

"What about me? Must I always be secondary to them? What have I got that Stella hasn't? A husband? I have to share you with her, with all of them. They've insulted me and humiliated me and imposed on me and I'm supposed to bear it. Why? Why do I have to live with them all my life?" Helen cried, her cheeks flaring. "Oh," suddenly she was sobbing wildly, "don't tell me again what you owe them or I'll scream!"

"Helen, dearest, please."

"Don't talk to me. You're blind. We could be so happy. We could enjoy our life so if only you didn't have that abnormal obsession about them. You don't love me or else you wouldn't be so unreasonable," she sobbed.

Helen gave a little cry of unspeakable misery and rushed out of the room, slamming the door after her. Half the night she lay sobbing in her bed. She heard him moving restlessly about the living room. It was three o'clock. He wouldn't come to bed . . . he'd be ill and exhausted the next day. She rose unsteadily to her feet and staggered to the door. He was sitting on the couch, his head buried in his hands.

"Walter, oh, Walter," she whispered hoarsely, "don't let's make each other miserable. I can't bear to see you unhappy."

He was beside her and they clung to each other.

"I'll try to be kind, Walter, but don't ask me to live with Stella," she persisted mutinously.

"Let's forget it. Maybe a way will present itself. If she doesn't want to stay on the farm alone I'll take an apartment for her. She can't go back to mama's. She doesn't get along with Agnes."

"Poor Walter, come to bed. I'm sure you'll find a way." Tenderly she led him to bed.

He clung to her. "Oh, Helen, it isn't easy for either of us. But what can I do?" he pleaded.

STELLA CALLS UP

She lay beside him in the darkness until he was asleep. "A truce," she thought bitterly, "and still no solution." She began to tremble with fear.

The next morning Stella phoned. Helen heard Walter talking earnestly but his voice was so low that she couldn't make out what he said. He hung up the receiver. "It will be all right. She's coming to New York today. She says she's arranged to stay at Ethel's until she finds an apartment for herself. Those two always did get along together."

"That's fine then."

"Do you want to go back to the country?"

"No, I think we ought to take a larger apartment in the house and stay over the winter. Marie and Anton are staying at Bound Brook, aren't they?"

"So far as I know."

"That will be all right then. We can go out there for week-ends. I shall speak to the house manager today. I think there's a larger apartment available on the other side."

"All right, dear, do as you think best."

"I'm not going to run away," Helen decided definitely when he had left for the Salons.

At 11 the phone rang. It was Dirk.

"I want to be the first to tell you, Helen. I heard last night you were in town. I'm at the hospital. Irene gave birth to a bouncing boy this morning," he exulted.

"Oh, Dirk! A boy! Congratulations, oh, thousands of them to you and Irene. How is she?"

"She's wonderful, Helen. He weighed nine pounds and not a whimper out of Irene."

"Oh, I'm so glad for you both. When can I seen Irene?"

FACING EACH OTHER

"Not until later in the week. But won't you have lunch with me and watch me beam with fatherhood?"

"What fun! Of course. You may beam to your heart's content. It will do me good, too. I feel old and chilled this morning and a good beaming will hearten me."

"Why, what's wrong, Helen?"

"Oh, nothing much. I won't blight your big moment by complaining. I want to hear all about the baby. Where shall I meet you?"

At noon they sat facing each other in the restaurant. So contagious was Dirk's happiness that Helen forgot her troubles for the time being.

"What are you going to call the boy, Dirk?"

"Wells, I think. Irene fancies the name," he grinned. "The kid's the image of my father. A Terhune to the bone. Dad and mother are simply wild with happiness. Funniest little shaver, the kid is, bald and as red as if he had been boiled and still, incredibly enough, he looks like father. Or is it father looks like the baby?"

"Oh, Dirk," Helen laughed.

"There you are!" he said triumphantly. "Well, I'm a happy father. Irene suffered quite a bit. There was one moment she was green as grass. I thought she'd break my arm in two, poor girl. What an ordeal it was for her! But she's positively beside with joy now, poor darling. You know, when I saw her racked with pains, I swore to myself I'd never let her go through it again. Never. It's too dreadful."

"You're a darling, Dirk. It is pretty painful but one quickly forgets. I want another child. A boy—for Walter."

"You do love him, don't you?"

"Oh, Dirk, I do . . . only . . . Oh, Dirk, I must talk to you. I hate to keep pouring my troubles out to you but you're so . . . sympathetic and kind. You've been such a help to me."

After luncheon, Helen walked slowly back to her apartment. She felt spiritually refreshed as she always did when she had been with Dirk.

* * *

Aside from a distinct coolness in her attitude toward her when they met in the hospital at Irene's bedside, no one brought up the fact that Helen had walked out on Stella. Stella greeted her icily but made no mention of what had happened.

For two weeks they all stayed away from Helen. Helen's days were full; she moved into a larger apartment.

Cecily and Helen resubscribed to their concert series and several times a week Helen alone, or in the evenings with Walter, slipped down to call on the old Terhunes.

"One of the joys I missed in the country was not seeing you," Helen told Mrs. Terhune.

"We missed you too, dear. Many's the afternoon last winter dad used to say when we sat down to tea, "If little Helen were here, it would be real cozy."

"Not really."

"Yes, yes, isn't it so, dad?"

"Honor bright," the old man twinkled.

CHANGES SUBJECT

"Well, grandfather Terhune, pretty soon Irene will be bringing the grandson down and then won't you be proud!"

The old man smiled wistfully. "I hope it will be soon."

PILLORIED TRIO ASK $75,000

By Associated Press

Paintsville, Ky., Dec. 21—The pain and humiliation of being pilloried in public was worth, by calculation of the three men chained to posts when they refused to work out fines for drunkennes, just $5000 an hour apiece.

Their thre damage suits asking a total of $75,000 from Police Judge R. A. aPtrick, Chief of Police Powell Williams and Town Marshal Jeff Allen weer on file today in Johnson County Circuit Court.

Pilloried for thre hours with iron balls attached to their shackles, Dec. 5, were James Price, Oscar "Blackie" Pelphrey and William Dills, plaintiffs in the suits, determined not to work, they are still in jail.

'Babes in Toyland' Chorus

These children, under the direction of Lucille Gordon, will sing Christmas carols over WNAC tonight, as a part of the "Babes in Toyland" program sponsored by Sears Roebuck Company. The chorus will include 28 boys and girls, ranging in age from 5 to 15. Jack and Jill, Santa Claus, Captain Kidd and other of the regular "Babes in Toyland" characters will present their regular episode.

Turkey, Fresh Ham, Goose Offer Week-End Choice

By MARTHA LEE

Once again we must choose. What will it be—turken, fresh ham, or goose? There is a choice for all, depending on one's personal preference and the pocketbook.

Here are three menus worked out by the Home Economics department of a chain store, depending upon the weekly budget allowance. There are three price ranges—one on an 8-9 dollar weekly budget, the other 11-13 dollar weekly allowance for food and a third on a 16-18 dollar budget. All are appropriate and festive:

ROAST TURKEY DINNER
($11 to $13 Weeky Budget)
Celery Soup with Caraway Seeds
Olives Radishes
Roast Turkey Chestnut Stuffing
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Buttered White Onions
Green Beans
Cranberry Jelly
Hot Rolls and Butter
Steamed Fruit Cake Orange Sauce
Coffee

CELERY SOUP WITH CARAWAY SEEDS

2 cups diced celery reatadtadalali
2 cups diced celery
1 cup water
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
Few slices of onion
1 tbsp. butter
2 cups milk
1 tsp. caraway seeds
Paprika

Place the celery, water, salt, pepper, onion, and butter in saucepan. Simmer until celery is tender. Add milk and caraway seeds. Heat just to boiling and serve in soup dishes garnished with paprika.

CHESTNUT STUFFING

1 lb. chestnuts
1 small onion
¼ lb. butter
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
1½ tsps. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
Dash of nutmeg
1½ qts. bread crumbs

Cover the chestnuts with boiling water, cook for 12 to 15 minutes; remove shells and inner brown skin with sharp pointed knife. Brown onion in butter lightly. Add parsley, seasonings, and bread crumbs. Mix thoroughly. Slice chestnuts, or bread them into small pieces, add to bread crumb mixture.

ROAST FRESH HAM DINNER
($8 to $9 Weekly Budget)
Tomato Juice Cocktail with Parsley Sprig
Roast Fresh Ham
Browned Potatoes
Mashed Yellow Turnips
Deviled Raisins Holiday Salad
Bread and Butter
Fig Pudding Hard Sauce
Coffee

DEVILED RAISINS

1 cup seeded raisins.
Juice of 1 orange.
Juice of 1 lemon.
¼ cup vinegar.
1 tbsp. finely shredded orange rind.
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce.
1 tsp. dry mustard.
⅛ tsp. cayenne pepper.
8 whole cloves.
8 whole allspice.
1 piece ginger root.
½ stick cinnamon.
1 tbsp. finely shredded lemon rind.

Combine the raisins, water, fruit juice, vinegar, rinds, Worcestershire sauce, mustard and cayenne. Place cloves, allspice, ginger root and cinnamon in bag and immerse in liquid. Simmer over low heat about 40 minutes. Serve with meats such as ham, pork or poultry.

HOLIDAY SALAD

1 cup raw cranberries
1½ cups shredded cabbage
Grated rind of 1 orange
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. salad dressing
2 tbsps. cream
Lettuce

Put carrots, cranberries and cabbage through the food chopper, using coarse blade. Add orange rind, salt, salad dressing and cream. Mix together and chill in refrigerator. Serve in lettuce cups.

ROAST GOOSE DINNER
$16 to $18 Weekly Budget)
Avocado Canapes
Roast Goose with Sauerkraut Stuffing
Glazed Apples
Potatoes on the Half Shell
Green Peas
Christmas Green Salad
Corn Sticks and Butter
English Plum Pudding
Brandy Sauce
Fruits Nuts Candies
Black Coffee

CHRISTMAS GREEN SALAD

1 cup raw cranberries
1 cup sugar
3 tbsps. water
1 bunch watercress
Lettuce
French dressing

Wash and remove stems from cranberries. Mix sugar and water together and cook to thick syrup. Drop in cranberries, turn heat very low and baste cranberries in syrup until they just begin to crack open but still hold their shape. Drain and chill. Arrange watercress in med of lettuce. Sprinkle with candied cranberries. Serve with French dressing.

ROAST GOOSE

Have goose drawn, remove pin feathers and oil sac. Singe, scrub and wipe dry. Rub goose inside and out with salt and pepper. Stuff prune stuffing or potato stuffing may be substituted. Truss with string or skewers. Place on rack in open roasting pan, roast in hot oven, 450 deg. F., for half an hour. Reduce temperature to moderate, 325 deg. F., and continue roasting for 3 to 3½ hours, basting occasionally with pan drippings. Pour off excess fat when it reaches top of rack. Simmergiblets in highly seasoned water until tender. Use the broth for gravy. Blend 2 tbsps. pan dripping and 2 tbsps. flour for each cup of gravy. Add chopped giblets.

GIRLS LIKE MEN WITH BRAINS, WINNERS SAY

Cheer up, men,—the women folks don't place too high a premium on good looks. At least this was the consensus of opinion of the hundreds who took the time to reply to the "Don Juan" contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American, asking what the modern girl desired in her preferred man.

Eve Alldredge, of 35 Temple street, sent in the most interesting reply and will have $5 extra to spend on Christmas gifts. Second prize of $2.50 each went to Eva Pierce of 11 Saratoga street, East Boston and Margaret Gaham of 15 Pond street, Hyde Park.

The contest editor found that brains, personality, and charm counted for most of all. Not far behind came character and pretty close to last, if not actually last, came good looks!

GET $1 EACH

On the charts submitted and on the reason for their ranking as given in the accompanying letter, the following will receive $1 each as their share of the prizes.

Mary Gilmartin, 96 Glover st., Quincy; Eve Ness, 3 Carlisle street, Roxbury; W. A. "keefe, 281 Boston street, Lynn; Edna Craggs, 5 Peterborough street; Mary Fenders, 5 Lincoln street, Newburyport; Catherine Ryan, 186 M street, South Boston; Mary Fitzgibbons, 35 Paisley park, Dorchester; Anne Wilkins, 226 Huntington avenue.

Mary Zinfon, 14 Laurel street, Cambridge; Alice Daniels, 4 South Maple avenue, Bradford; Kate Nolan, 1984 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton; Annabelle Lee Scrocca, 65 Alpine street, Somerville; Joyce Dillon, 67 Nahant street, Lynn; Claire Hutchinson, 85 Ocean avenue, Dorchester; Mildred Reed, 124 Orchard street, Somerville.

AWARDED TICKETS

The following 25 winners have been sent two courtesy tickets each to Loew's State Theater to see the current program of the latest Laurel and Hardy feature, "Babes in Toyland" and a second feature "A Wicked Woman," starring Mady Christians:

RECEIVERS FOR FRENCH 'FORD'

By Associated Press

Paris, Dec. 21—The vast factories of the Citroen Automobile Company were put into receivership today by a decision of the Tribunal of Commerce.

The court appointed three receivers to administer the company which was in such financial difficulty that repercussions throughout France were threatened.

Andre Citroen, often called "the Henry Ford of France," himself filed the petition for receivership. The French government, which devoted a long cabinet session to the problem of how to save the 2,000,000,000 franc ($130,000,000) company, failed to get banks or industrialists to refloat the firm.

Second Canal Needed

Opportunity Knocks

IF EVER opportunity knocked at the national door it is knocking now that our problem is not how much to spend on public works, but how to spend it to the best advantage.

Never before were we in such a public spending mood.

It wasn't spending, it was SQUANDERING when LENDING thousands of millions to faithless foreign borrowers.

We are prepared to pour out even more for the benefit of our own people, but there is no reason for pouring it out so recklessly that tomorrow will call for still more relief.

Relief for the unemployed is an opportunity as well as a necessity.

It is the OPPORTUNITY for building NATIONALLY NECESSARY PUBLIC WORKS and particularly for building SELF-LIQUIDATING public works projects.

Boulder Dam is serving as a measure of unemployment relief, but it is also a PROFITABLE NATIONAL INVESTMENT.

The building of a second ocean to ocean canal across Nicaragua would provide work for an army of men, but it would also pay for itself through tolls and in a saving of steaming time between ports on the Atlantic and the Pacific.

IT WOULD shorten by three days the movements of the American battle fleets from one coast to the other.

A matter of three days in such movements might mean the WINNING or LOSING of a DECISIVE NAVAL BATTLE.

As additional safety for the national defense a second canal at Nicaragua would more than pay for itself from the moment of completion.

The Panama Canal is inadequate as a national defense unit.

It is inadequate for the needs of commerce and is rapidly becoming obsolete through the constant development of bigger ocean going liners.

Its locks should be both widened and deepened, and that could be done without interruption to shipping if there were a second canal at Nicaragua.

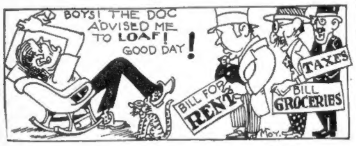
A canal at Nicaragua could be operated at about one-half the cost of operating the Panama Canal.

Recommended by the Army engineers after an extensive survey, and approved by War Secretary Dern and Navy Secretary Swanson this great nationally necessary and self-liquidating public works project should be authorized by Congress at its coming session.

AUTHORIZED and PROVIDED for by the required APPROPRIATIONS.

Just Let Them Try It!

Middle-Aged Men Loaf?



Dr. Fraser over in New York advises all middle-aged men to loaf. That would be a good prescription if you could walk past a drugstore and cash it at a bank.

If middle-aged men loaf, they will live to be venerable patriarchs, admired and respected for their matured indolence and full-blown lethargy.

We can take the doctor's advice, but we have no place to put it.

In order to frame that placid picture, we would require a lazy landlord, an eternally tired tax collector and a fatigued grocer too lazy to tap a cash register or write a bill.

In addition, there must be a sympathetic wife in loafing sympathy with Thoreau and his pond. One who would never wish the philosophical bum would fall into it.

There are still Xantippes to chase the enervated Socrates down to the corner cigar store. No middle-aged man can loaf more than two days before his wife picks up a very fine Chippendale broom handle and knocks him flatter than a devout Saracen.

We suspect the Doc gave us that advice with his tongue in his cheek. If he did, he has the storage capacity of a pelican.

Christmas Dinners

Joy for Unfortunate

Abroad in the land is the spirit of Christmas—cheerier, as always, in plans to provide joy for the unfortunate.

The real spirit of the Yuletide season is found in the work of the Boston Evening American Basket Fund, carrying happiness into thousands of homes; and in the plans of the Salvation Army and other welfare organizations, and the veterans, the church groups, the clubs—all who share.

The essence of the spirit of Christmas is expressed in one sentence of a brief announcement made by the Waldorf System of restaurants which will serve 20,000 free Christmas dinners:

> "We do this cheerfully and we consider it a happy privilege to do our share in bringing a little added joy to our fellow man who is in need."

That's it.

Save What We Have

Safeguard Our Schools

Vandalism, thefts and fire in various Bay State schools have been reported in the news this week.

Losses mounting into hundreds of thousands of dollars indicate that it would be a good idea to put watchmen on the job.

This action would at once help relieve unemployment and, if properly done, result in considerable savings.

No industrial concern would think of leaving valuable property unguarded.

Why shouldn't taxpayers' property enjoy the same consideration?

At 19 she has composed "A Christmas Fantasy" which the Philadelphia Symphony played to great applause.

It's particularly pleasant because her background—unlike that of most of the others—is typically and entirely American.

Listen, World! -:- -:- By Elsie Robinson

Should Successful Husbands Give the Wife Credit?

Every prosperous and successful husband is expected to give the Little Woman credit. If he doesn't nine times out of 10 she takes it any way.

Elsie Robinson

If I were a man, nothing would make me more furious than to have my wife make such a statement. And if I had a husband who admitted that I'd made a man of him, I'd give him to the first junk dealer.

Mind you, I'm all for husbands loving and appreciating their wives and being duly grateful for their priceless services. But I do not believe that any wife ever "made a man" out of her husband. And I cannot see why any self-respecting male should say she did.

FINE INSTITUTION

Marriage is a fine institution. We can do much for each other as husbands and wives. We can help and encourage, comfort and strengthen each other. But we cannot MAKE EACH OTHER.

Self-development is a solo job, both before and after marriage. We are individuals before we face the altar, and we remain individuals afterwards. And as individuals we stand or fall by our efforts.

It is easy enough to see why this must be true. Of what use is my character unless it is my own—based on my own strength—the result of my own decisions? Of no use—and utterly unreliable.

One may make fairly successful imitations of almost anything else on earth except a human being. But the moment a human being stops Being Himself and becomes a synthetic reproduction of someone else's state of mind, that moment he's ready for the discard.

But one sees men whose wives have done everything for them? One does, indeed. One also sees jelly beans, cup custards, wet worms and other spineless messes.

But the gent who allows the Dear Little Woman to do that to him certainly shouldn't boast about it. Nor should the Dear Little Woman, unless she's completely cuckoo, desire to claim credit.

HIS OWN THINKING

No man with a smitch of spunk or self-respect willingly hands his life over to his wife to mold, however much he may love or admire her. She may be both brighter and better than he is, and he may frankly admit it.

She may be able to do much more for him than he could do for himself. NEVERTHELESS HE WANTS TO DO HIS OWN TINKERING ON HIMSELF.

The desire to be Himself and develop his own life is the deepest and most sacred impulse in every human being. It is the thing which makes him a man instead of a turnip. And any wise wife, who really loves her husband, will respect that desire.

She would prefer to have him MAKE HIMSELF into an honest ditch digger rather than permit her to mold him into A MASTER MIND—even if she were able.

There's nothing more dangerous in our modern world, or more menacing to the home, than this feminist notion that successful men get that way because of some woman. And there's nothing more pitiful or contemptible than the sight of some big, hairy, two-fisted male admitting it's so.

For the woman who believes she has Made Her Man, invariably despises him because he let her. And the man who admits she did, hates her because of it. God made men to be men—and women to keep hands off.

All of which will make a lot of ladies mad enough to eat woolly worms. But it's the truth, girls—and some day, if we keep on meddling where we don't belong, we're going to be mighty sorry that it is. So why pick on me, just because I warned you?

Girls Seeking Freedom -:- -:- By Winifred Black

Freedom—That's what they wanted. The four girls who ran away from the reform school the other day.

Winifred Black

One 14, two 16 and one 15—all poor, all friendless, and all desperately alone in their noisy, unfriendly world.

Where were they going? They hadn't the vaguest idea.

They just knew they wanted to be free. Free to pick up thieves and cheats and scoundrels for company.

Well, they will find plenty of them before they have been in any city 12 hours.

All the wolves are not shut up in the fairy tale books. And each wolf knows exactly how to put shackles on his pitiful little victim and make her believe that she is free at last.

What is it they run so hard to find, these poor ignorant children?

What is the terrible bondage they are so eager to escape?

Regular hours, decent food, someone in authority to watch over them?

STORY OF THE WOLF

It's easy to see their point of view to some degree, isn't it?

You remember the story of the wolf who came shivering to the door of the house dog's warm kennel one bitter night when the snow was deep on the frozen grounds?

The house dog saw that the wolf was starving and freezing and had hurt one of his feet in some cruel trap or other, and he let the wolf come in, and the wolf ate and drank and lay down to rest in warmth and comfort.

And in the morning the wolf said to the dog:

"How did you find such a place as this? Are there any more of them anywhere? I'd like to find one. The snow is so deep, the wind is so wild and fierce, and I am tired and old."

"I'll find you a place," said the good house dog.

"Stay here and rest and the first thing you know you will be living here, too."

The wolf gave a sigh—at least he meant it for a sigh, but I suspect it sounded a good deal like a snarl.

In the morning when the dog stood outside in the strong sunshine—the wolf looked closely at him.

MARK OF A COLLAR

"Brother," said the wolf, "tell me what is that mark around your neck?"

"That's the mark of a collar," said the friendly dog, and he hung his brave head when he said it.

"A collar," echoed the wolf. "Shall I have to wear a collar, too?"

But before the dog could answer him, the wolf was gone out into the deep snow, into the cold and hunger—alone.

He'd rather starve and freeze and die than to rest in warmth and comfort, and be full fed and wear a collar.

I suppose that is the way these free souls feel, those who would rather starve and freeze and be outcasts than to wear what they call the collar of respectability.

But do you know what I think about the story of the dog and the wolf?

I think the man who owned the dog was lucky when the wolf ran away.

For the wolf would some day have bitten the man to the bone, for a wolf is always a wolf, whether he is wild or tame.

Isn't that true?

Stars and Stripes

Amelia Earhart is reported planning flying from Hawaii to California. It seems that her plans, for the present, are "up in the air."

Field Museum of Natural History issues its seventh volume on birds. Still with no mention of Geneva's "Dove of Peace" or the Blue Eagle.

Opinion is still divided as to whether Mars is inhabited. Anyway, it would make a good place to send our Communists.

Cables tell us Switzerland's new president never had a college education. Well, 'tis better never to have had one than to have had one and lost it.

COMPULSION

'Twas barroom sport in 'forty-nine
To catch some tenderfoot by chance
And having guzzled beer and wine
Compel the frightened man to dance.
They fired their pistols at the floor.
They urged him on with hoot and yell,
But when at last the fun was o'er
The victim hadn't danced so well.

He jumped and leaped at their command,
But who can think of poise and pose,
The dance routine, the manner grand,
With bullets bouncing at his toes?
They called it dancing in their glee.
They popped their pistols till he fell;
But when a man is frightened, he
Will never dance so very well.

No man is ever at his best
Who does a thing against his will.
The pistol-popping days out West
Gained neither dancing grace nor skill.
By force and fear men may be made
To jump and leap until they fall,
But dancing done by men afraid
Is bitter business after all.

Words of Wise

When people are tolerably fortunate in their outward lot and find enjoyment in it, they are generally caring for nobody but themselves.—John Stuart Mill.

Make no mistake about it: We have the type of government in every community that we deserve.—Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill.

A thought is an idea in transit. —Pythagoras.

I don't think much of a man who is not wiser today than he was yesterday.—Abraham Lincoln.

We must work for the spirit which promises peace.—Sir John Simon.

The Communist Program of World Revolution

"The conquest of power by the proletariat is the VIOLENT ABOLITION of the power of the bourgeoisie, the DESTRUCTION of the MACHINERY of the capitalist state.

"WE proclaim openly that our design can only be realized by the VIOLENT OVERTHROW of the ENTIRE TRADITIONAL social order."

Hendrik Van Loon

WRITES ABOUT

Treason at Home

I sometimes wonder whether we are really a nation or merely that "polygot boarding-house" which was so roundly denounced by the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Hendrik Van Loon

For, day after day and week after week, we allow ourselves to be used as a sort of convenient doormat by all the riff-raff and hoodlums of every nook and corner of this planet.

The Dickstein commission has now moved its headquarters from New York to Washington, and for the moment at least there is an end to those incredible scenes that took place during those hearings.

I wonder what would have happened to these youthful gangsters in their foreign uniforms, their foreign insignia and their Hitler hoorays, if their cavortings had been committed in the days of—let us say—the older Adams or his contemporary, the late Mr. Thomas Jefferson.

IN DAYS OF OLD

Had these young patriots then dared to come a swashbuckling into meetings, loudly proclaiming their allegiance to foreign rulers and dictators, they would have wandered into the nearest lock-up with a rapidity that would have been most heartening to all of us who believe that people should wash their dirty laundry at home.

As I depend for my news upon the daily papers, I know that there is a great hue and cry about the so-called "Red activities" and that there are many honest citizens who clamor for their repressions.

Not a hundred yards away from the little friends of Mr. Lenin, in a warm and cozy New York restaurant, other hundreds are gathered, sporting a strange Japanese emblem which by some mysterious alchemy of patriotic fanaticism has become the trade-mark of the only purely Aryan nation that now graces God's great green footstool.

Perhaps they do not say, "To Hell with the country," but they act it.

AROUND THE CORNER

Now follow me around the corner. Here other thousands of American citizens are engaged in singing lusty songs that certainly were not writ by one of our own composers.

From sheer love of their adopted country, they are willing to sell it out "for its own good" to a set of ideas that are just simply grand along the banks of the home river, but that have nothing whatsoever in common with the notions of a "well-regulated commonwealth" as they arose in the heads of George Washington, Franklin and Madison.

Don't be upset by these loud reports and the clanging of the patrol wagons. It is merely a sect from Asia Minor which has settled its own political differences by murdering its archbishop just as he was about to kneel before the altar.

You may argue that that is hardly the way we do things. Granted! Twice granted! But why should they worry? We tolerate that sort of thing.

There is nobody to tell troublemakers that this is not Yugo-Slavia or Hungary or Germany or Mexico or Spain or Armenia, but America.

There is no law, apparently, that prevents them from strutting into an official session of a congressional investigation, wearing the insignia and uniforms of a foreign nation, and from thumbing their noses at the American flag.

Personally I am quite contented to recognize the city of Washington as the capital of my country, and I have not the slightest desire to see the seat of government transferred to Moscow. But I will be —— if I see anything to choose between Moscow, Berlin, Belgrade or Vienna.

They are lovely cities. But when I look at the map, I find that none of them is located within the United States of America.

Human Side of the News

About Christmas Day

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Soon comes Christmas day—the day we celebrate with feasting and song, interchange of gifts and religious rites. But was the Man of Nazareth actually born on the day we celebrate as His Birthday?

We do not know actually, nor does it matter. It is the Man, not the day that matters, and almost any day would serve. The 25th of December though, becomes hallowed by tradition and time, will endure doubtless as the day of days.

DOCTORS DISAGREED

"Christ was born on Christmas Day!" So we have sung in the carols since we were little more than babes. And that Christmas Day has been on the 25th day of December in the Western Church from around the year 350 A. D.

The early doctors were in disagreement. A few set forth that Christ was born in the 28th year of the reign of Augustus, and they fixed a date according to the Egyptian calendar, which would make Christmas as of May 20.

STAR WAS SATURN

The learned Clement of Alexandria in the second century looked into these discussions and dismissed most of the opinions offered as mere superstitions. His own conclusion was that the birth in Bethlehem took place on November 18 in the year 3 B. C.

Professor Oswald Gerhardt of Berlin, is inclined to think that Clement was wrong. He leans to the findings of the chronologists Clement disputed, and thinks the birthday of Jesus was April 2, 7 B. C.

Strangely enough, April 2 was mentioned by Hippolytus, in whose writings also appears the statement that Jesus was born on Wednesday, December 25, in the 42nd year of Augustus.

Writing in the scientific "Researches and Progress," he dwells at length on the appearance of the star in the East to the Wise Men. The Bible, in several instances, speaks of the "Star of God" under which the Messiah was to arrive. This star of the Hebrews was Saturn. Therefore, argues Professor Gerhardt, if Saturn was the sign in the heavens to the Wise Men, it was visible in Babylon only in the first week of April.

The Magi, following it westward on their camels and with their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, would have seen it again in Palestine between October and December. The professor reckons they came to Bethlehem in November and that the Child, at the time of their adoration, was seven months old.

I have said that under Anastasius, December 25th became the universal feast day. This is not entirely true, because the Syrians and Armenians cling to January 6th, and the Greek Church observes that date.

What matters after all, whether Christmas is December 25th, January 6th or April 22. It still would be the one day when we would throw off selfishness, would think of mankind as a brotherhood and, with Scrooge's nephew, would say of the day: "God bless it."
